Delaware Said Company State

. . . Du Ponts' Effects 'Like Bad Medicine,' Nader Charges

Washington (UPI) — Ralph Nader charged Tuesday the wealthy Du Pont corporate family has controlled the people, politics and press in the "company state" of Delaware.

"Like bad medicine that goes down sweetly, the effects of the company on the community too often include damage across a score of areas . . . ' Nader said in an 800-page report that accused the company of allowing racial segregation urban poverty and tax inequities to continue.

Du Pont President Charles B. McCoy said the report was "completely one-sided and so negative that it defeats its avowed purpose of helpcng the people of the state."

"Every corporate action is attacked, even those in which the company expends large amounts of time and money for community projects," McCoy added. "The company's motives are twisted to fit the authros' preconceived notions."

Largest Chemical Company

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co., the world's largest chemical company, has its headquarters in Wilmington, Del. Together with other family interests in the state, the Du Ponts employ 11% of the state's work force, the report said.

Although critical of the firm, Nader did say its techniques in using its power were "not as crude or roughshod as is often the case in coal, textile or paper mill company towns."

The report, entitled "The Company State," was compiled by a 10-member "Nader Raider" group headed by James L. Phelan and Robert C. Pozen, both Yale law students. It was done under Nader's personal supervision.

Its main contentions:

—Wilmington has become a town where businessmen profit by day and scurry to suburbs at night "while the poor and blue-collar people suffer a deteriorating city whose principal forms of renewal are malls near Du Pont buildings and highways to get suburbanites in and out quickly."

—"While over discrimination seems to have disappeared, the vestiges of Du Pont's past racism still remains." The report said less than 1% of white collar workers in the chemical industry in 1969 were black, while they comprised 15% of the state's population.

—The Du Pont family controls the two Wilmington newspapers, the Morning News and Evening Journal. "Some of the worst abuses of the Du Pont monoploy of news in Delaware involve community issues — the reporting of political campaigns and the coverage of important local projects. The owners of the News-Journal have used the paper as their political mouthpiece and as a forum for conservative casuses."

—The Du Ponts have great influence in state government and also in candidacies for federal offices. The report notes that Pierre S. Du Pont, R-Del., was elected to Congress in 1970, and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., also elected in 1970, is "firmly entrenched in the corporate establishment." Gov. Russell Peterson, a Republican, is a former Du Pont employee.

"Since the Delaware legislature is so weak and the political resources of the corporate elite are so great, the Du Pont company or family can easily obtain legislative approval for mearsures," the report said.

—The family and company have failed to pay millions of dollars in property taxes over the past 15 years because of non-uniform assessment ratios. "In 1970 alone, if Du Pont family land had been assessed at the same level per unit of size as that of most residential lots in New Castle County, the family would have paid over $1 million more in property and school taxes in that county," the report claimed.

Fiduciary Duty 'Breached

It also charged that directors of the Wilmington Trust Co., one of two major banks in the state controlled by the Du Ponts, "May have breached their fiduciary duty to the bank's stockholders" when they failed to liquidate immediately a $3 million guarantee. The guarantee was given by Du Pont board chairman Lammot Du Pont Copeland Sr., on a loan to his son, Lammot Jr., following a bankruptcy petition Oct. 20, 1970, by the son, declaring assets of $25.7 million and liabilities of $59.1 million.

Another aspect of the report dealt with the social life of the Du Ponts and their "Wilmington Club" and Wilmington country club which they said makes every effort to insure its exclusivity "which means no blacks, Jews, Italians, Poles or middle-class workers."

Among the report's recommendations are the outright sale of both Wilmington newspapers, strong conflict of interst and campaign expenditure laws in Delaware, appointment of at least three public interest directors to the Du Pont board, and a state income tax "effectively progressive in the upper brackets."

In his seven-page response, McCoy said the report "espouses a political philosophy that is alien to the essential directions of American public policy and proposes to alter drastically our economic system which is based on free enterprise."

The Nader report concluded that with the wealth and expertise of the Du Ponts, "Delaware in theory could be the vanguard of social progress and justice in the United States. Instead, Delaware constitutes the model of a rigidly divided society with wide inequities between social classes."

11% BOOST FOR LINCOLN . . .

NPPD Announces 9.7% Hike In Rates

The Nebraska Public Power District Monday announced an average 9.7% increase in wholesale and retail electric rates effective Jan. 1.

That will meet additional revenue requirements estimated by NPPD at $6.6 million for the coming year.

The increase is the first general hike in retail rates since 1951, NPPD pointed out.

Action on the rate increase was approved by the board of directors at a meeting in Columbus.

Earlier, in Lincoln, officials of the Lincoln Electric System told members of the City Council that the wholesale rate increase affecting Lincoln would amount to 11%.

That will boost the cost of power purchased by the city by about $1 million a year, council members were informed.

The NPPD wholesale rate hike presumably will trigger an increase in LES retail rates to electric consumers.

NPPD Board President Frederick Wagener of Lincoln said the rate increases are consistent with price guidelines promulgated by the federal government.

The board's rate resolution said that after studying operating costs and current rates, a study committee recommended the formulation of a new single set of rates which are "fair, reasonable and non-discriminatory."

The increase was inevitable, Wagener said, because of rising costs for such items as fuel, materials, equipment, interest rates and wages.

There has also been "an added burden placed on NPPD due to fundamental changes in technology and environmental attitudes," Wagener said.

NPPD serves 26 rural public power districts at wholesale as well as the Loup River Public Power District and 62 cities and towns. It also supplies electricity at retail to 271 communities.

AND AWAY WE GO OVER THE SNOW

Federal Raises OKd In Senate

Washington (UPI) — The Senate voted Monday in defiance of President Nixon to give all 4.1 million federal, military and civilian employes a 5.5% pay increase Jan. 1 rather than postpone it for six months as Nixon had wanted.

If the House goes along, the Jan. 1 pay boost would add $1 billion to the government's deficit for the current fiscal year, which is expected to amount to more than $28 billion.

In announcing his new economic program, Nixon postponed until July 1 a scheduled pay boost for federal workers intended to make their wages comparable to salaries paid non-government workers with the same responsibilities.

The Senate vote, attaching the pay boost to Nixon's bill giving him control over prices and wages for an additional 17 months, would override Nixon's decision to delay the raises.

The pay amendment, offered by Sens. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., and Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, would give the nation's 2.6 million military men their third pay increase within 12 months.

Lower Ranks

They received one Jan. 1 and another recently as a rider to the bill extending the draft law. That increase, averaging 15%, went chiefly to military men at the lower rungs, just about doubling what a raw recruit was paid. It was a $2.4 billion increase, the biggest military pay raise in U.S. history.

Federal law provides that military pay must go up whenever federal civilian employes' pay rises, giving the military their new coat-tail rise.

More than half of the $2 billion, six-month increase will go to the military and the rest to the government's 1.5 civilian workers except those in the U.S. Postal Service, whose unions negotiate their own raises. Blue collar workers may get slightly less than the full 5.5% increase, depending on the cost of living where they work.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., cast the only "no" vote against the increase, contending the Pay Board should have the same power to control federal employes' salaries as those of any other segment of the economy.

First Action

The vote was the first Senate action on the bill extending until April 30, 1973, Nixon's power to control wages and prices.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the House-Senate Economic Committee, staged a one-man protest against the bill, keeping the floor for hours. He said Congress would come to regret giving such vast pwers to the President.

"If a Democratic president had demanded this much power over the economy, the business and financial community would have been marching down Pennsylvania Avenue in protest!" Proxmire said to a nearly empty Senate chamber.

Proxmire predicted that the machinery Nixon has established to control the economy would inject "confusion, disillusion and perhaps paralysis" into the economy and create more unemployment.

Veterinarians Told Vaccine Effective In Controlling VEE

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A U.S. Department of Agriculture veterinarian said Monday that the vaccine for Venezuelan equine encephalomylitis (VEE) proved "quite effective" in controlling the spread of the disease after its outbreak last summer in Texas.

Dr. H. E. Metcalf of Denver, Colo., spoke to the opening session of the three-day annual convention of the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association being held in Lincoln.

Discussing research done in the Brownville area — the initial point of outbreak of the sleeping sickness virus, Dr. Metcalf said 30% of the horse population had been vaccinated prior to the outbreak but 100% was achieved in the ensuing days.

He credited the vaccine and other control measures with holding the death rate of the area's horse population to 10%.

Dr. Metcalf said that a 94% vaccination rate has now been achieved in a 19-state area bordering Texas, the Gulf of Mexico and the Easter seaboard.

If there is a new outbreak next summer, Dr. Metcalf said, the likely states are Colorado, Kansas and Missouri, but "no state can be considered out of danger because of the movement of horses."

The USDA official said the Venezuelan strain of horse sleeping sickness cannot be clinically distinguished between the Eastern and Western varieties and urged veterinarians to obtain laboratory confirmation of any new cases of encephalomylitis.

The horse itself is the reservoir of VEE, which is transmitted by mosquitoes, and Dr. Metcalf said the USDA is continuing to monitor all reported cases of encephalmylitis.

Dr. Metcalf said VEE rarely causes other than "mild symptoms" in human adults, but can cause death in children.

Dr. Metcalf encouraged horse owners and veterinarians to vaccinate horses against VEE, contending the few deaths that may occur among horses from the vaccine are far outweighed by safety factor in preventing the death of even one child.

Other speakers Monday were Dr. Cliff Nelson of Jewell, Iowa, on swine herd health and Dr. Charles A. Mebus of the University of Nebraska on African swine fever and vaccine for calf diarrhea.

Approximately 175 Nebraska veterinarians are expected to attend the convention, but early registrations were slowed by weather and road conditions, according to a convention official.

State Agricluture Director Glenn Kreuscher is scheduled to address the convention Tuesday, when new association officers and the "Veterinarian of the Year" will be named.

Talk Of Imminent Takeover Of LOMR Programs Poked

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln School Supt. John Prasch said Monday he believes it's "cruel to parents" to suggest that a school takeover of child development programs of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) is imminent.

Recent statements have indicated that the Lincoln Board of Education will eventually assume responsibility for the PEP and TRY programs now operated under LOMR.

But Prasch said at a meeting of the school system's special education advisory committee that the matter had not yet been discussed with the school board.

Prasch said he agreed with sentiment for an eventual school takeover of the teaching aspects of the child development programs, but he suggested "we also have to think of strategies."

"It's important not to get the Board of Education backed into a defensive position on this," said Prasch.

He said he was "sorry" to see statements indicating such a change is imminent when, in fact, the board has yet to discuss the matter.

And he suggested it is "cruel to parents to be telling them something is going to happen if it's not going to happen."

David Blume, director of the Capital Association for Retarded Children (CARC), agreed that the "publicity was unfortunate."

Blume said a proposal under discussion would call for the schools to assume responsibility for the child development programs for youngsters from 5 to 21, while LOMR might retain the administration of the programs for those under 5 and over 21.

Prasch said he and Blume have been checking names and numbers of students being served in the various programs now to assess the situation.

"We have a public school responsibility for all children of public school age," said Prasch, but he cautioned that "that's different from saying the public schools can take over existing programs."

A major concern immediately, he suggested, is identifying each child in the community who could benefit from child development services.

Blume and John Luebs, director of LOMR, agreed.

Luebs said his agency is "looking for the schools to take the teaching responsibility for the programs," but only as a means of expanding and improving services, rather than "dumping" programs on the schools.

Luebs has come under fire recently from parents upset over the demotion of two supervisors in LOMR programs.

Frazier Convicted Of Murdering 5 Persons

Redwood City, Calif. (AP) — John Linley Frazier, 25, was convicted Monday of first-degree murder in the slayings of an eye surgeon and four others.

The same Superior Court jury, which began deliberations last Friday in the trial, must now determine if Frazier is sane.

Frazier, a former automobile mechnic, was convicted of five counts of murder in the 1970 killings of Dr. Victor Ohta, three members of Ohta's family and a secretary.

He pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Firemen seeking water to fight a blaze at Ohta's $250,000 hilltop mansion near Santa Cruz Oct. 19, 1970, discovered the five bodies in the family swimming pool.

All five were blindfolded and bound at the wrists with silk scarves.

Ohta, 45, a wealthy eye surgeon of Japanese decent, was shot three times with a .38-caliber pistol.

The others — Ohta's wife, Virginia, 43, their sons, Derrick, 12, and Taggart, 11, and Otha's secretary Dorothy Cadwallader, 38 — were each shot with a .22-caliber pistol, authorities said.

Under the windshield of Ohta's Rolls-Royce, authorities found a typewritten note which said: "Hallowe'n, 1970. Today, World War 3 will begin as brought to you by the people of the Free Universe.

"From this day forward anyone and-or company of persons who misueses the natural environment or destroys same will suffer the penalty of death by the people of the Free Universe."

The note, typed on Ohta's typewriter, was signed "Knight of Wands, Knight of Cups, Knights of Pentacles, Knight of Swords" — symbols of key cards in the Tarot fortune-telling deck.

On Oct. 23, Frazier, unarmed, was arrested in the shack where he lived, about half a mile from the murder scene. He offered no resistance.

Joseph Cole, 23, testified that he was one of the three youths who went to authorities after the murders, saying they thought Frazier might have been involved. He said Frazier had talked of "ripping off rednecks."

U.N. Observers Sought

. . . Pakistani Air Force Reserves Called Up

By United Press International

The Pakistani government, conceding that Indian troops had captured territory in East Pakistan, called up the air force reserves Monday and urged the United Nations to send observers to the frontier.

Fighting between Indian and Pakistani troops in East Pakistan continued to rage for the third day with Pakistan reporting renewed major Indian attacks on three border sectors of East Pakistan.

An Indian government official said outside attempts to get Pakistani President Agha Mohammed Yahya Kahn to agree to "a political solution have failed."

There was no reaction from Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to a message from President Nixon delivered Monday reportedly concerning withdrawal of both Indian and Pakistani troops from border positions and for the disengagement of forces.

Chinese Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien said in Peking that China continues to support Pakistan and "we maintain that disputes between states should be settled by the two parties concerned through peaceful consultations and absolutely not by resorting to force."

In Islamabad, officials admitted Pakistani forces had suffered military setbacks and ordered all air force reserves under 55 years old who were released or discharged after Jan. 1, 1968, to report immediately for service.

Earlier, a Pakistani spokesman in Rawalpindi told newsmen that Jibannager, five miles inside Pakistani territory in the Jessore sector of East Pakistan's western border had been captured. It is 60 miles north of Calcutta. He also said Indian forces had taken territory in Chittagong in the southeast and the Sylhet region in the northeast.

He said the loss of "a few thousand yards" meant nothing. "We have not only halted, but given a bloody nose to the Indians."

East Pakistani rebels want India to capture territory in East Pakistan so that the rebels can establish an independent Bangla Desh (Bengal Land) government.

Sylhet is a hilly, tea-producing area and Chittagong sector contains the nation's major port which is linked to the interior by railroad.

Yahya Cables Thant

Radio Pakistan reported Yahya sent U.N. Secretary General Thant a message Sunday proposing that U.N. observers be stationed in East Pakistan. Spokesman for the Pakistani U.N. delegation confirmed that the message had been sent.

Radio Pakistan, reporting from Dacca said Indian forces shelled Jessore town Monday, killing one person and injuring several. Jessore, the capital of Jessore district, is about 20 miles by road from East Pakistan's western border.

But an Indian government spokesman in New Delhi denied the Radio Pakistan report of Indian attacks in the Jessore and Sylhet sectors, saying it was East Pakistani rebels who were active in those areas.

Jordan's King Hussein appointed a prime minister Monday to succeed assassinated Wafi Tell and indicated the new man's job would include keeping up pressure on the Palestinian guerrillas.

Ahmad Lozi, 46, was minister of finance before taking the prime minister post. To friends, Lozi is a "nice, polite, quiet fellow who should do a a good job." To critics, he is colorless and likely to operate in the king's shadow.

In Beirut, a guerrilla source said the "Black September Organization" that claimed responsibility for the assassination of Tell is a secret branch of Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla group.

Nixon To Veto Tax Bill If It Doesn't Suit Him

Washington (AP) — President Nixon declared Monday he will veto the pending tax-cut bill unless it is stripped of both a check-off plan to finance presidential campaigns and a set of "budget-busting Senate amendments."

Nixon's warning was relayed by his chief Capitol Hill lobbyist, Clark MacGregor, as a conference committee met to settle differences between House and Senate versions of the bill.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., discounted the threat, telling reporters: "It's not the first time a statement like that has been made. It's a polite way to put pressure on the conference."

Mills, who heads the House conferees as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, refused again to state his position on the Senate-approved provision to finance presidential campaigns. It would permit taxpayers to allot a dollar of their income tax to a special fund. But he is believed to favor the basic idea.

This One Or None

Mills has said that if Nixon vetoes this bill it will be impossible to pass this year a tax-cut measure which is a major part of the presidential program for stimulating the economy.

MacGregor and other aides met with Nixon for three hours Monday. Afterward, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon "concluded that should Congress fail to remove from the tax bill . . . the budget-busting Senate amendments and the political check-off rider, he will be unable to give his approval to this particular legislation."

World News

Both MacGregor and Ziegler said they are optimistic Congress will pass a bill acceptable to the White House before its Christmas recess. They would not say whether Nixon would call Congress back into special session if it quits without doing so.

Nixon proposed the $26-billion tax-cut bill on Aug. 15 when he announced Phase 1 of his new economic program. The legislation cleared the House in a form reportedly acceptable to the White House — but it underwent major revisions on the Senate floor.

One change sought by the deficit-ridden Democratic party would allow individuals to earmark $1 of their taxes to finance presidential campaigns.

Over $40 Billion

MacGregor said Senate amendments had "ballooned . . . to greater than $40 billion over three years" the tax-cut provisions in the legislation. The additional cuts, he told newsmen, would increase the federal deficit by "many billions annually and thus are highly inflationary."

MacGregor specifically mentioned three major provisions added by the Senate: tax relief for parents of college students, an increase to $800 in the personal income tax exemption and tax credits for firms that locate in ghettos or rural areas.

These and other Senate amendments, he said, would result in an additional deficit of $4.3 billion in fiscal 1972 and $5.5 billion in 1973.

Hunt Hampered For Copter Carrying 33

Saigon (AP) — High winds and heavy rains hampered the search Tuesday for a U.S. Army helicopter which went down north of Da Nang with 33 Americans aboard.

Air and sea search by planes, helicopters and U.S. Navy ships had found no trace of the twin-rotor CH47 Chinook by Tuesday morning.

The helicopter was en route from Da Nang to Phu Bai, 50 miles to the north, when it crashed Sunday with a crew of five and 28 members of an infantry battalion. All were from the 101st Airborne Division, headquartered at Camp Eagle, near Phu Bai.

Military sources said the pilot radioed that he had a minor mechanical problem and was returning to Da Nang. Minutes later he reported an "emergency," then lost contact with air controllers.

The normal flight pattern for helicopters en route from Da Nang to Phu Bai is along the coastline, and there was no indication whether the chopper had crashed inland or in the South China Sea.

There were thunderstorms and low visibility in the area at the time, but military spokesmen at Da Nang said the flight was considered "normal."

If all 33 Americans aboard perished it would be the worst U.S. helicopter disaster in nearly four years. A CH53 Jolly Green Giant crashed into a mountain near Dong Ha on Jan. 8, 1968, killing all 41 Americans aboard.

The U.S. Command reported the loss of three other helicopters and an F4 Phantom jet fighter-bomber with three crewmen killed, three missing and six wounded.

The losses raised to 8,033 the number of aircraft reported lost to all causes in the Indochina war since Jan. 1, 1961.

President To Begin Trip To Red China Feb. 21

Washington (AP) — President Nixon will begin on Feb. 21 a historic visit to Peking, the White House announced Monday. The chief exelutive has described the broad aim of the unprecedented mission as the "normalization of relations" with China.

As this news was released simultaneously here and in the Chinese capital, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said American officials will provide additional information on the trip within the next 24 hours.

He said he would be able to disclose Tuesday the length of the President's stay in China and other details such as the route he will take on his unprecedented flight to become the first American president ever to go to China.

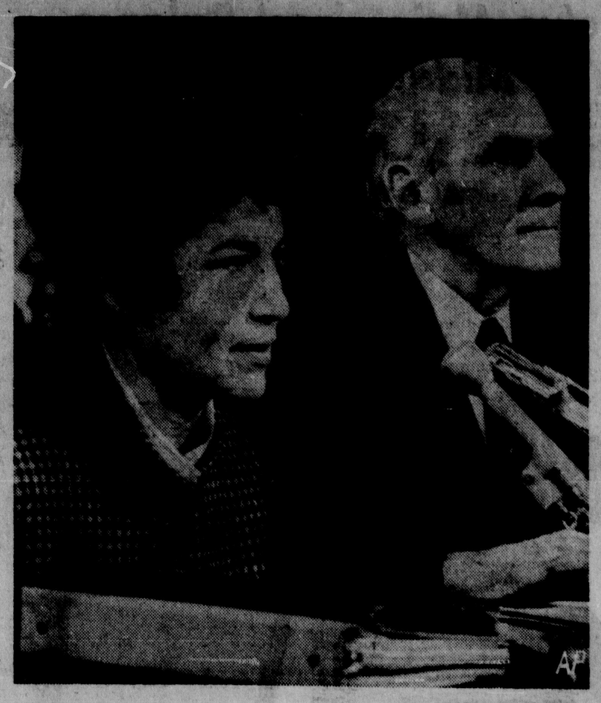
There had been published and broadcast reports in the United States that hitches had developed in planning for the Nixon trip, but Ziegler said, "Preparations continue to go well and the general framework has been established."

The joint Washington-Peking announcement of the February date was unusually brief:

"The government of the People's Republic of China and the government of the United States of America have agreed that President Nixon's visit to China shall begin on Feb. 21, 1972."

That will be some three months before Nixon is scheduled to visit Moscow for another first-ever summit conference with Soviet leaders in their capital city.

In advance of the Peking and Moscow trips, as the White House has announced within the past week, Nixon plans a series of face-to-face consultations with the leaders of such major allies as Japan, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada.



STORY AT RIGHT

Head Of Immigration Claims Banuelos Raid 'Put-Up Job'

Washington (AP) — The head of the Immigration Service agreed with a senator Monday that the immigration agents' raid on Mrs. Romana Banuelos' California plant last month was "a put-up job."

Raymond F. Farrell, commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, made the statement during a Senate Finance Commitee hearing on President Nixon's nomination of Mrs. Banuelos for U.S. treasurer.

Agents found 36 illegal aliens among about 300 employes at her Ramona Food products plant in Gardena, Calif., in the Oct. 5 raid.

Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, charged that the raid was "a put-up job," initiated by federal employes sympathetic to jobless Americans.

Bennett said the Banuelos company was chosen because of its maximum publicity value.

"Senator, I agree with you," said Farrell.

The Immigration Service's Los Angeles district director, George K. Rosenberg, has said the raid was called partly because of an informer's tip and because the company was on his "active file" of firms where illegal aliens were likely to be found.

Farrell said six raids had been made at the plant since 1967 with no more than a dozen aliens being found at any time until last October.

Mrs. Banuelos faced almost exclusive questioning on Mexican alien employment at her plant.

Knowledge Denied

She denied she knew illegal aliens worked at her company until the Immigration Service informed her.

Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., askel how she would know if an employe was an illegal alien.

"That's one thing we don't know," she said.

Some said it was easy to obtain, forge or lie about the necessary "green card" showing that a person is legally in this country, as well as the Social Security card, two requirements for employment.

The Immigration Service last year rounded up 412,000 illegal aliens. There are an estimated 250,000 in the Los Angeles area.

Ribicoff Queries

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., asked if Mrs. Banuelos was aware that illegal immigration boosts unemployment for Americans.

"I don't know," she said.

Ribicoff charged, "You don't seem to be aware of problems of Mexican-Americans on the lower economic scale."

Under questioning of Republican senators, it was established that Mrs. Banuelos had a profit-sharing plan, a contract with a Teamsters local for a closed shop, and paid the same wages to all employes, regardless of background: $1.65 to $3.12 an hour, depending on length of employment.

"To say there is something wrong with Mrs. Banuelos because illegal aliens compete with Mexican-Americans for jobs seems to me to go beyond the measure of fairness," said Sen. Clifford Hanson, R-Wyo.

Curb On Health-Care Costs Hinted

Washington (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, hinted Monday at possible congressional action if the administration's Phase 2 economic controls do not curb rising health-care costs.

Present controls are "little more than paper tigers," the Louisiana Democrat told the White House Conference on Aging.

If they do not work, he said, "then perhaps it wil be up to the Congress to seek a way to stabilize the health-care costs so that the aged will no longer be the unwilling victims of economic circumstances over which they have no control."

Long predicted that the 92nd Congress will "legislate to guarantee a national minimum income standard for the aged" and provide new tax breaks for the elderly and Social Security benefit increases. But he said he remains strongly opposed to the administration's welfare-reform bill tied to Social Security legislation.

Long Among 8

Long was among eight congressional leaders addressing the conference at four hotels. He followed Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, who became ill in the middle of his speech.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said the conference will be "a colossal bomb . . . a flop . . . a failure" if it only makes recommendations.

"To be effective, he said, "you must prepare yourselves for the day-by-day, often tedious job of implementing your report through the political system."

Eagleton, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on aging, suggested there is "the basis for a political alliance" between the elderly and school officials.

Bond issues and school-tax boosts, he said, are often defeated by the elderly, two-thirds of whom are property owners, because of their fear of higher taxes.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., told another luncheon that private pension plans, "cast in the role of providing a supplement to the retirement income delivered by Social Security," are not doing the job.

"The average employe covered by a private pension plan . . . cannot count on getting anything from that plan," said Javits. He has introduced a bill which would protect a worker's pension rights when he lost or changed jobs or the employer went out of business.

Winnie Ruth Judd Set Free

Florence, Ariz. (AP) — Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona's trunk murderess of the 1930s, was granted her freedom by the State Parole Board Monday.

The 67-year-old onetime "Tiger Woman" promised to live "as quietly as I can" but stopped short of saying she would not tell the story of her 40-year-old crime. She and her attorney said any profits would go to charity.

Arizona corrections officials said it would take several weeks to arrange her release to the Dr. John Blemer family of Danville, Calif., who sheltered her during her seventh escape.

The conditions almost certainly will include a provision that Mrs. Judd not profit financially from any story of the 1931 deaths of her two friends and the shipment of their bodies to Los Angeles in trunks, or her seven subsequent escapes.

Mrs. Judd was convicted of the 1931 murder of Agnes Anne LeRoi, 27. The bodies of Miss LeRoi and Hedvig Samuelson, 25, were dismembered and shipped to Los Angeles in two trunks. However, Mrs. Judd was never tried in the Samuelson slaying.

Holiday Traffic Costs 607 Lives In Road Crashes

By The Associated Press

Heavy highway traffic during the four-day Thanksgiving Day holiday weekend cost 607 lives.

This was below the low end of a National Safety Council advance estimate that between 620 and 720 persons might be killed in crashes between 6 p.m. Wednesday, the eve of the holiday, and midnight Sunday.

The council calculates that fatalities over a holiday period run as high as 25% above the toll of a similar period without a holiday involved.

The 1971 Thanksgiving day weekend compared with 646 fatalities counted by The Associated Press in the corresponding weekend last year. The Thanksgiving toll of 764 in 1968 was the highest of any holiday period on record.

Ford Given 2.9% Increase In Prices

Washington (UPI) — The Price Commission Monday granted a price increase to Ford Motor Co. giving it authority to charge an average of 2.9% more on 1972 model cars, trucks, and optional equipment.

Ford originally asked for a 4.4% increase, but the commission cut that back, as it did with Chrysler's inititial request for 5.3% on 1972 production.

The commission approved increases of 4.5% for Chrysler and 2.5% for American Motors.

A General Motors request for a 2.5% increase is pending, along with a second application for a 0.5% boost on new safety and pollution control devices.

While the Chrysler increase was the largest granted, the company announced that it would boost prices only 3%.

Earlier Monday, the commission rejected an increase request lower than its own 2.5% economy-wide price hike target because the proposal would have boosted the firm's profit margin.

The seven-member panel turned down an application from the Oscar Mayer Co. of Madison, Wis., for a 1.3% hike on processed meat products.

The commission announced before it began operation Nov. 14 that its general policy for price increases would be to permit only those that reflected additional new costs — such as higher wages or raw material prices — minus the gains in productivity the company may be getting from new machines or other improvements.

The commission said two price increase requests from Oscar Mayer were for 27.8 and 12.7%.

Losses Reported

Lusaka, Zambia (AP) — The Dairy Produce Board, a government-subsidized agency that sells imported butter at a loss, has a deficit of about $4,200 a day, records show.

Manson Gets 3 Sentences

Los Angeles (UPI) — Charles Manson, already under eight death sentences for the Tate-Labianca murders, Monday was given three sentences of life imprisonment in his second murder trial.

The 37-year-old cult leader was sentenced to life for the slayings of movie stuntman Donald "Shorty" Shea, whose body never was found, and for the murder of and the conspiracy to murder musician Gary Hinman.

Manson's lawyer, Irving Kanarek, insisted to the end that Manson, 37, was completely innocent. "The only thing he ever did wrong was to make love to teen-age girls."

Manson was dragged out of the courtroom again, telling the jury, "You're all in prison. The only thing you judged is what they told you. You didn't judge nothing else."

The eight-man, four-woman Superior Court jury, which has been sequestered since the trial began July 23, reached the verdict on the penalty after only five hours and 20 minutes of deliberation.

Moves Mapped

Moscow (AP) — Soviet scientists use aircraft to map the movements of such fur bearing animals as beavers, sea lions and seals, the Tass news agency reported. It said the information was gathered for hunting as well as scientific purposes.

EVENTS IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Third parties, and fourth and fifth ones, for that matter, have come and gone on the American scene like the changing of the seasons of the year. Now and then they have been an influence of some importance upon the political scene but have seldom made a significant showing at the polls.

The unfortunate thing is that these third-party movements have seemed to have little impact upon the philosophy and actions of the two major national parties, the Democrats and Republicans. In an interview in The Lincoln Star yesterday, Robert Hirshfield discussed his efforts to get the Peace and Freedom party on the Nebraska ballot in 1972.

He spoke of the image the party has in much of this part of the country—an image stemming from the partly leader ship by militant black Eldridge Cleaver. But he reminded people that Dr. Benjamin Spock, Eugene McCarthy, Shirley Chisolm and Gore Vidal also support the party.

We assume that Hirshfield knows that adding those names to the support of the Peace and Freedom party still doesn't do much for the party's image in these parts. Those names may not be as feared as Cleaver's but they are held in equal disdain.

Hirshfield has no illusions about winning an election but he does hope to exert influence in the political arena. He spoke of being tired of the same offerings from both national parties.

He said: "We need men who are above politics; men who aren't owned by some corporation. We've got to change this rich man's election business."

We are not ready to support the Peace and Freedom party but we can agree with a lot of what Hirshfield says. Our political process was not operating at its finest, certainly, when it gave us four years ago Hubert Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon. And the system is not operating very well today.

The election of 1972 probably will not offer us much of a change from recent years. The GOP nominee, of course, will be President Nixon. The Democrats have a host of hopefuls at the moment but there is none who offers anything really different.

It was noted in the news last week that AFL-CIO President George Meany and the labor movement offered the only real alternative and challenge to President Nixon at this time. But Meany is not considered even a possible candidate.

Where do all the candidates come from? They come from the House and Senate and now and then from the ranks of the governors. Our political system is a system of inbreeding. You get in the system and then you conform to it. You perform all its duties, meet all its demands and slowly work yourself up in it.

But are there not outstanding men and women in the nation outside of the party? Of course there are, but they cannot crack the party disciplines that dictate a man from the system as the presidential candidate.

Thus, we will have in 1972, not a new face, but old faces talking about the same old problems and the same old ways of solving them. They will be talking about methods that have left the problems unsolved now for at least 25 years, since the end of World War II.

Nixon has tried, with governmental reform, welfare reform, revenue-sharing or block grants, etc., but he has gotten nowhere. He has failed, not just because of partisan politics, but because he is not strong enough at leadership and because his approaches have no special appeal.

The Democrats have opposed him partly for political reasons and partly because they don't have a lot of faith in many elements of his approach. Their alternatives, however, have really been no better and we see nothing on the horizon of real promise, nothing of imagination, nothing very creative or innovative.

What the two national parties need is a realization that there is considerable discontent in the land, seen among other ways in the coming and going of third parties. The major parties need new blood, new thinking and a broader base from which to choose their leadership.

'We Feel We've Maintained Balance In The Middle East'

Nixon Handles Foreign Affairs

The announcements weren't startling, at all, only an indication of the thoroughness with which President Nixon operates. Over the past week and through the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, the Western White House at San Clemente disclosed a series of presidential visits with allied leaders.

In mid-December Nixon will talk with French President Pompidou in the Azores. He will travel to Bermuda to meet British Prime Minister Heath Dec. 20-21. West Germany Chancellor Willy Brandt and the President will talk at the Florida White House at Key Biscayne Dec. 28th and 29th. Japanese Prime Minister Sato has been invtied for consultations at San Clemente in early January. Sandwiched in amongst the above will be meetings in the U.S. with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Israeli Premier Golda Meir.

The various consultations will precede the big summit meetings in Peking and Moscow later into the new year. Several items of mutual concern will be discussed but Nixon has two major objectives in mind: one, to try to cure international trade and monetary ills and, two, to assure America's allies that they are not on the outside looking in because of the U.S. overtures to China and the Soviet Union.

Nixon continues to play the foreign affairs game skillfully. With so much wrong in the world, the President is at least doing a number of things right, at least as far as a majority of Americans are concerned.

The latest Harris survey shows that Nixon's overall standing with the public has now reached 53% positive and 46% negative. This is up two points since late September. Although there are some specific foreign policy areas where the public by and large feels that Nixon is not doing as good a job as possible, the Harris poll says that the public is prepared to believe that Nixon is making progress in "working for peace in the world."

Foreign affairs continues to be the President's forte.

Looking To Adjournment

"Don't pack your bags yet," Senate Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia might be indulging in some wishful thinking over the proposed Saturday target date for adjournment.

Back Monday from a Thanksgiving break, the Senate and the House still face a fairly full agenda before the first session of the 92nd Congress calls it quits.

The Senate will begin to debate President Nixon's nomination of Dr. Earl Butz to be secretary of Agriculture. No one really expects Butz to be rejected, but opponents could make the going rough for awhile. Then the upper house is scheduled to consider the nominations of Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William Rehnquist to the U.S. Supreme Court, with Powell an acknowledged shoo-in but Rehnquist expected to field some last minute sniping from the liberal element that successfully sidetracked the nominations of Haynsworth and Carswell.

The Senate has already passed a foreign aid bill, some $800 million less than the House approved but temporary foreign aid spending authority has been extended only until Dec. 8 and final agreement has to be reached on the issue this session.

The tax cut bill, which includes the controversial amendment providing for taxpayer-financing of presidential election campaigns, might be the issue that really forces Congress into over-time. President Nixon said Monday he will veto the measure if "budget-busting Senate amendments" or the campaign-reform provision — which has not as yet been voted on by the House — are included in the final package.

Many congressional leaders feel that tax cut arguments can be worked out in conference, but if the final compromise version contains the campaign financing plan, Congress could not re-write a new tax bill in light of a Nixon veto this session.

Thus Congress comes to the end of another session with a backlog of work piled up. It's to be expected. If the calander were clear the U.S. would have reached Utopia or Congress would have been dissolved. We aren't likely to see either.

Letters To The Editor

Brevity in letters is requested but length in itself will have no bearing on publication. Writers are advised that needless details and repetitious matter will be edited out of letters. Too frequent contributions from one person on the same subject may be rejected. All letters must be accompanied by writer's true name but may be submitted for publication under a pen name or initials. However, letters will be printed under a pen name or initials at the editor's discretion.

Different Person

The "Kathryn M. Gross" whose name appeared in the October 5 Star Daily Record for petit larceny is not the same person as my wife, Katherine.

Even though this appeared in the paper more than seven weeks ago, we still hear comments about my wife's shoplifting. I want to make a public statement that this was someone else.

Obscene Language

Lincoln, Star

The Star's comic strip "Laff-A-Day," Saturday, Nov. 27, showing a middle-eaged gentleman watching television and telling his wife, "I must have eaten a pound of soap for using those words as a boy," certainly hits the nail squarely on the head and also touches on a sore spot of mine.

I own and operate a set of short-range two-way radios for personal use. One in each car and one in our home. We can communicate between the cars, or between either car and the house, with a normal range of 10 to 15 miles.

Our equipment comes under the jurisdiction of the Federal Communications Commission and we must have license and call letters, etc. Just as does a commercial broadcasting station or television station.

Under the rules set forth by the FCC for our equipment, Volume VI, Part 95, Subpart D, Paragraph 95:83: "Prohibited Uses, (a) A citizen's radio station shall not be used: (3) for the transmission of communications containing obscene, indecent or profane words, language or meanings."

FCC bulletin 1001 (a) goes a little further. "You should remember you are sharing the airwaves with others. Although you do not broadcast to the general public, still the channels are shared with other users, and other people may be listening and find it offensive. If you use obscene, indecent or profane langage on CB, you are not only breaking FCC rules but also violating the federal law. Those who break this law may be punished by a fine up to $10,000, by imprisonment, or both. Also, such violation may result in revocation of your station license."

I often wonder if this could be the same Federal Communications Commission that has jurisdiction over nationwide coast-to-coast televsion?

Nixon And Labor

Burwell, Neb.

In regard to the behavior of AFL-CIO members showing disrespect for Nixon, I hasten to remind the Nixon clique that Nixon has shown disrespect for labor. And as for LBJ and JFK, there is a difference between presidents. I see Nixon as an enemy of labor and I have no confidence in him. I have "followed" him through several years and yet have no confidence in him. It seems that he is going all-out to grab dictatorial power. If he had enough power, I'm sure he would demand a throne.

The White House insinuated that the AFL-CIO insulted the office of the presidency. It seems to me that this sort of jargon is just the reverse—that is, Nixon is insulting the office of the presidency.

I admired Nixon when he announced the freeze, but when I see the gist of it—favoring big money—I could see that he was the same old Nixon—all for the big money element.

L. A. GOOCHEY

New Voters

Lincoln, Neb.

The Star printed a letter on Nov. 24 that I feel should not go unchallenged.

Mr. C. V. Keller was alarmed that the voter registration at U.N.L. showed a more than two-to-one registration of Democrats over Republicans. He tried to suggest the Presidents Kennedy and Johnson got us into the Vietnam war and that President Nixon is getting us out. He should be reminded that President Eisenhower committed us to the defense of South Vietnam 17 years ago. Further, Mr. Nixon may have plans for getting us out, but when—in 10 years? In 20 years.?

I don't believe that today's young people, Democrat or Republican would blindly vote a straight ticket.

All Mr. Keller talked of was war. These new voters have a vast social conscience that hasn't been appeased by the present administration.

I hope the new voters get the change so desperately needed in this country. It makes no difference who brings it about, be he Democrat or Republican.

DOUGLAS GEMMELL

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.

To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 13, has diabetes and is under monthly supervision by a specialist in the disease. It is well controlled, but as usual there are families and friends who think they know more about it than the doctor. Would you discuss: A girl who has not menstruated, yet is often difficult to control in diabetes until after she has. Why is it that grandparents refuse to discuss the disease, or even whether there is any in the family? We are still at a loss to find any relative on either side who ever had it. One of my children was told in school that my daughter had to inherit it from some other female in the family, and could not inherit it from a male. Mrs. Y. Y. Y.

Why people refuse to accept fact is not easy to explain. All I can say is that it happens with diseases other than diabetes: epilepsy, cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy. Among older people, some refuse to admit that there's such a thing as cancer. It's a superstititous hangover, I suspect, from the days when people were inclined to blame anything bad on something a person "must have done to be punished." Nonsense, of course, but there it is.

Diabetes is often difficult to control during puberty because the glandular system is in a turmoil with the approach of menstruation and other aspects of maturity. Once you've weathered that growing-up time and the body's functions have stabilized, the diabetes usually is much easier to control.

The young diabetic, however, has to learn how to meet other problems. How, for example, to cope with the question of NOT having a hamburger when the rest of the crowd decides to. After all, there is no outward, visible sign of diabetes. You can't tell a person has it by looking at him. How does the youngster explain being "different" without a long explanation? It takes some doing! Your dietitian can explain what snacks are permissible on such occasions so that your daughter does not have to appear different.

As to heredity, somebody once said that a diabetic plum could be found in most family trees. Some ancestor could have had mild diabetes that never was recognized. Maybe several. It's nobody's "fault."

Diabetes can be inherited from either parent, and is far more likely when the trait exists on both sides. It is not, like some characteristics, a sex-linked one.

So stick to your guns. Try gradually to educate your friends and relatives.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please let me add just one more to your list of causes of hot burning feet. Nylon stockings! Since I started wearing cotton-soled nylons, no more hot feet—E.L.N.

Thank you. It won't solve all cases, but it's something worth trying.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is wrong when one cannot get an X-ray picture of the gall bladder? I had four, and none of them took. I have belching and sickish feelings sometimes. Does it appear to you that I should have my gall bladder out? I feel well generally, and cannot see the need of it myself.—M.G.H.

X-rays of the gall bladder are achieved by giving the patient a substance which, under normal circumstances, will be carried to the gall bladder to make it visible.

When films do not show the gall bladder, it is because the gall bladder is not functioning; that is, for one reason or another, the stustance given does not flow into the gall bladder. It is blocked in some manner.

A non-functioning gall bladder is a potential cause of future trouble—and obviously you have had sufficient synptons to send you to the doctor already.

It's up to you to decide whether you want the operation or don't. (Evidently your doctor has recommended it.) If you don't have it, you MAY get along all right. But you may not. If you don't have the operation, and the gall bladder causes serious trouble later on, then you'll have lost the gamble.

I think the percentages are in your favor to follow your doctor's advice.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When my year-old daughter cries hard, she holds her breath until she passes out. My husband and I have an argument every time she does this. He says it won't harm her. I have always heard that lack of oxygen would hurt her brain and maybe her heart. Would you clear this up for us?—S.T.

Where this breath-holding trick comes from, nobody exactly knows, but it is a reliable way of scaring parents half to death.

However, there is no significant lack of oxygen to ether the brain or the heart. The reason: as soon as the child loses consciousness, he automatically begins breathing again, so the interruption in oxygen actually is very brief.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are the symptoms of breast cancer I am 16 and would like to know at what age women acquire breast cancer.—C.Q.

Breast cancer, if at all, usually occurs after 40, so I wouldn't do much worrying about it at your age. For future reference, however, you should know what to look for.

The important thing is to be alert for any painless lump in the breast. Such a lump isn't necessarily cancer, of course. But any such lump should be investigated by your physician.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what my doctor called carpal tunnel syndrome. What is the treatment? Is it cancerous?—M.M.

The carpal tunnel is a passageway in the wrist through which nerves pass. If because of injury, infection, etc., there is insufficient space, you can encounter the pain or lameness that you are having. It is NOT cancerous. If it is troublesome enough to warrant it, surgery is the treatment.

Dr. Thosteson is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses them in his column, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Transplanting Of Hearts Not Overly Successful

WASHINGTON — Skepticism has replaced the excitement that greeted the world's first human heart transplant operation four years ago. That first flush of enthusiasm ushered in the so-called "transplant year" of 1968, during which 191 such operations were performed. In contrast, there have been only 15 so far in 1971.

Heart transplants have lost their appeal because of the low rate of survival among transplant patients. According to the National Heart and Lung Institute, 178 persons have received new hearts through surgery to date. Of these, only 29 are still alive. The longest-lived survivor is Louis B. Russell Jr., an industrial arts teacher from Indianapolis, who had his operation Aug. 24, 1968.

From a purely surgical standpoint, the transfer of one person's heart into another's body is described as relatively uncomplicated. The principal reason why so many transplant patients die soon after surgery is that their new hearts are rejected as alien tissue by their bodies. Dr. Norman E. Shumway of Stanford University predicts that "even 10 years from now when we work out the key problems facing us like immune reaction (that is, rejection), I suspect the operation will still be only about two-thirds successful.

Surgery less drastic and hazardous than a transplant can save the lives of many persons with severe heart disease. One operation that has proved effective in many such cases is called a saphenous vein bypass. The surgeon

Meanwhile, medical technology is providing ever more sophisticated mechanical devices to aid those with chronic heart trouble. The battery-operated pacemaker, which regulates the beat of a diseased heart, lasts only about 18 months before it must be replaced. But now an atomic-powered pacemaker has been developed. Operating on a power supply of 150 milligrams of plutonium 238, it is capable of functioning for 10 years.

Work on development of an artificial heart continues also. A significant step in this direction was taken last Aug. 11, when a plastic, air-driven pump was inplanted in 63-year-old Haskell Shanks in Detroit.

Progress in salvaging and repairing hearts comes at a time when heart disease appears to be increasing and to be affecting more young people than formerly. An Army study of soldiers killed in Vietnam found that as many as 30% of those between 18 and 22 years of age "showed significant signs of hardening of the arteries." Although the men seemed healthy when alive, the condition of their arteries would have made them prone to heart attacks later in life.

More than half of all deaths in America each year are caused by cardiovascular diseases—ailments of the heart and its blood vessels. The rate of cardiovascular disease deaths in the United States far exceeds that of any other country. Americans would be less susceptible if they would eat more sensibly, give up smoking, and exercise regularly.

Meanwhile, medical the patient's leg and implants it in his coronary arteries to carry blood around an obstruction. Dr. Michael E. DeBakey says that one-third of all transplant patients to date could have had bypass operations instead.

Tunnel Under English Channel Long Discussed; Prime Minister, Engineers Have Varying Views

LONDON—The oldest symbol of a link between Britain and continental Europe is that of a tunnel under the English Channel. Strangely enough, although this was already discussed more than a century and a half ago, it may prove one of the last Pan-European projects realized—despite the fact that the United Kingdom is well on its way to Common Market membership.

The English, still tending to be insular in their traditions, even today remain less enthusiastic about a tunnel than the French. President Pompidou and Foreign Minister Schumann are in the van of those who would like to ratify the growth of the European Community by building a direct road between the continent and the British Isles.

Prime Minister Heath is also happy about the idea; but none of the specific engineering designs so far adduced suit his highly pragmatic hopes. The prime minister, when not living in his official residences of 10 Downing Street or Chequers, has a home so near the geographic area of a tunnel that he has his own very special views.

His house is only about 12 miles from where the entrance would be on the British side. Therefore he has the understandable belief that what should be constructed is the sort of subchannel tube that would allow him on the spur of the moment to get into his car and drive to France for dinner.

But that, unfortunately for him, is not the kind of scheme being presented by the experts. They favor a complicated system that would require transport of cars between Britain and France on trains. This would mean making travel arrangements days if not weeks ahead. He would like a big wide tunnel through which cars could easily drive in both directions with a minimum of complication.

If Heath can't have that—which is a pity because he has been the foremost champion of British admission to political and economic Europe—he would settle for a bridge above the channel. Yet here again the experts have been warning that this is exceedingly difficult as well as risky because of storms and crowded shipping lanes.

Therefore, the prime minister seems ready to settle for a combination, recognizing that the channel is relatively shallow along both the British and French shores but contains a trough in the middle, he would like to study the possibility of a short tunnel linked by two bridges, one on each side.

Unfortunately the engineers don't seem in a mood to produce this kind of project. So, despite his gustatorial eagerness to pave a road to French restaurants and also despite the enthusiasm of his good friend, Pompidou, the scheme seems far from imminent.

It is odd that the ancient idea of a channel tunnel hasn't received a more evident fillip since Parliament voted to join the Common Market. The thought of a tunnel has been kicking around since the 18th century. Indeed, in Napoleon's time the London press was publishing drawings of how such a tunnel, if constructed, could help French armies overrun England.

Prime Minister Gladstone's government investigated the prospect in 1883 and a joint parliamentary committee reviewed its "expediency."

The proposal was rejected after the Duke of Cambridge, commander in chief of the army, testified that there was risk of invasion if a tunnel were constructed "and therefore I think you ought to run no risk."

Although the scheme was dropped, the chairman of the channel tunnel company prophecized 88 years ago: "I am nearly certain that this tunnel will be made sooner or later." The probability is that he will in the end be proven right but the time elapsed is longer than anyone would have foreseen.

It seems obvious in these days of wholly different strategic concepts and growing unity among Common Market members—now about to include Britain—that some kind of road between the United Kingdom and the continent must be built.

Whether this will run under or over the channel or combine the features of both routes cannot be foreseen. Nor is it likely that the prime minister will soon be described by his French admirers as the man who came to dinner—at least in the informal sense he fancies.

Boy, Girl Dorms Criticized

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: "Are college officials nuts? My husband and I just visited our grandson at college and were shocked by the living arrangements. Boys and girls now live in the same dorms and even on the same floors—and even use the same bathrooms! We dropped by early in the morning and boys and girls alike were wandering around the corridor in various stages of undress. When I went to college we'd never dream of letting both sexes live in the same dorm."

Answer: Maybe you didn't dream about it, but I'll bet lots of boys did. College officials today take the view that residential segregation by sex, race or creed just isn't democratic. They also take a realistic view which claims that by the time you're in college you know the difference between right and wrong and will act accordingly. They also point out there's nothing young people can do in a dorm that they can't do in the back seat of a parked car. Boys can't have girls as roommates yet in college, but who knows what the next decade will bring.

Question: "You quoted someone recently who was aghast at home repair costs. Well, so am I. My house hadn't been painted for 12 years so I phoned the man who did it last time. I'm a little deaf but understood him to say it would cost $800 to give it two coats, which was about what it cost last time, so I told him to go ahead. When the bill came later it turned out to be $1,800. I screamed and protested but he said that was what he quoted me and that costs had more than doubled the past dozen years. Is this possible?"

Answer: Yes, and then some. Elders who are living on fixed incomes face a real bind when endeavoring to make home improvements. It's never wise to accept a quoted price over the phone and order major work done. To avoid misunderstandings always ask for written quotations.

Question: "I get sick and tired of all these articles on how older people should work and keep busy. I maintain all people are born different—some full of ambition and some lazy. I'm in the latter category and now that I've got my social security of $128 monthly plus some income from savings, nobody's going to push me back to the grindstone."

Answer: That's your privilege. Elders who really enjoy leisure should sit back and savor it. They've served their time at the grindstone and are entitled to take it easy. But many elders find that leisure bores them to death. These are the folks who should be prodded back to work.

Question: "I'm 74, living alone, and scared to death I may fall or become ill and unable to summon help. What's the best precaution?"

Answer: Work out an arrangement with a friend under which you exchange calls at least once a day. Or ask officials in your church or Golden Age Club to help you locate someone to call you daily. It's very important that elders who live alone have someone checking daily on their well-being.

Omaha Bar Operator's Suit Challenges Age Check Law

An Omaha lounge operator filed a suit in Lancaster District Court Monday challenging the constitutionality of state law which requires liquor license holders to check the ages of persons to whom they sell or serve liquor.

Frank Paladino, who operates the Hideaway Lounge in Omaha, also asks the court to reverse a 14-day suspension the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission issued against his operation for alleged violation of the law.

According to the petition, the plaintiff contends that the Nov. 2 Lquior Commission order was issued on evidence which was inadequate to sustain a finding and the penalty is arbitrary and capricious.

In challenging the constitutionality of the law, Paladino contends that the law makes the licensee an insurer of the age of any person to whom he sells or gives a drink of alcoholic liquor on the premises without regard to the licensee's intent and precautions he may have taken to ascertain the age of minors.

He alleges that the evidence presented to the commission showed his operation used due diligence to determine the age of minors in that three pieces of identification including a birth certificate were checked on each minor.

Paladino claims that the law does not take into consideration the documents and proof of age submitted by minors which include such generally-relied upon identification as birth certificates, draft cards, driver's licenses and school identification.

Four Receive 75-Day Sentences In Marijuana Case

Four persons charged with felony offenses of being in possession of the controlled substance, marijuana, have been sentenced to 75 days each in jail.

The four, all of Mexico, were among several arrested in connection with the Aug. 30 discovery of an alleged marijuana processing operation on a farm southeast of Lincoln.

Sentenced were Juan Gonzales Cobian, 28, of Zacatecos, Mexico; Refugio Vega Zapata, 18, Mexicali, Mexico; Daniel Rubalcava Sanchez, 24, of Mexico City, and Bidal Verdegco Virruletta, 57, of Mexicali, Mexico.

According to officials at the time of the incident, some $50,000 worth of marijuana was confiscated.

Murphy And Stull Complete Filing For Unicam In 17th, 49th Districts

Also completing filing procedures was Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, who is seeking re-election to the 49th District seat in the Unicameral.

AEC Okays Continued Work On State N-Plants

Washington (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Monday it will permit construction to continue at two nuclear power plants in Nebraska pending completion of an environmental impact study.

The AEC said construltion may continue on the Cooper Nuclear Sation near Brownville and United No. 1 of the Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Power Station northwest of Omaha.

Similar permission was granted last week for continued work on nuclear plants in Connecticut and Arkansas. The AEC said similar orders are expected to permit continued operations at another 20 to 25 plants around the country.

The AEC said permitting the projects to continue would not preclude it from issuing modification or termination orders later, if environmental studies show excessive potential damage.

The commission said any damage resulting from continued operations would be more than offset by economic harm if a temporary halt were called.

Persons opposed to continuing the projects may request an AEC hearing.

Thone said the Wednesday meeting would be a followup to the earlier one. He also said a representative of his office would attend the session.

RIGHT NOW, THERE ARE MORE REASONS TO BUY A CAR FROM AMERICAN MOTORS THAN ANYBODY ELSE IN THE BUSINESS.

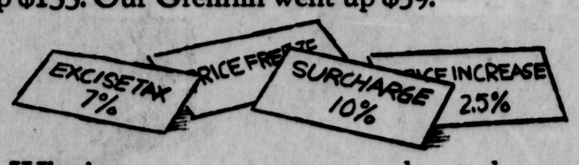
PRICE

Since the Price Freeze ended, you've been hearing all kinds of talk about car prices going up.

A lot of them already have.

Because of surcharges, the price of the VW Beetle has gone up $210; the 2-door Toyota Corolla 1600, $253; the 2-door Datsun 510, $253, and the 2-door Chrysler Colt, $240.*

And it's not just imports. Ford's Pinto has gone up $133. Our Gremlin went up $59.*



What's more, every company that makes cars in America has asked permission to raise prices on all their cars.

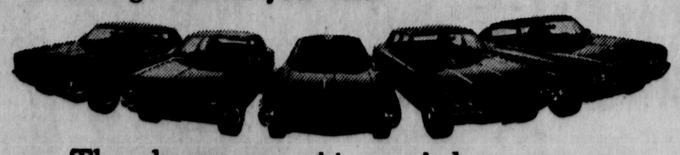
So, it won't be long before any car you buy will cost more.

But American Motors dealers still have plenty of 1972 models they bought at "Freeze Prices."

So, if you buy a car from us now, you can save yourself a lot of money.

SELECTION

Because of the price situation, a lot of car dealers don't have many cars on hand. So you may not be able to get the car you want.



The chances are, this won't happen at your American Motors dealer.

Since he's been keeping his stocks up, he'll probably have the make and model you want.

Even if he doesn't, we have a good supply of cars on hand. So we'll probably be able to deliver exactly the car you want faster than any of our competitors.

BUYER PROTECTION PLAN

There's more to buying a car than just price and style. When you buy a '72 from us, you get American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

You get a car that's been road-tested and checked over so thoroughly that we make this promise: If anything goes wrong, and it's our fault, we'll fix it. Free.

And, if we have to keep it overnight to fix it, over 1900 dealers will loan you a car. Free.

You also get a name and toll-free number to call in Detroit if you have a problem.

Nobody else in the business does all this for you after you buy a car.

See your American Motors dealer now.

All things considered, there never was a better time to buy a car from him.

American Motors

*These price increases are based on a comparison of manufacturer's suggested retail prices for the models described. Federal Taxes included, state and local taxes, destination charges and options extra. Import prices are P.O.E. Information based on the Wall Street Journal, Oct. 14, 1971; Automotive News, Nov. 1, 1971 and manufacturer's announcements.

Environmentalists Planning Attack On Interstate System

Washington (AP) — Environmental Defense Fund, a citizens' group whose lawsuits stalled the Alaska pipeline and jeopardized DDT, is going after Interstate highway construction next.

EDF has asked Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe to prepare a wide-ranging environmental-impact statement before he sends Congress, as required by next Jan. 1, his recommendation for apportioning the federal $5-billion-a-year highway-aid program.

Interviewed Monday, EDF lawyer John Hellegers said the absence or inadequacy of such a statement would make a lawsuit against the Transportation Department by EDF a distinct possibility.

Such a suit, Hellegers said, could test for the first time the extent to which the legislative process is covered by the requirement of environmental-impact statements under the 1969 national environmental policy act (NEPA).

A Transportation Department spokesman said Monday Volpe had not yet received the EDF letter and had no immediate comment.

Hellegers said EDF lawyers are considering whether a court could enjoin the executive branch from implementing legislation which was adpoted in the absence of an adequate impact statement; that is, whether a court could block the highway funds.

In a letter to Volpe on Nov. 24, Hellegers said the environmental statements prepared on individual highway projects do not meet the need for a broad consideration of what the federal highway program is doing to the nation.

"Few, if any, federal programs have had as significant an environmental impact as the Interstate highway system," he wrote. "Some observers also view the system as the classic example of a program whose environmental costs went uncalculated before the decision was made to build it, and became evident only after the fact."

"The pattern of leaping first and looking later, of course, was exactly what NEPA was intended to put a stop to," he added.

The letter urged Volpe to assess:

—"The downtown decay and suburban sprawl which result from building highways in and around cities . . . the tendency of highways to draw commerce, jobs, population and tax base away from central cities . . . the erosion of municipal services and amenities that companies this shift.

—"The demands which continued highway building, and continued massive reliance on the private automobile, will place on our oil supply" and the results in increased drilling, oil spills, and strip-mining of coal as oil reserves dwindle.

—"The air pollution that can be expected to result from more highways and more cars . . . Whether further highway building . . . is consistent with meeting air quality standards."

"—The massive toll that reliance on the private automobile takes in terms of death and severe injury," compared with "alternative forms of transportation, such as rail trasit."

Supreme Court Decision Said Not Retroactive

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court has been told that a U.S. Supreme Court decision which declared void the state's uninsured motorist law was not retroactive.

The statement was made by the State Justice Dept. in a brief filed with the high court on an appeal from a Richardson County district court decision.

The district court upheld the State Motor Vehicle Dept.'s decision to suspend a driver's license belonging to Melvin L. Campbell of Falls City.

"The Supreme Court . . . did not say the decision was retroactive and it is submitted that if that court intended it to be it would have done so," the justice department said.

Suit To Halt Trip To Hawaii Is Postponed Until Dec. 22

Plattsmouth (AP) — A hearing on a taxpayer's suit seeking to prevent Plattsmouth Mayor James McMillian from using public funds to attend the convention of the National League of Cities in Hawaii has been postponed until 1:30 p.m. Dec. 22, a Cass County District Court spokesman said Monday.

The hearing originally had been set for 1:30 p.m. Monday.

The District Court spokesman said the delay was "by agreement of counsel representing both parties." The suit had been filed by Dale Bowman, former Plattsmouth mayor. It attacked a City Council motion which, it said, permitted Mr. and Mrs. McMillian to attend the convention at city expense.

The suit asked the court to find the trip "outside the scope of city functions."

McMillian's attorney, Paul Fauquet, said the delay was agreed upon because "it would have been impossible for the mayor to be present in court Monday."

Mayor McMillian said when the suit was filed that he and his wife planned to go to Hawaii regardless of the outcome of the suit. He said then that he did not plan to attend the University of Nebraska-Hawaii football game scheduled Saturday.

The convention, now in progress in Honolulu, continues through Wednesday.

Challenge Grant To Be Discussed

The executive committee of the Lincoln Foundation will meet Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. to discuss a proposal from Lincoln Community Services for use of a $12,000 "challenge" grant offered by the foundation.

Also on the agenda of the meeting, set for the Lincoln Center Building, is a discussion of proposed alterations in the building.

Walls Is Named Deputy Auditor

Francis Walls was named Monday as deputy state auditor and uniform budget director by state Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson.

Walls replaces P. Merle Humphries, who died last week.

Walls has worked for the auditor's office since 1957.

A blue sky morning at Acapulco. The milk run jet to Mexico City, on climbing power, swings over the long sand beach. (The saddle horses for rent hardly raise their heads. As sophisticated about jets as the riders from the posh hotels.)

Breakfast comes up to the balcony: Huevos rancheros—eggs ranch style. Sunny side up on a tortilla. Sprinkled with hot sauce and lime juice. It's an eye opener.

In the breezy bar, last night's Life of the Party is opening his eyes with a coco loco. A big splash of Mexican rum in a fresh coconut half. Buenos dias, Senor!

The new Acapulco Princess has opened—777 plush room built into a replica of a Mayan pyramid temple. (Looks like the big one at Tikal.; If the ancient Mayans could see us now, they'd turn in their basketball suits.

(The Mayans played basketball. Winners got to kill the losers. You can't beat that for sportsmanship.)

☆ ☆ ☆

Behind us are the green Guerrero hills. Not so peaceful as they look.

"There's always some shooting in Guerrero," says the American who lives here. "The people from Guerrero are much like the old Wild West Cowboys of America.

"There are towns back there that are practically ruled by gunmen—you have to be handy with a pistol just to run for mayor.

"A Supreme Court judge was shot in a hotel a little while ago. A Mexico City bus was held up by men on horseback! Just rode out of the hills and held it up."

At Chilpancingo on the road to Mexico City, the rector of the state university has been kidnapped.

☆ ☆ ☆

None of this affects the jet set fringe of beach. And few people get off the beach farther than the Costera. The long beach road follows the curve of the blue bay. Flowery. Divided by a strip of trees. Lined with high-rise hotels. Elegant shops. Expensive restaurants.

The American said: "Get off the Costera a few miles, and you'll see a different Mexico."

☆ ☆ ☆

I did that a few years ago. Drove back on a gravel road on the side of the green mountains. So high we were in clouds and pine trees. The road dropped off sharply. You could look down and see sugar cane at the bottom.

The town is Ixcateopan. And in the old, old church from Spanish days they had the bones of Cuauhtemoc. The last Aztec emperor.

Or so they say. Cortez captured him and tortured him, looking for lost Axtec gold.

At last on a hot and angry day, he hanged him.

The legend is that Indians brought the body back to Ixcateopan. His birthplace.

☆ ☆ ☆

They are Indian towns. The people speak an Indian dialect. (The government puts in schools. The children learn Spanish.)

They are short and squat, wearing rough, white cotton pajama-like coats and pants. Leather sandals. The tire tread soles print "Goodyear" in the dust.

These are the people Zapata raised for the revolution. Tough, enduring guerrilla cavalrymen. On ruined, deserted hacienda walls, you can see the fire scars they left behind.

Why is Richman Gordman telling you about the day after Christmas now??

Why? Because we think this is the right time. Now . . . before you shop to consider the gifts that may not be just right the day after Christmas. What we have to say is actually very simple. If anything from Richman Gordman for Christmas misses the mark, we'll cheerfully exchange it without fuss or formalities.

So relax. Stop wondering what-to-give whom and get on with the shopping. No need to worry whether Uncle Joe grew an inch around his middle or if Cousin Sally still loves blue or whether your sister-in-law already has a drawer full of blouses. You buy what you think is right. Buy at Richman Gordman and you get built-in mistake insurance since if you do make a mistake (don't we all once in a while) you can be sure Richman Gordman will make it right. As far as we are concerned, Christmas is never over 'til every one who gets a gift from Richman Gordman is completely happy with it!

This is certainly good reason for doing all your Christmas shopping at Richman Gordman. There are lots of others—so take your list in hand and wander around Richman Gordman. Do it now, because by now you should have one quarter of your Christmas shopping done since there is less than 4 weeks 'til Christmas. There's no time for dilly-dallying . . . Only Action!

Merry Christmas Shopping at Richman Gordman and (if necessary) Many Happy Returns

Residents Oppose Sewer Plan

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday in a brief session heard opposition from area residents for a proposed sanitary sewer in their neighborhood.

An eight-inch sewer is proposed in Wilber St. (also known as Gladstone) from 150 feet west of Harrison to Herbert.

One resident, Jack Standley, of 3600 Gladstone, said, "We don't have any city improvements out there at this time — such as lighting and fire hydrants."

He added that many of the residents have invested money in septic tanks and at this time do not want to pay additional taxes for the sewer.

Public hearing on the matter will be continued at next Monday's meeting.

In other action, the council stalled on a 3-1 vote two applications for a change of zone. Henry Hendrickson asked for a change of zone from B Two Family to C Multiple on property located on the east side of 23rd St. south of Holdrege. In addition, Richard Reine has applied for a change of zone from B Two Family to C Multiple Dwelling on property located at the northwest corner of 53rd and Cooper Sts.

Both items will be carried on next Monday's agenda until four votes are cast either for or against the applicatons.

Only four of the seven council members were present Monday with councilmen Steve Cook, Merle Hale and Fred "Bob" Sikyta attending the League of Municipalities convention in Hawaii.

Other action:

Resolutions

—Directed the City Clerk to serve written notice on the Brothers Three, Inc., doing business as the High Chaparral located at Lincoln Air Park West, to show cause why it's retail liquor license should not be revoked after public hearing on Dec. 13.

—Ordered constructed Sewer District 893, located in 47th St. from Starr north approximately 172 feet to the centerline of the east-west alley and in the east-west alley from 46th to 47th Sts.

—Ordered constructed in Water District 840, a water main in Salem Ave. from Milton to 27th St.

—Ordered constructed in Water District 841, a water main in Superior from 14th St. to Milton.

Ordinances, First Reading

—Defining the corporate limits of the City of Lincoln; annexing land west of Interstate 180 park and including a portion of the property occupied by Ace Hardware Co., located generally between Adams and Fairfield, west of 3rd St. (Alternate No. 1)

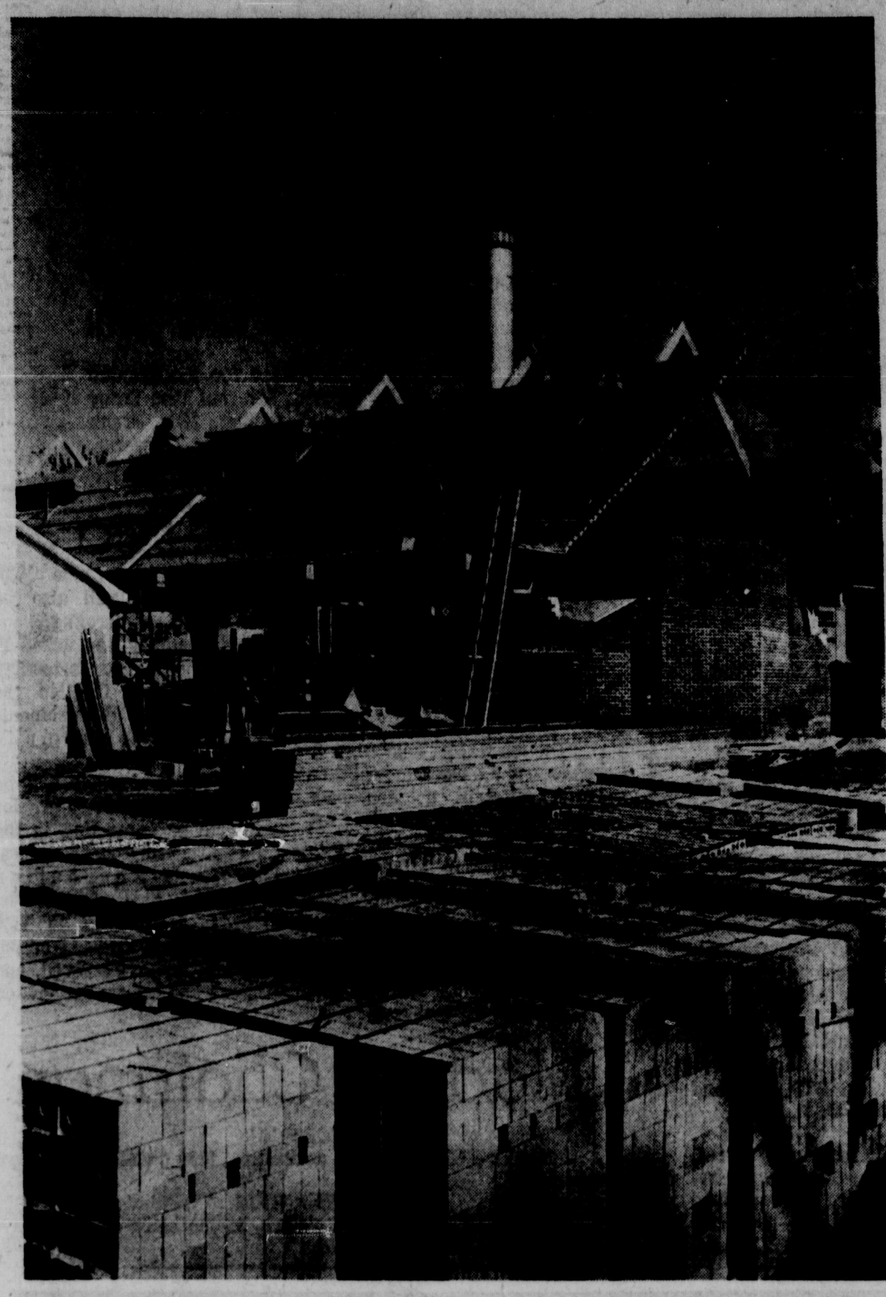
—Defining the corporate limits of the City of Lincoln; annexing land west of Interstate 180 park and including a portion of the property occupied by Ace Hardware Co., located generally between Adams to Superior west of 3rd St. (Alternate No. 2)

Miscellaneous Business

—Approved paving District 2168 on 12th St. between the north curb line of Arapahoe and south curb line of High.

—Placed on pending until Dec. 13 Special Permit 576, the application of Joe Hampton to construct and use an off-street parking lot in vicinity of Newton between 56th and 57th St.

—Approved the report of City-County Planning Commission to the platter, Wayne Kubert, regarding the preliminary subdivision and final plat of Debbie's Subdivision.



CLAY CENTER CHURCH WORK PROGRESSING

With a target completion date of next July, the new $99,000 edifice of United Church of Christ at Clay Center at this point is actually ahead of schedule. It replaces an old structure, the original portion at least 85 years old, which was razed in August. According to the Rev. Carl Kemper, pastor, the membership had been a union of Congregationalists and Methodists for 26 years until becoming UCC-affiliated in 1970. (Star Staff Photo)

Teachers Scarce

Bonn — West Germany will have a shortage of 30,000 mathematics and science teachers by 1980 because of dropping university enrollments in these areas.

BRUNO FARMER USES MULES ON SMALL PLOT

This team of mules plays a vital role on the Tom Kucera farm near Bruno. Kucera, 70, is atop a wagonload of corn from a five-acre plot where the mules were used in preparing the ground, planting the seed, cultivating and picking the corn. Kucera says picking corn by hand is kind of a hobby for him. The veteran farmer is a lifetime Butler County resident and has lived in the Bruno community 26 years. In the past he has owned several teams of horses but now owns only this team of mules. (Photo Special to The Star)

Strike At Hastings Telephone Office Called Off After Only Three Hours

Hastings (AP) — A walkout by 10 women telephone operators at the Hastings office of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. was short-lived.

The women notified company officials about 1:40 p.m. Sunday they were walking out and did so about 2 p.m. After a meeting, they returned to work about 5 p.m.

The women claimed the company engaged in "unfair working practices" and the union to which they belong, the Communications Workers of America, was "unfair in scheduling girls."

Darrell Joynt, chief test man at Hastings, said union and company representatives met to iron out the difficulties. Supervisory personnel and a few operators who didn't walk out maintained service.

A couple of men joined the women in picketing the office. Joynt said at one time Sunday there were about 15 persons picketing in front of the building.

Joynt had called it a wildcat strike.

A telephone union representative who declined to be named said the operators had filed four written grievances with the company which had not been acted upon. Three dealt with scheduling and a fourth with the complaint that the company would not recognize the operators' elected spokesman.

Favoritism and violation of contract provisions were cited as part of the reason for the walkout.

Company spokesmen had no further comment.

Police Say Fit Of Coughing May Have Caused Tumble

Omaha (AP) — Police said they believe a man who fell 15 stories from his apartment apparently tumbled from a balcony during a fit of coughing early Monday.

The victim, Joseph M. Fontanini, 23, was listed in serious condition Monday with head and internal injuries and multiple fractures after the 120 foot fall.

Woman, 66, Injured In Hospital Fire

Omaha (AP) — A 66-year-old woman was critically burned in a fire in her room at Bergan Mercy Hospital Monday, a hospital spokesman said.

Mrs. Gretchen M. Lindeman of Omaha received burns over 35% of her body when an over-the-bed table caught fire and ignited her clothing, a spokesman said.

Battalion Chief Donald Mills, head of the arson investigation bureau, said the fire started in a plastic drawer in the table. Mills said he believed Mrs. Lindeman ignited a book of matches when she was trying to light a cigarette and apparently dropped the matchbook in the drawer. Mills said nurses put out the fire.

He said Mrs. Lindeman as in the hospital recovering from a stroke which had left her slightly paralyzed.

Accused Kidnaper Is Hospitalized With Gunshot Wounds In The Leg

Council Bluffs, Iowa (AP) — A 23-year-old Omaha man, booked on suspicion of kidnaping, attempted murder and attempted rape, was reported in fair condition at Mercy Hospital here Monday with two gunshot wounds in the left leg.

Police identifed the man as Dennis Smith.

He is suspected of abducting a Council Bluffs man and woman early Sunday, forcing the woman into unnatural sex acts and shooting at a police officer.

Police reports say a 26-year-old man, and a 24-year-old woman were parked in Council Bluffs about 2:30 a.m. Sunday when a man wearing a nylon-stocking mask, pointing a pistol, forced his way into the car.

The assailant bound the man with rope, forced him into the rear seat and drove the car around the block, the reports say.

The assailant then forced the woman into unnatural sex acts and drove the car about eight blocks to her home, police said. There the assailant put the man into the trunk of the car and took the woman into the house, awakening the three occupants.

Meanwhile, police reports say, the man in the trunk untied his hands, got out of the unlocked trunk and went to a nearby house to summon police.

Police arrived and surrounded the house. The assailant ran out the back door, exchanged several shots with Patrolman Ray Lieber and fled on foot, plice said.

The assailant was captured by Patrolman Bernie Kremer after a man yelled to passing police that a man was hiding in shrubbery.

Smith was identified as a Union Pacific Railroad clerk.

A Soon-To-Be Bride Is An Honoree

Irving, Tex., is quite a distance from Lincoln, Neb., but not too far away for Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stilwell and their daughters, Miss Ginger Stilwell, Miss Kandy Stilwell and Miss Polly Kay Stilwell.

The heroine in this story is Miss Ginger Stilwell who has chosen Saturday, Dec. 18 as the date of her marriage to Wayne Peterson, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Peterson of Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Stilwell and their daughters came to Lincoln to spend a long, Thanksgiving weekend with the Rev. and Mrs. Peterson, and during their stay the bride-elect in the family was honored at a party.

The courtesy was last Saturday evening when Mrs. Kenneth Peterson and Mrs. Peter Schroeder were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Peterson.

Standing are Miss Kandy Stilwell, Mrs. Schroeder and Miss Sharon Peterson—and the young lady in the foreground is Polly Kay Stilwell.

Attendants, Parties For Bride-Elect

Naming the members of her bridal party this morning is Miss Catherine E. Crose, whose marriage to Michael J. Nannen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond V. Nannen of Hallam, will be an event of Saturday evening, Dec. 4.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrel D. Crose, the bride-elect has named Miss Vicki Frickel of St. Paul as her maid of honor for the 7 o'clock service to be solemnized at St. Andrew's Lutheran Church. Attending Miss Crose as bridesmatron will be Mrs. Larry Lincoln of Pacific Junction, Iowa, and Miss Jan Dorrance of Fairfield will be the bridesmaid. The flower girl will be Miss Debbie Crose, cousin of the bride-to-be.

Lighting the chancel candles will be Mr. Nannen's nephew and niece, Jeff and Marcia Nannen of Syracuse. Holding the candles during the ceremony will be Randy and Linda Wenz of Hallam, niece and nephew of the future bridegroom.

Serving Mr. Nannen as best man will be Steven Gage, and the groomsmen will be Steve Duermeyer and Miss Crose's brother, John Crose. Seating the guests will be Jim VanHousen, Jim Fisher of Syracuse, Dennis Watts of Hastings, and the future bride's brother, Darrel Crose, Jr., of Washington, D.C. Jeff Slagle of Council Bluffs, Iowa, will be the ring bearer.

Miss Crose will share honors with her fiance on Friday evening, Dec. 3, at a prenuptial dinner for which her parents will be host and hostess at their home before the wedding rehearsal at the church.

In today's weight-conscious world, the old adage of 'feast or famine' is applicable in a different sense. It might very well be used to mean feast at the Thanksgiving table and starve yourself for a week or so after.

As we talked to people in suburbia we found that the holiday was everything that it is supposed to be — a day to spend time together in peace and joy, and thanksgiving. Some of the families stayed right in Lincoln, while others travelled to distant points for a get-together with relatives.

Mrs. David Sanderson of Country Club Manor went to Omaha on Wednesday to be the Thanksgiving dinner guest of her nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Fisher and their three children.

New Trendwood residents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Collura enjoyed a holiday feast at the home of Mrs. Collura's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kimball. Joining in the festivities were the Mr. and Mrs. Collura's two sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Collura of Omaha, and Mr. and Mrs. James Collura — plus the three young Colluras—Sam, Joe and Mary—who are still at home.

That, however, was not the only festivity for the Collura family this weekend. On Friday, Nov. 26, Mr. and Mrs. Collura celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. In honor of the occasion, their five children served as hosts and hostesses for a dinner at a restaurant in Omaha. Following the dinner the Colluras returned to their home in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibson of Eastborough did some travelling around on the Thanksgiving holiday. Their holiday began with a short drive to Omaha, where they dropped in at the home of Mrs. Gibson's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Denney and their two children, Shirley and Denise. It was at the Denney home that the two families watched the exciting, if not nerve-racking Nebraska-Oklahoma game.

Satisfied with the Nebraska victory, the two families then headed toward Council Bluffs, Iowa, and the home of Mrs. Gibson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCoy, for a full-course turkey dinner. Also on hand to partake in the feast were Mrs. Gibson's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomasson and their son, Lee of Des Moines, Iowa, and a brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roger McCoy of Council Bluffs.

Thanksgiving Day went absolutely great, at lease for a while, for Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dennis Park Manor. They arrived in Kalamazoo, Mich., just in time for their daughter and hostess, Miss Terry Ann Dennis, to warm up the set for The Game. Then the Huskers came out victorious. And the turkey was done just in time.

Then, the luck ended. While the menfolk—including Mr. Dennis and the couple's son, Bob, of Dayton, Ohio—were discussing the key plays of the game, the women were preparing to put the vegetables on the stove, bingo, the stove was out.

Well, the family gathered the food and took the Thanksgiving dinner to the neighbor's and finished cooking the meal!

All turned out well, and the Dennis couple has returned home—through the snowstorm—and the two parents are now anxiously awaiting the Christmas holidays when their children, Terry Ann and Bob, will join them for at least a few days.

The Sunday snowstorm made the trip home a bit more difficult for another suburban family — the Robert Watts of Park Manor.

The family, including children Carroll Ann, Karen, Stephen, Julie, and Mary, motored to Troy, Mo., where they enjoyed not one, but two Thanksgiving dinners with relatives.

The host and hostesses for the dinners were Mr. Watts' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Watts, and Mrs. Watts' mother, Mrs. Frank Kohl, all of Troy. The travelers, however, stayed at their own farm home near Troy.

Girl Scout Tea

The Girl Scout Homestead Council will be kicking off the holiday season on Saturday, Dec. 4, with a Christmas Tea at the Van Dorn Park Shelter House at 9th and Van Dorn Streets.

The tea will be held from 1 o'clock to 4 o'clock for children from different neighborhoods who will attend in shifts. Brownies through seniors have been invited to attend as a troop, with a friend, or with their parents.

The theme of the tea is "a traditional old-fashioned holiday celebration," and the Girl Scouts will be entertained by fellow members who will perform. There will also be snow games and caroling.

Each member was asked to bring a home-made ornament for the holiday tree in the shelter house. Refreshments will include home-made cookies.

Some of the Cadets will be arriving at the tea later, for they will be competing in the Cadet Archery Tournament at the Easterday Recreation Center at 6130 Adams on Saturday from noon to 1:30 o'clock. Twenty Cadets from all over Lincoln have entered, and mothers and fathers are invited to attend.

Owners Of New Shop Not Strangers In Lincoln

Not too long ago, Jim Levitt of Kansas City, Mo., was a stockbroker and his wife, Jo, was designing appliques in their home for sale to large department and fabric stores — Now they are designing and manufacturing "children's clothes for children," for their own shops.

The couple's first shop outside of Kansas City was opened in Lincoln a mere three weeks ago—under the name of The Chocolate Soup.

"Jo takes care of everything aesthetic," said Mr. Levitt. "She insists on designing all of the clothes — and it was she who chose the unusual name of 'Chocolate Soup' for the unusual children's boutique."

They chose Lincoln for the experimental location because Mrs. Levitt's family is from here — she is the former Jo Hilgert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clive Hilgert of Kansas City. Mr. Hilgert was graduated from the University of Nebraska and although he resides in Kansas City his business interest takes him all over the country. She still has relatives here — Mrs. Levitt's grandmother is Mrs. Jo Hilgert and her aunt is Mrs. Howard Cather — So naturally they visit here often, and besides — she likes Lincoln. Mr. Levitt had additional, and money-oriented, reasons for locating the shop in Lincoln, including that Lincoln is centrally located, word spreads fast from the Capitol City where there are more than the normal number of out-of-town visitors, and also they had a good manager in mind. Mrs. Mac McCune is the manager of Lincoln's Chocolate Soup.

The whole idea for their own company originated when childswear manufacturers were beating down the Levitt door asking Mrs. Levitt, who never liked sewing as much as creating, to design for them.

When the couple agreed that they did not want to work for someone else, they decided to try it on their own.

Despite discouragement from everyone they set up a cutting table in the family garage and started out with a single child's jumper pattern. The idea snowballed — reorders from large city department stores were placed as soon as the first garments were delivered — It seems that everyone liked the creative ideas. The children's clothes were made of quality material, unique appliques were added, and the linings coordinated with the appliques.

Lincoln's first store in the prospective chain of Chocolate Soups is all the Levitts hoped it would be. It projects the fashion image for children.

Jim and Jo Levitt, both 28, set out to make clothes for children, not for 'little men or little women' — and also to prove, according to Mrs. Levitt, that people — will buy quality clothing for children at a good price. And they have succeeded on both counts.

Abby: your attitude is shortsighted

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Norm) has taken an interest in a co-worker. (A buddy-type friendship he says.) She's divorced and has a child and lots of problems. For some reason, I don't trust her.

Norm says she's a good girl who dates occasionally, but if she has nothing to do on weekends, she gets bored and lonely. Anyway, Norm told her she was welcome to drop in at our house when she wanted company. (So far she hasn't taken him up on it.) He even offered to tune up her car and change her oil.

Last Saturday he suggested that instead of just the two of us spending the evening alone, we invite this girl over to play cards with us. When I told him I enjoyed being alone with him, and didn't particularly want her, he became upset.

Abby, I am sorry this girl has problems, but we didn't cause them, and I don't think it's our place to entertain her. Also, Norm is not a garage mechanic, and I don't see why he should be tuning up her car.

Do you think I am being unreasonable?

NORM'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Unreasonable? No. Shortsighted? Yes. Since your husband has a buddy-type friendship going with this girl, make her your buddy, too. Why not invite her over, and ask a single man? (They may like each other.)

If you don't trust her, it's better to have her in your home where you can watch her. You may discover that she's a good girl who's had a lot of bad luck. Give her a chance.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♥	Dble	1♠	Pass
4♥	5♣	Dble

Opening lead — four of hearts.

It is not terribly difficult to make five clubs if you see all four hands. All you have to do is time your plays properly so as to avoid losing two spade tricks.

However, to make the contract without seeing the concealed hands is quite a chore, since it requires visualizing the East-West cards extremely accurately and then taking advantage of this knowledge.

Nevertheless, this is by no means an impossible task. The bidding speaks for itself and the missing cards are apt to be exactly where the bidding indicates they are.

East is practically sure to have seven hearts for his stratospheric leap to four, and West's treasures, considering his bidding, probably consist of a spade suit headed by the A-J. If so, the play becomes merely an exercise in good technique.

East wins the heart lead with the jack and continues with a heart which you ruff with the ten. Taking a long-distance view of the situation, you cash the A-K of diamonds before playing a club to the eight.

Next you ruff a diamond high, play a club to the nine, and ruff dummy's last diamond in order to run West out of diamonds.

Having attended to these preliminaries, you draw West's last trump, reducing his hand to the A-J-9-7 of spades. By this time you have the Q-10-5 of spades and a trump, while dummy has the K-4-2 of spades and a heart.

Now you lead the queen of spades and West has had it. If he takes the queen he must return a spade and your ten and king become tricks. If he ducks the queen you simply play another spade to the king.

Questions And Answers About Beauty

Josephine Lowman

Q. I would like you to give me advice about a problem that to me seems very serious. I am a senior in high school. I am five-five, medium build, and weigh 120 pounds. Everyone says I am about the right weight but my main problem is a pot belly. You may think this is a joke, but believe me, it's very serious. I have never seen anything in your column about this. Would you please give me some information about it? Can it be corrected with exercise? If so, will you please print several in your column? This is very urgent so please give me your answer in the paper.

A. I know what you mean! I have even seen very thin women with a little watermelon for a tummy. This is due to an accumulation of fat at this area. The abdominal muscles are usually lax too. Exercise will help. Also knead the fat with your fingers and the heels of your hands. Just pick the fat up and roll it. Remember also to pull your abdomen in when sitting and standing. This is a good corrective exercise.

If you cannot do this, tuck your toes under a chair or divan. If any of you would like to have my tested abdominal exercises send an eight-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to me in care of The Lincoln Star.

BRANDEIS IS CHRISTMAS COUNTRY

Farm Labor Dilemma Discussed

The farm employment situation drew a good deal of attention Monday at the first meeting of the newly-created State Manpower Planning Council.

Gov. J. James Exon and five agency heads attended the meeting of the council which is headed by Jerry Kromberg.

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher told those attending that the average age of the farm laborer in Nebraska is 58, and it is constantly rising. Kreuscher pointed out that this should be one of the targets the council should direct its efforts towards.

State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley agreed with Kreuscher's analysis of the severity of the dilemma.

"Vocational Agriculture enrollment is at the highest level ever," Stanley said; "but even this enrollment would only fill 75% of the expected vacancies."

Kromberg said the council's goal will be to reduce underand unemployment statewide.

"Hopefully, they will see that proper consideration will be given to all of Nebraska's needs — rural and urban, east and west," Kromberg said.

"Our job," he continued, "is to provide the governor with a comprehensive manpower plan for his consideration. A plan that will eventually be his recommendation to the funding authorities for adoption."

Simply stated the elements of the plan are identifing needs and resources, matching needs to resources and evaluating the results.

One-third of the members of the council represent state agencies, one-third private citizens and one-third manpower program participants.

In addition to those in attendance already mentioned were Economic Development Director Stan Matzke, Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek and Stae Institutions Director Michael LaMontia.

IHC Increases Prices 3.93%

Chicago (AP) — International Harvester Co. announced Monday immediate price increases amounting to 3.93% on its products.

The company said the prices have been approved by the Price Commission and reflect increased costs of labor, materials and services.

Products covered include trucks, farm and industrial equipment and construction equipment.

Pair Told Not To Sell Real Estate

Omaha (AP) — The owner of a real estate firm and one of his salesmen were ordered Monday to refrain from selling real estate pending a Dec. 8 hearing on a request for an injunction.

District Court Judge Samuel P. Caniglia issued the temporary restraining order against Louis Weiner, head of Louis Weiner Real Estate, and Robert L. Solomon, a salesman.

The suit against the two was filed by Robert H. Petersen, an attorney for the Nebraska Real Estate Commission.

Petersen said that the commission revoked Weiner's brokerage license and Solomon's sales license Sept. 1, 1967. Since then, Petersen contends, the two have "sold or attempted to sell real estate in Nebraska in violation of state law."

The suit alleges six instances of sales since the licenses were revoked.

Moon Is Warmer Than Thought

The New York Times

By WALTER SULLIVAN

New York — Data relayed to Earth by radio from a hole drilled into the lunar surface last summer by the Apollo 15 astronauts indicate that the moon is a far richer source of heat than had generally been supposed.

The finding of unexpectedly high heat flow from beneath the lunar surface, one of the most surprising of the Apollo program, has persuaded a number of scientists that current theories on how the moon and planets formed have to be revised.

It is now proposed that during the Moon's birth a series of layers was laid down, producing a surface region rich in radioactive elements.

Heat generated by this radioactivity, it is thought, melted much of the top layer when the moon was young and accounts for the newly observed heat flow.

The equipment for measuring the flo of heat from within the Moon was installed four months ago in two holes drilled at the Apollo 15 landing site, near Hadley Rille. The drilling proved frustratingly difficult because the lunar surface material was very dense.

The astronauts, Col. David R. Scott and Lt. Col. James B. Irwin, were impatient to go rock hunting but were persuaded by Ground Control in Houston, Tex. in drilling until one hole was five feet deep.

Data from sensors in that hole have indicated a flow of heat from the interior measuring 0.8 millionths of a calorie per square centilmeter per second.

According to Dr. Marcus E. Langseth of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, the average figure for the Earth is roughly twice that, but it varies from region to region. Langseth is responsible for analysis of the lunar heat-flow measurements.

He said Monday that based on existing concepts as to the Moon's nature, he had expected the flow of heat from the lunar interior to be about one-sixth that on Earth. However, Langseth noted that the abundance of radioactive elements found in the returned lunar samples by Dr. Gerald J. Wasserburg, professor of geology at the California Institute of Technology, has made the observed heat flow seem plausible.

If one asks: "What's crazy about the Moon?" Wasserburg said, the answer is the very high level of radioactivity in this surface soil brought back from all four Apollo landing sites. If the moon were made throughout of such material, he added, "it would be just a molten puddle."

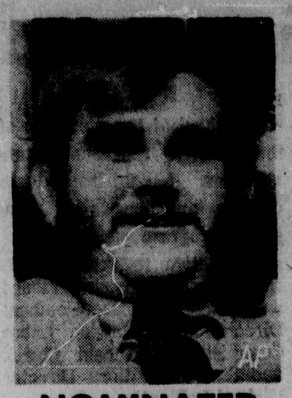
This is because the radioactivity of such elements — chiefly uraium, thorium and a radioactive form of potassium — generates heat. It is this process on Earth that produces the heat released in volcanoes and earthquakes. But it is believed that the Earth's history has been very different from that of the Moon.

Early in its history the Earth became hot enough internally for heavy material (chiefly iron) to sink, forming its core. The lighter material roe to the surface, forming a crust relatively rich in radioactive elements. For a variety of reasons it is believed that the Moon never went through such a process.

How than could its orlginal surface have become so rich in radioactive elements? Wasserburg believes this came about as gravity slowly pulled together, into a spherical solid object, the dust, gas and other material that formed the Moon. The heat-flow measurement, he says, has now indicated the amount of radioactive material in the resulting surface layer.

The implication is that such layering as a by-product of accretion may have occurred in the formation of other bodies, including the smaller planets, such as Mars.

The lava-like rock forming lunar seas is not very radioactive and presumably erupted from well below the original surface layer. It is in rocks and dust presumably derived from the original crust that abundant radioactive elements have been found.



NOMINATED

Michael A. Simmons, 18, will be one of the youngest men ever appointed to a local draft board in the nation. He relaxes in his Marysville, Pa., home near Harrisburg after his nomination by Gov. Milton Shapp was approved by President Nixon.

Gillis Named To Barbers' Board

Gov. J. J. Exon announced Monday the appointment of Roy Gillis of North Bend to the State Board of Barber Examiners.

Gillis replaces Donald Ditson of North Platte, who served a three-year term on the board.

In making the announcement, Exon said it is "deserving" that a small city barber be represented on the state board. The other two members, he said, are from Lincoln and Omaha.

Computerized Criminal Histories Available From FBI Data Bank

The New York Times

Washington — The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) began operation Monday of a Computerized Criminal History data bank that will eventually give police almost instantaneous access to an individual's criminal arrest record from all of the 50 states and federal investigative agencies and courts.

The new system, which has created controversy among some law enforcement officials, and civil libertarians, will, by 1975, make available on a nationwide computer network most of the information that is now handled through the FBI's vast criminal record and fingerprint file.

It replaces a pilot project, called Project Search, in which only a computerized index was maintained, capable of telling police if a suspect had a criminal record and prison record available by computers.

The system went into operation Monday with only a handful of states providing information.

An FBI spokesman said that as of Monday "less than ten" states had placed their arrest records on computers and linked them to the computerized criminal history, or CCH file. The spokesman refused to identify these states, but he said that a total of about 20 states will be fully linked to the system within the next few weeks and that all 20 will be identified later.

There were indications that the FBI was withholding the names of the participating states because some had suffered embarrassing technical difficulties that prevented them from being prepared on the starting day.

By 1975, all 50 states are expected to have received grants from the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, permitting them to place their arrest records on computers and plug them into the CCH system.

FBI officials say concern over the system is unwarranted, because it merely makes available by computers information that qualified agencies can now obtain from the FBI by mail.

Critics have asserted that errors will travel farther and faster now that CCH could lead to a data bank containing police intelligence on individuals, and that the new system should not be controlled by the FBI.

The FBI announcement said that "in addition to personal identification information such as name, age, sex, physical description, and identifying numbers, the file will show, for each individual, arrest charges, the disposition of each case, sentencing details, and custody and supervision status."

Only "serious or significant violations" will be recorded. A spokesman said this would include some, but not all felonies, and a few types of misdemeanors. Examples of arrests that will not be recorded were said to be a juvenile offenses, drunkeness and disturbing the peace.

Possibility Of Nebraska Population Policy Statement Will Be Proposed

Political action chairman Nancy Lanning will propose the possibility of a Nebraska population policy statement at a monthly meeting of the Zero Population Group to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Lincoln Center.

Mrs. Lanning says that she believes Nebraska should limit the number of people immigrating into the state in order to "prevent subdivision of the land" and to "preserve the state's natural resources."

Oregon and Colorado have already issued such policy statements, according to Mrs. Lanning. She added that these statements "do not call for any direct action in limiting the population."

Adoption agency reform will also be a topic of discussion at the group's meeting.

The meeting will be open to the public and will also focus on a general membership drive.

Col. Henderson Denies Intention To Hide Killings

Ft. Meade, Md. (AP) — Cross-examination of Col. Oran K. Henderson ended Monday with an assertion by the colonel that he did not intentionally cover up the massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

Asked point blank for the first time in the courtroom whether he tried to suppress details of the 1968 slaughter, he said:

"I certainly did not. I made no effort to cover it up. I made every effort to look into it as any commander would have."

The defense said it was undecided whether to conduct direct examination of Henderson on Tuesday. There has been no indication when the case might be sent to the jury of seven officers.

Court Is Told Junk Vehicle Law Is Constitutional

Lincoln City Attorney Richard Wood in a brief Monday told the State Supreme Court that the 1965 ordinance covering the disposal of junk vehicles is constitutional.

Dennis Radcliff had taken the city to court over tre constitutionality of the law. Radcliff had been convicted under the law and charged that among other things the term "non-operating" is ambigious to the extent that the law is unconstitutional.

Wood said that the definition of "non-operating" is spelled out by the ordinance and said the court should consider intent when interpreting the law.

Oral arguments in the case will soon be held before the State Supreme Court.

Caribbean Becoming A Heroin Springboard

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Latin America countries have emerged as the major artery for heroin flowing into the United States, and the entire Caribbean has become a springboard for transshipment of narcotics, according to agents of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs and the Bureau of Customs.

Latin Americans who used to smuggle cocaine or marijuana are now deeply involved in the heroin traffic. Narcotics agents said that the Latins now take cocaine production in Latin America to France and Spain and return with heroin.

As John E. Ingersoll, director of the Narcotics Bureau, put it, "Latin America is now up to its ears in heroin."

Ex-Pickpockets

Today's big Latin American trafficers, according to narcotics agents, used to be pickpockets, who have now switched to the more lucrative drug smuggling.

Another threat, agents said, are the smugglers who load up with free port whiskey and cigarettes in Panama and fly to Latin American cities to deliver it secretly to others.

Until recently, the agents said, they would return to Panama empty-handed, but now they return with heroin from France and cocaine to be sold to narcotics traffickers with ties in the United States.

Panama is reportedly the key transshipment point for the intercontinental as well as international drug traffic.

The Caribbean islands also are getting increasingly into the act.

One reason for use of the islands is that some area European possessions and goods from home pass freely onto these islands without customs inspection. That is how heroin from Marseilles reaches the French islands of Martinique and Guadaloupe and heroin from Amsterdam gets to the Dutch islands of Aruba and Curacao.

From the islands with their heavy American tourist trade, couriers fly to Miami and on to New York. The islands are also used for refueling small private planes before they try to slip into the U.S.

15 Groups Open Lobbying Against Senate Confirmation Of Earl Butz

Washington (AP) — Fifteen environmental, consumer and poverty groups opened a lobbying campaign Monday to block Senate confirmation of Earl L. Butz as secretary of Agriculture.

Sources in the Senate, meanwhile, said they have counted 41 votes against the nomination of the 62-year-old Purdue University dean.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said a preliminary head count taken by the White House shows Butz with a majority.

Scott acknowledged that leading Republicans were told of the President's nomination of Butz to replace Clifford Hardin only two hours before it became public.

Minimal Talk

He said there is only minimal talk in the Senate to force the President to withdraw the nomination.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., a vigorous opponent of the nomination, has urged President Nixon to name someone else.

Several major farm groups also have opposed Butz's nomination, accusing him of prejudice in favor of corporate farming.

Opposition of 15 non-farm groups was announced at a news conference called by Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla.

The groups are the United Auto Workers, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the National Sharecroppers Fund, Environmental Action, the National Rural Electrical Cooperative Association, Americans For Democratic Action and the AFL-CIO.

Others are the National Welfare Rights Organization, the Washington Research Action Council, the National Association of Social Workers, National Council on Hunger and Malnutrition, the National Council of Churches' Crusade Against Hunger, and Americans for Indian Opportunity.

All of the various spokesmen referred to a speech in Minneapolis last April 26, in which Butz spoke deprecatingly of environmentalists, antipoverty and hunger programs and consumer interests.

Some of the groups declared that "a vote for Earl Butz is a vote against poor and hungry people."

Harris said sentors opposing the nomintion probably will not agree to a time limit to allow a vote Wednesday.

He said it is his own judgment that there are 35 senators prepared to vote against Butz now.

AFT Claims Regents Violating Open Meeting Law

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has charged the university's Board of Regents with violation of the state's "open meetings" law.

In a letter to NU President D. B. Varner, the AFT executive committee said it believes "the spirit, the intention, of the State Legislature in passing Nebraska Revised Statutes 84-1401 through 84-1405 (requiring the policy boards of public bodies to hold meetings in public) are being, and have been, violated" by the regents.

"Testimony at Professor Stephen L. Rozman's trial and other available information raise serious questions concerning the regents' use of 'public' meetings to 'arrive' at decisions alreay made in private," the letter, dated Nov. 16, said.

The letter asked for Varner's "public affirmation of the spirit and the letter" of the law, which the AFT said requires "public bodies to discuss openly and publicly all matters of public concern involving public institutions."

"It is, of course, especially important to the improvement of the University of Nebraska that it abide by the spirit of the law and that matters having to do with the employment, salaries, tenure etc. of faculty members be publicly discussed if they are discussed at all by the regents.

"We trust you will give serious consideration to this request from the AFT members of the faculty," the letter concluded.

The letter apparently was sparked by the board's practice of regularly holding informal, private meetings prior to scheduled public meetings.

Republican Party Committee Plans Issue Meeting

The State Republican Party Central Committee will meet Saturday to consider positions on issues likely to come up during the 1972 session of the Nebraska Legislature.

The committee will meet at the Lincoln Hotel, beginning at 10 a.m., according to Richard Nelson of Lincoln, chairman of the party's legislative committee.

Nelson said the objective of current party officials is to take a more active role in state matters.

Concession Stand Funds Suit May Be Settled

Omaha (AP) — Asst. County Atty. Harold Zabin said Monday he will recommend to the Douglas County Board Tuesday that a suit against former County Sheriff Patrick E. Corrigan be settled out of court.

Zabin said Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, the company which posted a $10,000 bond for Corrigan while he was sheriff from 1955 to 1967, has offered to pay the county $7,500 as compensation for funds the county sought to recover.

Zabin said the county filed a District Court suit to recover funds Corrigan had received from operating a concession stand in the Courthouse.

Corrigan never had given an accounting of how much he had received and, consequently, the suit did not name a specific amount to be recovered, Zabin said.

The concession had been operated by Corrigan and previous sheriffs "for about 50 years" and was not a part of the sheriff's compensation provided by law.

After Corrigan was defeated for sheriff by Ted Janing, Janing ordered that the concession funds go into the county general fund.

Proposal Made

San Juan, P.R. (AP) — Former Gov. Roberto Sanlhez Vilella proposed that the Puerto Rican government reimburse electricity users for spoilage and other losses caused by blackouts, which have plagued the island in recent years.

Searcy To Wait For Decision On Political Plans

Kearney (AP) — Don Searcy, a geography professor at Kearney State College and unsuccessful 1970 candidate for the 3rd District Congressional seat held by Republican Dave Martin, said Monday he will make a decision on whether to run again in 1972 during the last week in February.

Searcy said that if he does decide to seek the Democratic nomination he will not file until March at the last possible moment because of a State College Board of Trustees policy requiring candidates to take leaves of absence while seeking office.

He said in the past week he has examined questionnaires he sent to persons who worked in his last campaign and found that 80% of the respondents would prefer that he run against Martin rather than seek the nomination to oppose incumbent Sen. Carl T. Curtis.

Huskers Not Like Machine

When an athletic team operates as efficiently and as methodically as does the top-ranked Nebraska football team, there is always the inclination on the part of writers to compare them with a machine.

But that would be giving machines too much credit, particularly the ones we've dealt with in the past few days. If the Huskers were a machine, they'd be lucky to have a two-game unbeaten string, let along one that now stands at 30.

And if the Oklahoma defense had been as tough to get through as were the Norman, Okla., telephone operators following the game Thursday, the Huskers never would have been able to march 74 yards against them.

Don't Let It Out

It was almost as if neither our Xerox transmitting machinery nor the gals manning the Norman switchboards wanted the word out to the world on the fact that the Sooners had been beaten.

The family tree of the Xerox machine is now being checked to see if it has any Oklahoma ancestry and while that check is being made, we might also check to see if there is an Alabaman in that family tree.

Few things can be more frustrating than a malfunctioning machine that you can do nothing about or trying to work with an uncooperative utility company that knows it has a monopoly and that you can't go across the street to a competitor to use his phone services.

The first to be rebuffed in his effort to get the word out of Norman that Nebraska had proven its claim to No. 1 was a Washington Post writer, who with a one-hour time differential, was fighting a deadline.

"I'm sorry, but unless you want to make the call person-to-person, you're going to have to dial it direct," the operator told him as he tried to reach his newspaper.

The Washington Post scribe did not show the same poise that the Huskers had shown on their winning touchdown drive.

There She Was Again

After going through various operators while trying to get that machine to stop editing my copy by just leaving our pages at a time and come up with a better percentage than sending about one out of every four pages we tried, we apparently got that same operator, who had handled the Washington Post effort.

Apparently under the impression that she was being employed by the telephone company only to watch the lights flash, she informed us, "Unless you dial direct, we only let it ring once."

Well, you can't fight a monopoly. So you direct dial. Finally after several direct dialing efforts fail to get a ring, another operator comes on and says, "What number were you dialing?"

"Area code 402, number 473-7296," you tell her.

"I'm sorry, but you can't dial that number direct because that number won't work on our equipment," she explained.

It's a good thing the phone hook-up between the coaches' booth in the pressbox and the bench didn't have to go through the Norman switchboard.

Pruitt Top Big 8 Back

Kansas City (AP) — Greg Pruitt, running sensation of Oklahoma's explosive offense, was selected today as the Big Eight Conference offensive player of 1971.

Pruitt won the honor in a vote of sports writers and sports casters. He just did edge out teammate Jack Mildren, first Big Eight quarterback ever to run for 1,000 yards in a season.

Pruitt, a junior, carried the ball 160 times in Oklahoma's first 10 games of which the Sooners, second ranked in the nation, won nine and lost 35-31 to top-ranked Nebraska, the conference champion.

The sizzling Sooner, known as the "Wicked Midget," has collected 1,476 yards or 9.2 yards per carry. He has averaged 147.6 yards a game. He leads the Big Eight rushing race by a wide margin.

Pruitt, as his nickname implies, is a little guy by college football standards. He stands only 5-foot-9 and weights just 176 pounds.

He doesn't think his lack of size is a handicap.

"The secret is to keep moving," Pruitt claims. "It's harder to hit a moving target. That's why I keep dancing and faking."

Pruitt's trademark is his zigzag running and his blazing speed. He also has fantastic moves.

"I have a habit of looking over my shoulder when I run," Pruitt says. "I want to see the defensive players. It's just a habit. I'm not teasing anyone.

"When I look back, if a guy is close, I have to turn it on. If he's not, there's no need in running that hard."

The All-Big Eight back ran hard enough against Kansas State to gather 294 yards for a conference record in rushing, a mark that has since been broken by Colorado's Charlie Davis.

Pruitt has broken 200 yards in three games and was named national back of the week two successive weeks for his performances against Southern California and Texas.

Oklahoma backfield coach Barry Switzer says Pruitt is "the best blocker on the team. Greg is solid. He's strong and has the great body control. There are other guys who can run 40 yards in 4.4 but they can't stop and go like Greg."

Sooner Coach Chuck Fairbanks says Pruitt must be regarded as "one of the great backs in this era of football.

Bears Fall Victim To Miami, 34-3

Miami (AP) — Bob Griese, the leading touchdown tosser in the National Football League passed for two scores and directed an awesome Miami offense that brought the Dolphins an easy 34-3 victory over the Chicago Bears Monday night for their eighth consecutive triumph.

The humiliating defeat of the Bears lifted the Dolphins' record to 9-1-1 — best in the NFL — and increased their lead to 1½ games over the defending Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts in the battle for the American Conference East title.

It also all but destroyed whatever chance the Bears had retained of qualifying for a spot in the post-season playoffs, leaving the Chicagoans with a 6-5 record in the National Conference Central.

Billed as a struggle between division powers in which the Chicago defense would test the Miami offense, the game quickly became a rout as Griese directed the Dolphins to scores the first four times they had the ball in the first half.

At the same time, the Miami defense allowed the Bears to penetrate only as deep as the Dolphin 45 — and once the Chicagoans had managed to move that far, they were immediately thrown back to their own territory on the next play.

Griese wound up with 12 completions in 17 attempts for 214 yards and touchdown passes of six yards to Marv Fleming and 10 yards to Larry Csonka before he was relieved early in the fourth quarter. That brought Griese's touchdown total to 19.

But there were other Dolphin heros:

—Csonka, the burly running back who gained 104 yards in 16 carries and brought his AFC leading total to 878 yards while scoring on the pass from Griese and on a two-yard run.

—Garo Yepremian, the little field goal kicker who booted three-pointers from 43 and 35 yards out while raising his NFL-leading point total to 98.

—And safety Jake Scott, who intercepted two passes by Bobby Douglass, one setting up a touchdown.

Griese got the Dolphins started with the opening kickoff, hitting Paul Warfield with a 24-yard pass that initiated a drive capped by Yepremain's 43-yarder. Then, after the Bears were unable to move the ball, Griese steered the Dolphins on a 76-yard TD drive.

Csonka was the key man in the march, grabbing a pass for 18 yards and gaining 30 on the ground in three tries, including the last two for the touchdown.

Douglass seemed to have righted the Chicagoans when he got them moving after the kickoff, but he fumbled a handoff to Cyril Pinder on the Bears 40 and Bill recovered for the Dolphins.

Sooners Land 7 On List

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The two greatest teams in Big Eight Conference history, Nebraska and Oklahoma, landed 18 players on United Press International's all-Big Eight football team Monday.

The No. 1-ranked Cornhuskers placed 11 players on the first team, while the Sooners had seven. Colorado and Iowa State, also bowl-bound, took up the other spots.

UPI named a 23-man first team in order to find a place for a kicker, won by Iowa State's Reggie Shoemake.

Only three players were unanimous choices in the select poll of 20 Big Eight sportswriters and sportscasters. They were Oklahoma halfback Greg Pruitt and Nebraska wide receiver Johnny Rodgers and defensive end Willie Harper.

Three other players — Nebraska middle guard Rich Glover and defensive tackler Larry Jacobson and Oklahoma center Tom Brahaney — missed being unanimous by a lone vote.

Two quarterbacks, Oklahoma's Jack Mildren and Nebraska's Jerry Tagge, made the first team backfield along with Pruitt and Nebraska's Jeff Kinney.

Colorado's blazing sophomore tailback, Charlie Davis, missed making the first team by only four votes.

Closest voting was at tight end, where Oklahoma's Albert Chandler decisioned Kansas' John Schroll by one vote.

There was also a heated contest on the defensive team, where voters chose a six-man line, with Colorado guard Bud Magrum edging Kansas linebacker Kenny Iage. Magrum is the only sophomore on the first unit.

Only non-Nebraska-Oklahoma members of the all-conference team were Colorado's Magrum, defensive tackle Herb Orvis and offensive tackle Jake Zumbach and Iowa State linebacker Keith Schroeder and Shoemake.

Eleven of the top 23 players are underclassmen, including 10 juniors and one sophomore.

Other members of the first offensive unit are Nebraska tackle Carl Johnson and guard Dick Rupert and Oklahoma guard Ken Jones.

Other defensive first teamers are Oklahoma end Raymond Hamilton and linebacker Steve Aycock and Nebraska backs Jim Anderson, Joe Blahak and Bill Kosch.

Interestingly enough, 16 defensive backs received first team votes, but the Nebraska trio won out. The Cornhuskers' defensive backfield, so impressive in the 35-31 victory over Oklahoma, was considered the best in the history of the Big Eight.

Only three players — Orvis, Aycock and Kosch — repeated from last year's all-conference team.

Bob Remembers OU, Prepares For Hawaii

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska head football coach Bob Devaney isn't completely overlooking Hawaii, the Huskers' Saturday night foe on a trip to the Islands, but the thought of being 0-2 against Alabama and Crimson Tide coach Bear Bryant keeps popping up in his mind.

"Both our coaching staff and our team would like to beat that fellow before we get done with this foolish game," Devaney told the weekly Extra Point Club luncheon audience in a reference to the Huskers' Orange Bowl foe.

That was the only mention of the Orange Bowl at Monday's luncheon as Devaney spent most of the noon hour recapping the Huskers' 35-31 victory over Oklahoma.

Calling Oklahoma "a great football team," Devaney pointed out, "We've never worked harder in preparing for a game than we did that one.

"As it turned out, it was a combination of our offense keeping the football and our defense keeping Oklahoma from doing what it does best.

"The first thing we had to do was stop their running. We had to stop Greg Pruitt from getting outside. And in doing that, we put one kid in a very bad position.

"That forced us to use a safety (Bill Kosch), who is used to playing zone pass defense and who hasn't played man-to-man, to play man-to-man against a split end from a cornerback position.

"I was so happy for Bill Kosch when we won that game so that he wouldn't have to live with the trouble he had. And it wasn't that he wasn't trying. We just put him in a tough position."

The Husker leader lauded his defensive coaches for what he called "a tremendous job of planning.

"Every player had to read the keys and to do his job without error for us to stop Oklahoma and they all did a great job."

Devaney said the defensive game plan was particularly tough on the Husker ends, Willie Harper and John Adkins, because "we knew when we went into the game that they might not make a tackle, but they had to contain the pitchouts and keep the plays inside.

"Our defensive backs did a tremendous job of coming up inside to make the tackles."

Of the play of Rich Glover, the NU middle guard who was in on 22 tackles despite going against all-Big Eight Oklahoma center Tom Brahaney, Daveny said, "He played the greatest game of any defensive lineman I've ever seen.

"And the rest of our defensive line wasn't far behind him in that regard."

Turning to the Husker offense, Devaney noted, "In looking at the films, Jerry Tagge did a great job of quarterbacking our team.

"In the second half, we decided to just line up and run at Oklahoma. Jeff Kinney did a great job of secuting the run and he got some great blocking from the offensive line and from our fullbacks."

Devaney called the Huskers' winning touchdown drive the equal of the drive the Huskers made last Jan. 1 to win the Orange Bowl.

"It was a pressure drive," he said. "We knew we had to score. Our linemen knew they couldn't make a mistake, such as jumping offside or missing an assignment and they performed perfectly."

Of the upcoming Saturday night game with Hawaii, Devaney observed, "Hawaii is very difficult to defeat in the Islands.

"I don't know of a team that has beaten them on the Islands. We've not only got to win, but we've got to look good doing it, and we can't look good if we have a letdown."

The Husker coach also observed that the fact that the game will be played at midnight Lincoln time could cause some problems, but jokingly added, "Some of our players may be at their best at that time."

In an effort to acclimate his Huskers to the time differential, Devaney said a workout would be staged at night Wednesday after the Huskers arrive Wednesday afternoon.

NU offensive line coach Carl Selmer, who gave the scouting report on Hawaii, noted, "They are the best offensive team and the best defensive team we will have faced — outside the continental United States."

Paterno Has Chance To Show 'Em

University Park, Pa. (UPI) — Coach Joe Paterno of undefeated Penn State said Monday he believes Saturday's nationally-televised game against Tennessee may give his team a chance to "show people we have a football team here in the East."

"It'll be a real good test for our offense just to see how good we are," Paterno said. "We're looking forward to it. It's a real challenge for us to go down and play them."

The game, the season finale for both teams, is the first regular-season meeting ever between the Nittany Lions and a Southeastern Conference team.

Penn State, winners of 15 in a row including 10 this season, leads the nation in scoring, averaging 44.3 points a game. The Volunteers, 8-2, have lost only to Alabama and Auburn and feature a defense that has allowed only 97 points.

"They are awfully alert and well-coached," Paterno said. "It's tough to put together a sustained drive against them. This is by far the best team we've played all year."

The Lions will be at full strength for the game, fullback Franco Harris having recovered from bruised ribs that slowed him earlier in the season.

Rainbows Chasing 'Impossible Dream'

Honolulu (AP) — The University of Hawaii Rainbows are after The Impossible Dream.

The lightly regarded independent school will test its pretensions as a national football powerhouse Saturday when they host No. 1-ranked Nebraska.

Hawaii's series record against Nebraska is even, 1-1.

They hope for a repeat of the surprising 6-0 Rainbow victory in 1955.

Hawaii has compiled a 7-3 record, lost both of its road games and dropped a 46-21 free-for-all to Long Beach State at home.

Local sportswriters, in their idle moments, have figured out score comparisons which show Nebraska anywhere from 75 to 175 points better than Hawaii.

The Rainbows enter the Nebraska game after a victory over New Mexico, which Hawaii Coach Dave Holmes calls "the best team we've ever beaten."

Hawaii rose to top freewheeling New Mexico 28-21 here last weekend. The defense held the hard-running Lobos scoreless in the second half, while allowing star running back Fred Henry only three yards in the last half.

"I would think that's got to give us a real shot in the arm," Holmes said.

Holmes doesn't lavish any superlatives on Nebraska but says simply: "They are a great football team.

"I don't think they are foolish enough to come out for a Hawaiian vacation and let someone knock them off. I think they will be ready for a football game.

Holmes feels that his offensive unit is just now reaching its peak. But the defense is enough to give him nightmares. He has four defensive backs healthy enough to fill four positions. At linebacker he is starting a freshman, a sophomore and a player with a broken arm.

"That's pretty ridiculous," Holmes said. As for the offense, he said, "It's anyone's guess where we will be able to run. Nebraska has one of the best defenses in the country."

The Nebraska clash will be the first time ever that a capacity crowd has turned out for Rainbow football. The school has been averaging about 15,500 a game in the 23,500-seat Honolulu Stadium.

For good measure, Hawaii raised ticket prices a dollar for Nebraska tickets. And the school will glean some extra money from statewide television coverage of the game.

Homer Smith Fired As Pacific Coach

Stockton, Calif. (AP) — Homer Smith, 40, was fired Monday after two losing seasons as head football coach at the University of the Pacific.

The UOP Tigers of the Pacific Coast Athletic Association were 3-8 this season and 5-6 last year. Five of this year's losses were by seven points or less, including a pair of one-point decisions.

Forzano Remains Navy Grid Coach

Annapolis, Md. (AP) — Rick Forzano has been retained by the U.S. Naval Academy as head football coach despite Navy's 24-23 loss to Army, the Academy Athletic Association announced Monday.

The Academy refused to disclose the length of the contract or its terms, leading observers to speculate that it was a one-year renewal. The original contract, which expired with the end of this season, had been for three years. This was the first time the athletic association has refused to divulge the length of a contract.

Cipriano Hopes Jura Improves Rebounding

(Last of a Series)
By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

The Joe Cipriano basketball era has been the most successful in Nebraska's history, but winning in the rugged Big Eight Conference will again present problems.

Although the Huskers are basing their attack around eight lettermen, NU must replace two key cogs. Marvin Stewart, NU's all-time leading scorer, and Leroy Chalk, the school's top rebounder, are both gone.

Cipriano is counting on 6-10 senior center Chuck Jura to take up the slack caused by Chalk's departure. The Schuyler product, in averaging 17.5 points per match last season, connected on almost 60 per cent of his floor attempts to rank among national leaders.

"Jura should be one of the finest basketball players that Nebraska has ever produced," Cipriano says, "But he will have to improve his rebounding since Chalk is gone."

Senior starters Mike Peterson and Al Nissen also return giving the Huskers three starters from last year's squad which earned an 18-8 overall mark and a fourth place Big Eight finish with an 8-6 record.

Junior lettermen include Cal Christline and Curt LeRossignol in the frontline and backcourt men Randy Watts, Tony Riehl and Tom Gregory.

Coming off a fine freshman year, Brendy Lee, a 6-8 forward from Brush, Colo., could give the Huskers some rebounding and scoring power. Lee paced the 9-3 frosh with 158 rebounds and a 16.1 scoring mark.

Last season's Husker crew hit a record .505 in field goal shooting to rank fourth nationally and placed among the country's top 15 teams in defense. With experience returning, NU should be able to combine its usual fast-breaking offense and pressing defense.

In assessing the Huskers, Cipriano turns to his lettermen for strength.

"Nissen and Peterson have improved tremendously and should be a strong factor in our challenge for the Big Eight championship," Cipriano points out, "Gregory, Riehl and Christline will enable us to run more and play more of a pressing defense."

Like the other Big Eight coaches, Cipriano feels no team will dominate the conference such as Kansas did last season by zipping through 14 conference tests in roaring to a 27-3 mark.

"I would have to say off returning lettermen, Kansas State, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas all look very good," he says, "I'm sure that almost any team will have a chance to win the championship because of this balance that was lacking last year."

In eight previous seasons, NU squads have compiled a 114-88 record making Cipriano the winningest coach in the Lincoln school's history. He'd like to continue that upswing in Cornhusker fortunes this year.

—NOT A MORAL VICTORY—

Namath's Legs Hold Up Despite Bruising Game

New York (AP) — "I feel like I've been in a gang fight," Joe Namath said, rubbing a swollen right jaw.

"My right arm is so sore I think it may fall off any minute. Two toes on my left foot are black and blue. I got some pretty good bumps."

But those fabled fragile legs—held together by surgeon's stitches and adhesive tape—they're standing up like stanchions of steel.

The New York Jets' crippled quarterback surfaced Monday to find himself a resurrected national hero—roundly acclaimed for his feat in coming off the bench Sunday after 19 games of idleness and missing—by the margin of a fingertip—an upset victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The 49ers won 24-21 but not before they had been chilled to the marrow by one of Broadway Joe's guttiest and most dramatic performances.

"Naw, I don't consider it a moral victory," Namath reacted to an observation. "The only kind of victory I know is winning. We could have won—but we didn't."

Namath, tossed into Sunday's game at Shea Stadium when starting quarterback Bob Davis went out with injuries, completed 11 of 27 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns. An interception by Johnny Fuller on the last play of the game thwarted what could have been the winning touchdown.

"Football has so many complications," Namath said. "It's not like taking an examination. It's a game of reaction—instantaneous decision.

"Because I've been idle so long, I made two or three mistakes out there—mistakes in judgment — which ordinarily I wouldn't make.

"There were a couple of interceptions — including the last one. I was fooled by the defenses they threw up. If I had been game sharp, it wouldn't have happened."

Acknowledging that he was very nervous when he entered the game, Joe said he didn't expect to be as nervous Saturday against the Cowboys at Dallas.

"I should be more relaxed mentally," he added. "Physically, well, I can't say."

Namath appeared at the NBC studios in mid-Manhattan shortly after noon Monday to tape the first of series of talk shows he will host this winter.

He changed from leather jacket and jeans into a snappy ensemble of gray flared slacks, blue jacket, white and gray striped shirt, got a face makeup and greeted his guests — bearded Richard Harris, the actor, and Paula Sperber, blonde and pretty U.S. ladies' bowling champion from Miami, in purple hot pants.

A photographer asked Joe to put his arm around Paula and her bowling ball. Joe obliged—but almost lost a guest.

"I nearly fainted," said Paula. "Tingles went from the tips of my toes to the top of my head. Sex appeal? Are you kidding? He's saturated with it."

Jockey Lovato Moves To Different Hospital

New York (AP) — Jockey Frank Lovato, injured in a three-horse spill in the Stuyvesant Handicap last Saturday at Aqueduct, was transferred from a New York hospital to one near his home at Cherry Hill, N.J., Monday.

Lovato suffered from a broken right pelvis and two broken ribs. He is expected to be hospitalized for at least six weeks.

Starr Magic Gone

Green Bay, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, the man Vince Lombardi made a great quarterback, returned to action Sunday after a nearly year-long layoff, but much of his magic was missing.

His right arm, laid open twice this year by surgical scalpels, showed some of the brilliance that helped make the Green Bay Packers of the 1960s one of the most devastating teams ever on a gridiron.

But neither Starr or the rest of the Packers showed the smooth precision that made them champion as they lost to New Orleans 29-21.

"You can't blame Starr," Coach Dan Devine said of the 16-year veteran who underwent surgery in July to correct a painful tendon problem in his right arm and shoulder and then again when an artery severed in the original repair job was found to be leaking.

"I thought he played quite well," said Devine. "But we didn't have good field position, we had to punt into the wind and we always semed to be second and 25."

That came from mistakes, penalties that hurt more than the yards measured off, and six turnovers, mistakes that weren't there when the Packers won three consecutive world championships under the late Lombardi.

Starr, a bench-rider until Lombardi made him a starter in 1959, completed eight of 17 passes Sunday, including his first two, which netted 41 yards in an early touchdown drive. In that drive they looked like winning Packer teams, not the current 3-7-1 version.

But Starr fumbled later and a pass was intercepted. The Saints turned those miscues into 10 points.

"I don't think Starr was intercepted as a result of not having enough on the ball," Devone said. "He, the Saints' Hugo Hollas, just came across and picked it off."

McDowell, Perry, And Duffy Involved In Baseball Swap

. . . HOLTZMAN TRADED FOR MONDAY

Scottsdale, Ariz. (AP) — Baseball's annual winter meetings exploded with three major trades Monday involving a wealth of big names that included pitchers Sam McDowell, Gaylord Perry and Ken Holtzman, and slugger Lee May.

Cleveland swapped pitching ace McDowell to San Fancisco for Perry and infielder Frank Duffy. Holtzman moved from the Chicago Cubs to Oakland in exchange for outfielder Rick Monday, and May went from Cincinnati to Houston in an eight-man deal.

With 13 players changing teams, it was one of the most active trading days in the history of these meetings.

The McDowell-Perry swap was a trade of pitching superstars. Sudden Sam, 29, who had a falling out with the Indians' management and quit the team for a week midway through the 1971 season, finished with a 13-17 record and 192 strikeouts. He has been one of the most prolific strikeout artists in the majors with 2,159 for eight seasons — 17th on the all-time list.

The 33-year-old Perry, 16-12 for the Giants last season, has been a workhourse throughout his career, pitching 250 or more innings in each of the last six seasons.

'We've been talking to several clubs in general areas, regarding McDowell," said Gabe Paul, general manager of the Indians. "This was the first concrete proposal we had. We wanted a pitcher of Perry's stature and an infielder who could play regularly for us."

Ken Aspromonte, Cleveland's new manager, said Duffy would be his regular shortstop next season. The young infielder batted .182 in 34 games for the Giants and Reds last season.

"I talked to Sam," said Charlie Fox, manager of the Giants. "He said, 'Thanks. I'll live up to what you think of me.' And I think he will."

The Cincinnati-Houston swap was the biggest of the day by numbers, with five players moving from the Astros to the Reds for May, whose 39 homers last season was the third best total in baseball, second baseman Tommy Helms and utilityman Jimmy Stewart.

The Reds got second baseman Joe Morgan, infielder Denis Menke, pitcher Jack Billingham and outfielders Cesar Geronimo and Ed Armbrister.

The key man for the Astros had to be May, who batted .278 last season and has slugged 147 homers in five full seasons for the Reds. He was a heralded cog in the Big Red machine that drove Cincinnati to the National League pennant in 1970, but the Reds seemed unconcerned about surrending him.

Fairbanks Thinks OU Will Rebound

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks believes emotion is a key to winning football games. For that reason, he says his Sooners might not have an easy time of it Saturday against arch-rival Oklahoma State.

"I expect Oklahoma State to play with a great deal of emotion," Fairbanks said at his weekly press luncheon Monday. "I don't think we can go there and be very flat — there's not very much difference in teams," he added.

Fairbanks acknowledged his concern for the Sooners' mental preparation, coming on the heels of their 35-31 loss to No. 1 Nebraska.

But he predicted the Sooners, now 9-1, would rebound. "This team has a lot of pride," he said.

He noted the importance attached to the game by fans of the two state schools. "The two state universities are proud of their teams and it's important to their followers," he said.

"It's also important to us to finish the season in good shape to be able to adequately prepare for our Sugar Bowl lame with Auburn," the OU coach added.

OSU will carry a 4-5-1 record into the 62nd renewal of the Bedlam series. The Cowboys have been hit hard by injuries since getting off to a fast start.

Fairbanks said nagging injuries to defensive stalwarts Steve Aycock, Raymond Hamilton, Derland Moore and John Shelley has him worried.

"It's too early to tell their conditions, but if they are not able to play up to par we will be in bad shape," he said.

Fairbanks reiterated the praise he had for his team following the fourth-quarter loss to the Cornhuskers.

"My own personal feelings haven't changed," he said. "Our team demonstrated a lot of character . . . and Nebraska also showed the same kind of character to come back. That was the mark of a truly great football team.

"There are lots of things we would like to play over, but you don't have that opportunity.

"My own disappointment hasn't changed any, nor has my own personal pride in our team's performance," he said.

Computer Aids Game Programs

Grouse wings and a computer are the ingredients being combined to help determine future game management policies, according to the Game and Parks Commission.

Commission personnel are working with the Data Processing Division of the Department of Administrative Services and the University of Nebraska Computing Center to analyze statistics gleaned from questionnaires furnished by cooperating hunters along with the wings of grouse harvested during the season.

An annual task of the Terrestrial Wildlife Division, the will be computerized for grouse study is one of 36 game management surveys made each year to help determine the effectiveness of present management procedures and suggest possible improvments. It is the first to be adapted to computer processing. At present, all such surveys are anlayzed by man rather than machine power and involve hours and hours of tedious mathematical calculations.

Questionnaires are mailed annually to a sample of about 250 hunters, most of whom are known to hunt grouse and have cooperated in the past. Forms seek information on the hunt and its results. Wings provide data on the age-ratios of birds harvested. Reports on the hours required to bag a bird give meaningful information on their abundance.

This year, that information will be computerized for quicker and easier results. The computer will help make data entry more and more efficient, streamline report preparation, and allow Commission personnel to retrieve recorded facts more quickly.

Future plans include the use of computers in processing other surveys and for formulating the State Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan and the Wildlife Plan, both long-range activities of the Game and Parks Commission.

Jurgensen Suffers Contusion

Washington (AP) — Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins suffered a contusion of his left shoulder in Sunday's victory Over the Philadelphia Eagles, Skins Coach George Allen said Monday.

It was first feared Jurgensen, making his first start of the National Footbal League season, had rebroken his shoulder. The veteran quarterback missed the first eight weeks of the regular season after fracturing his left shoulder in an exhibition game Sept. 4.

"It's an encouraging report," Allen said.

"We will just have to evaluate Jurgensen as the week progresses and make a decision on whether to activate Sam Wyche later this week. I would like to keep Jurgensen on the active roster."

Jurgensen had completed three of six passes for 51 yards before he was injured while running early in the second period. He was in obvious pain while sitting on the bench and later said his shoulder hurt considerably.

The team physician, Dr. P. M. Palumbo, said the injury was not related to the earlier fracture.

Terrio, Glover Eye 100 Season Tackles

Two members of Nebraska's Black Shirt defensive gang are within range of reaching the 100 mark in tackles for the season in Saturday night's game at Hawaii.

Linebacker Bob Terrio with 87 and middle guard Rich Glover with 85 both could reach the 100-mark against the Rainbows in the Huskers' final regular season game.

Stock Prices Rally Sharply

New York (AP) — Stock market prices rallied sharply Monday for the second consecutive day as investors looked forward to a possible settlement of the international monetary situation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks soared 13.14 to 829.73. On Friday it climbed 17.96, the biggest single-day gain since Aug. 16 after President Nixon announced his Phase 1 economic policy.

"Today's action was a follow-through of Friday's surge, and it is all based on growing optimism that the Group of 10 meeting will bring some settlement of the international monetary situation," said John Smith, analyst for Fahnestock & Co.

Analysts said the market's continuation of the rally in such active trading indicated the market might be making a turnaround. They said investors also received encouraging economic news last week, with the report the leading economic indicators had risen in October.

Big Board volume was 18.91 million shares compared with Friday's turnover of 10.88 million shares. On the American Stock Exchange, 4.27 million shares changed hands, compared with 2.56 million shares Friday.

On the Big Board advances led declines 1,314 to 204 out of 1,712 issues traded. Gainers led losers 822 to 175 out of 1,198 issues traded on the Amex.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks rose .90 to 51.47. The Amex price change index advanced .35 to 23.98.

The Associated Press 60 stock average advanced 4.9 to 298.4, with industrials up 7.8, rails up 3.3, and utilities up 1.2. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.47 to 93.41.

A block of 470,000 shares of Sears was traded at 92, down 4. The trade worth, $43.24 million, was the seventh largest in terms of dollars in Big Board history. Another block of 70,000 shares of Sears crossed at 92¾.

There were 110 big blocks of 10,000 shares traded on the Big Board, compared with 57 Friday. These big blocks included 133,000 shares of Ramada Inns at 14½, up ½; 125,800 of Gulf States utilities at 19½, unchanged; and 76,000 of Lehigh Portland Cement at 13¾, up ⅛.

Corporate bonds were mixed, while governments were mostly lower.

Bordaberry Claims Victory In Uruguay President Voting

Montevideo, Uruguay (AP) — Juan M. Bordaberry of the governing Colorado Party claimed victory Monday in a tight presidential election. His claim was challenged by the National Party candidate.

The Colorados and the Nationals, Uruguay's traditional parties, swept aside the bid of a new leftist coalition named the Broad Front.

Bordaberry, currently minister of agriculture, said he would carry on the government's battle against the Tupamaro guerrillas, who had favored the Broad Front candidate.

Unofficial results indicated the Colorado lead was narrowing, and the National Party candidate, Sen. Wilson Ferreira Aldunate, said Monday night: "We are optimistic."

Election officials said final results of the Sunday election won't be known until Tuesday.

With more than one million of an estimated 1.6 million votes counted, the Interior Ministry reported that the Colorado Party had 416,340 votes, the National Party 288,348, and the Broad Front 230,000. Most of the ballots still to be counted were from the countryside where the Colorado and National Parties are strongest.

President Jorge Pacheco Areco, who failed on his bid to change the constitution so that he could serve a second term, made a rare public appeaance to receive a crowd of Colorado Party supporters who gathered at his residence.

The constitutional amendment Pacheco Areco sought fell far short of the majority vote it needed to pass in Sunday's election. Pacheco Areco, 51, had designated Bordaberry as his "alternate candidate" if the amendment failed.

USAF, Army Move To Reform Post Exchanges

Washington (UPI) — The Army and Air Force moved Monday to reform the scandal-scarred post exchange (PX) system overseas by centralizing management in the hands of a U.S.-based director.

The Army-Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has 933 outlets doing $2.4 billion in sales and making a gross profit of almost $500 million in fiscal year 1970.

In the continental United States these Army and Air Force stores have long been under the control of a single chief headquartered in Dallas, Tex., but overseas regional military commanders have beenin charge. Pentagon spokesman Julian Levine announced Monday that in January the overseas outlets would come under the supervision of the domestic chief.

Medical Society President Says AMA Is Unresponsive

New Orleans, La. (AP) — Dr. Kenneth Platt, president of the Colorado State Medical Society accused the American Medical Association and its House of Delegates Monday of being unresponsive "to the socioeconomic crisis we are facing in the nation today."

Platt was among a number of doctors championing AMA president Dr. Wesley W. Hall of Reno, Nev., during an often bitter debate over Hall's proposal to the AMA convention Sunday. This called for the organization's governing and organizational structure to be overhauled to keep the AMA in step with modern health problems, as Hall put it.

"He (Dr. Hall) is just trying to bring action that the grassroots (doctors) are telling you is needed, and you are not responsive," said Dr. Platt, of Westminster, Colo.

"I beg you — change. It is no longer the time, the place or, in essence, the thrust of government, the general public or your own profession that you remain as you are . . .," Dr. Platt said.

Sharp defense of the AMA's present operations — and criticism of Hall's remarks — came from various officers of the organization and from a few nonofficer doctors.

The interchanges took place, in Hall's presence, at a special reference committee meeting called to discuss Hall's proposals. About 250 doctors attended.

A former president, Dr. Edward Annis of Miami, Fla., asserted: "I suggest that the reason our image among some doctors is so bad is that we argue about our problems in the marketplace . . . in a fishbowl . . . and that really is a mark of our strength."

Declaring he is confident the AMA has the backing of the large majority of doctors and of the public at large, Annis said:

"The doctor who criticizes the AMA is not active in his own county or state medical association. All he knows (about the AMA) is what he reads in the New York Times, the Washington Post, or Newsweek, or hears from Huntley-Brinkley — and no one can be educated from that source."

In his talk Sunday, Dr. Hall had renewed his previous unanswered call for a AMA "constitutional convention" — or at least something similar to that as the best mechanism "to get our organization back on the track and restore our profession to the highly respected status it once enjoyed."

Curtis Undecided On Trying To Win Post As Delegate

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., says he won't decide until next year whether to file as a delegate to the Republican National Convention next summer.

Curtis, who has announced his intention to seek re-election next year, said he believes practically all the delegate spots should go to party workers who are not holding elected public office.

FIREMAN SAVES INFANT

Des Moines, Iowa, city fireman Richard Phillips, 27, is credited with saving the life of 14-month-old Charles Smith Jr. with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after the child stopped breathing during an ice show at Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The child is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of Birmingham, Iowa, and was reported "doing well" at a hospital. "I'm the fortunate one to have been able to save the baby's life," Phillips said. "Anybody could have done it."

Compromise Reached On War Powers Bill

©The New York Times

By JOHN W. FINNEY

Washington — Key conservative and liberal senators have reached agreement on compromise legislation to curb the warmaking powers of the presidency.

Basically, the proposed legislation would provide that the president could engage in hostilities in certain emergency situations, but could not continue a military action for more than 30 days without obtaining congressional approval.

Details of the legislation, designed to check the power of the president to commit the nation to undeclared wars, such as the Vietnam conflict, were worked out in recent days between liberal Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., and Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., a conservative and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committeee.

With the unified support of such liberal and conservative senators, it now seems likely that the legislation will be approved in the near future by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, clearing the way for its passage by the Senate early next year.

In a recent letter to Javits, the original sponsor of war powers legislation, Stennis praised the principles of the compromise bill as "clear" and "sound" and expressed hope that some version of the bill would be enacted into law "in the near future."

Such an endorsement by the chairman of the Armed Services Committee is virtually certain to result in widespread conservative support for the legislation. Javits and Eagleton, meanwhile, can be expected to rally liberal and moderate support for the legislation.

More Beef, Veal

Chicago — U.S. per capita consumption of beef and veal climbed to a record of almost 117 pounds in 1970. This was a growth of about 7 pounds in three years. The projection is that per capita consumption of beef and veal will rise to about 130 pounds by 1980.

20-Year-Old Hastings Bride Killed In Missouri Accident

Sedalia, Mo. (UPI) — A 20-year-old bride from Hastings and an eight-year-old girl were killed Monday in a headon collision 40 miles south of here on U.S. 65.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said Mrs. Beverly Ann Bruntz, Hastings, and Angela Campbell of Sedalia were killed.

Mrs. Bruntz, a passenber in a car driven by her husband of three days, Gary Bruntz, 20, Hastings, was dead on arrival at the Bothwell Hospital here. The Campbell girl died later at the hospital.

Bruntz was taken to the hospital in serious condition. Also in serious condition were the driver of the second car, Mrs. Sally Jo Campbell, her husband, Jerry, and two other Campbell children.

Authorities said Mrs. Campbell's car apparently went out of control, swerved across the center line of the highway and struck the Bruntz car headon.

U.S. May Transfer Much Of Canal Zone Area, Rights To Panama

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The United States is prepared to transfer to Panama a broad spectrum of jurisdictional rights, commercial activities, piers and areas of land and water in the Canal Zone, a House subcommittee was told Monday by a U.S. treaty negotiator.

Ambassador John Mundt, special U.S. represenative in the negotiations on a new treaty sought by Panama, told the subcommittee: "We plan only to release certain land and water areas in the Canal Zone not needed for canal operation and defense but useful in the agricultural, industrial and urban development of Panama. The areas being considered have been selected with the concurrence of the Department of Defense and the Panama Canal Company."

Mundt's testimony confirmed a previously unverified report that the U.S. government had redrawn the map of the 10-mile-wide Canal Zone, to be part of the new treaty.

Mundt's testimony before the House merchant marine subcommittee headed by Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., was revealing about the attitude of the U.S. negotiators.

"We can afford to make adjustments in our treaty relations with Panama," Mundt testified. "U.S. control and defense of a canal well into the next century is not at stake in the current negotiations. We are seeking a treaty arrangement with Panama that will ensure the continuation of the U.S. presence in tranquility. This means that this presence must not be imposed on an unwilling partner."

Mundt said that under the new treaty, commercial activities now conducted by the canal company would be phased gradually into private operation under Panamanian law.

But the United States would reserve the right to continue essential commercial services where satisfactory private operations cannot be arranged.

Since the United States now controls all deep-water port capacity in the republic, Mundt said, some piers would be turned over to Panama outright because U.S. needs for them would be reduced by termination of the Canal Company's commercial activity.

Delaware Said Company State

. . . Du Ponts' Effects 'Like Bad Medicine,' Nader Charges

Washington (UPI) — Ralph Nader charged Tuesday the wealthy Du Pont corporate family has controlled the people, politics and press in the "company state" of Delaware.

"Like bad medicine that goes down sweetly, the effects of the company on the community too often include damage across a score of areas . . . ' Nader said in an 800-page report that accused the company of allowing racial segregation urban poverty and tax inequities to continue.

Du Pont President Charles B. McCoy said the report was "completely one-sided and so negative that it defeats its avowed purpose of helpcng the people of the state."

"Every corporate action is attacked, even those in which the company expends large amounts of time and money for community projects," McCoy added. "The company's motives are twisted to fit the authros' preconceived notions."

Largest Chemical Company

The E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Co, the world's largest chemical company, has its headquarters in Wilmington, Del. Together with other family interests in the state, the Du Ponts employ 11% of the state's work force, the report said.

Although critical of the firm, Nader did say its techniques in using its power were "not as crude or roughshod as is often the case in coal, textile or paper mill company towns."

The report, entitled "The Company State," was compiled by a 10-member "Nader Raider" group headed by James L. Phelan and Robert C. Pozen, both Yale law students. It was done under Nader's personal supervision.

Its main contentions:

—Wilmington has become a town where businessmen profit by day and scurry to suburbs at night "while the poor and blue-collar people suffer a deteriorating city whose principal forms of renewal are malls near Du Pont buildings and highways to get suburbanites in and out quickly."

—"While over discrimination seems to have disappeared, the vestiges of Du Pont's past racism still remains." The report said less than 1% of white collar workers in the chemical industry in 1969 were black, while they comprised 15% of the state's population.

—The Du Pont family controls the two Wilmington newspapers, the Morning News and Evening Journal. "Some of the worst abuses of the Du Pont monoploy of news in Delaware involve community issues — the reporting of political campaigns and the coverage of important local projects. The owners of the News-Journal have used the paper as their political mouthpiece and as a forum for conservative casuses."

—The Du Ponts have great influence in state government and also in candidacies for federal offices The report notes that Pierre S. Du Pont, R-Del., was elected to Congress in 1970, and Sen. William Roth, R-Del., also elected in 1970, is "firmly entrenched in the corporate establishment." Gov. Russell Peterson, a Republican, is a former Du Pont employee

"Since the Delaware legislature is so weak and the political resources of the corporate elite are so great, the Du Pont company or family can easily obtain legislative approval for mearsures." the report said.

—The family and company have failed to pay millions of dollars in property taxes over the past 15 years because of non-uniform assessment ratios. "In 1970 alone, if Du Pont family land had been assessed at the same level per unit of size as that of most residential lots in New Castle County, the family would have paid over $1 million more in property and school taxes in that county," the report claimed.

Fiduciary Duty 'Breached

It also charged that directors of the Wilmington Trust Co., one of two major banks in the state controlled by the Du Ponts, "May have breached their fiduciary duty to the bank's stockholders" when they failed to liquidate immediately a $3 million guarantee. The guarantee was given by Du Pont board chairman Lammot Du Pont Copeland Sr., on a loan to his son, Lammot Jr., following a bankruptcy petition Oct. 20, 1970, by the son, declaring assets of $25.7 million and liabilities of $59.1 million.

Another aspect of the report dealt with the social life of the Du Ponts and their "Wilmington Club" and Wilmington country club which they said makes every effort to insure its exclusivity "which means no blacks, Jews, Italians, Poles or middle-class workers."

Among the report's recommendations are the outright sale of both Wilmington newspapers, strong conflict of interst and campaign expenditure laws in Delaware, appointment of at least three public interest directors to the Du Pont board, and a state income tax "effectively progressive in the upper brackets."

In his seven-page response, McCoy said the report "espouses a political philosophy that is alien to the essential directions of American public policy and proposes to alter drastically our economic system which is based on free enterprise "

The Nader report concluded that with the wealth and expertise of the Du Ponts, ' Delaware in theory could be the vanguard of social progress and justice in the United States. Instead, Delaware constitutes the model of a rigidly divided society with wide inequities between social classes."

11% BOOST FOR LINCOLN . . .

NPPD Announces 9.7% Hike In Rates

The Nebraska Public Power District Monday announced an average 9.7% increase in wholesale and retail electric rates effective Jan. 1

That will meet additional revenue requirements estimated by NPPD at $6.6 million for the coming year.

The increase is the first general hike in retail rates since 1951, NPPD pointed out.

Action on the rate increase was approved by the board of directors at a meeting in Columbus.

Earlier, in Lincoln, officials of the Lincoln Electric System told members of the City Council that the wholesale rate increase affecting Lincoln would amount to 11%.

That will boost the cost of power purchased by the city by about $1 million a year, council members were informed

The NPPD wholesale rate hike presumably will trigger an increase in LES retail rates to electric consumers.

NPPD Board President Frederick Wagener of Lincoln said the rate increases are consistent with price guidelines promulgated by the federal government.

The board's rate resolution said that after studying operating costs and current rates, a study committee recommended the formulation of a new single set of rates which are "fair, reasonable and non-discriminatory."

The increase was inevitable, Wagener said, because of rising costs for such items as fuel, materials, equipment, interest rates and wages

There has also been "an added burden placed on NPPD due to fundamental changes in technology and environmental attitudes," Wagener said.

NPPD serves 26 rural public power districts at wholesale as well as the Loup River Public Power District and 62 cities and towns It also supplies electricity at retail to 271 communities.

AND AWAY WE GO OVER THE SNOW

Federal Raises OKd In Senate

Washington (UPI) — The Senate voted Monday in defiance of President Nixon to give all 4.1 million federal, military and civilian employes a 5.5% pay increase Jan. 1 rather than postpone it for six months as Nixon had wanted.

If the House goes along, the Jan. 1 pay boost would add $1 billion to the government's deficit for the current fiscal year, which is expected to amount to more than $28 billion.

In announcing his new economic program, Nixon postponed until July 1 a scheduled pay boost for federal workers intended to make their wages comparable to salaries paid non-government workers with the same responsibilities.

The Senate vote, attaching the pay boost to Nixon's bill giving him control over prices and wages for an additional 17 months, would override Nixon's decision to delay the raises.

The pay amendment, offered by Sens. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., and Hiram Fong, R-Hawaii, would give the nation's 2 6 million military men their third pay increase within 12 months.

Lower Ranks

They received one Jan. 1 and another recently as a rider to the bill extending the draft law. That increase, averaging 15%. went chiefly to military men at the lower rungs, just about doubling what a raw recruit was paid. It was a $2.4 billion increase, the biggest military pay raise in U.S. history.

Federal law provides that military pay must go up whenever federal civilian employes' pay rises, giving the military their new coat-tail rise.

More than half of the $2 billion, six-month increase will go to the military and the rest to the government's 1.5 civilian workers except those in the U.S. Postal Service, whose unions negotiate their own raises. Blue collar workers may get slightly less than the full 5.5% increase, depending on the cost of living where they work.

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., cast the only "no" vote against the increase, contending the Pay Board should have the same power to control federal employes' salaries as those of any other segment of the economy.

First Action

The vote was the first Senate action on the bill extending until April 30, 1973, Nixon's power to control wages and prices.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the House-Senate Economic Committee, staged a one-man protest against the bill, keeping the floor for hours. He said Congress would come to regret giving such vast pwers to the President.

"If a Democratic president had demanded this much power over the economy, the business and financial community would have been marching down Pennsylvania Avenue in protest!" Proxmire said to a nearly empty Senate chamber.

Proxmire predicted that the machinery Nixon has established to control the economy would inject "confusion, disillusion and perhaps paralysis" into the economy and create more unemployment.

Veterinarians Told Vaccine Effective In Controlling VEE

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A U.S. Department of Agriculture veterinarian said Monday that the vaccine for Venezuelan equine encephalomylitis (VEE) proved "quite effective" in controlling the spread of the disease after its outbreak last summer in Texas

Dr. H. E. Metcalf of Denver, Colo., spoke to the opening session of the three-day annual convention of the Nebraska Veterinary Medical Association being held in Lincoln.

Discussing research done in the Brownville area — the initial point of outbreak of the sleeping sickness virus, Dr. Metcalf said 30% of the horse population had been vaccinated prior to the outbreak but 100% was achieved in the ensuing days.

He credited the vaccine and other control measures with holding the death rate of the area's horse population to 10%.

Dr. Metcalf said that a 94% vaccination rate has now been achieved in a 19-state area bordering Texas, the Gulf of Mexico and the Easter seaboard.

If there is a new outbreak next summer, Dr. Metcalf said, the likely states are Colorado. Kansas and Missouri, but "no state can be considered out of danger because of the movement of horses."

The USDA official said the Venezuelan strain of horse sleeping sickness cannot be clinically distinguished between the Eastern and Western varieties and urged veterinarians to obtain laboratory confirmation of any new cases of encephalomylitis

The horse itself is the reservoir of VEE, which is transmitted by mosquitoes, and Dr. Metcalf said the USDA is continuing to monitor all reported cases of encephalmylitis.

Dr. Metcalf said VEE rarely causes other than "mild symptoms" in human adults, but can cause death in children.

Dr Metcalf encouraged horse owners and veterinarians to vaccinate horses against VEE, contending the few deaths that may occur among horses from the vaccine are far outweighed by safety factor in preventing the death of even one child

Other speakers Monday were Dr. Cliff Nelson of Jewell, Iowa, on swine herd health and Dr. Charles A. Mebus of the University of Nebraska on African swine fever and vaccine for calf diarrhea.

Approximately 175 Nebraska veterinarians are expected to attend the convention, but early registrations were slowed by weather and road conditions, according to a convention official.

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher is scheduled to address the convention Tuesday, when new association officers and the "Veterinarian of the Year" will be named.

Talk Of Imminent Takeover Of LOMR Programs Poked

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln School Supt. John Prasch said Monday he believes it's "cruel to parents" to suggest that a school takeover of child development programs of the Lancaster Office of Mental Retardation (LOMR) is imminent.

Recent statements have indicated that the Lincoln Board of Education will eventually assume responsibility for the PEP and TRY programs now operated under LOMR.

But Prasch said at a meeting of the school system's special education advisory committee that the matter had not yet been discussed with the school board.

Prasch said he agreed with sentiment for an eventual school takeover of the teaching aspects of the child development programs, but he suggested "we also have to think of strategies."

"It's important not to get the Board of Education backed into a defensive position on this," said Prasch.

He said he was "sorry" to see statements indicating such a change is imminent when, in fact, the board has yet to discuss the matter.

And he suggested it is "cruel to parents to be telling them something is going to happen if it's not going to happen "

David Blume, director of the Capital Association for Retarded Children (CARC), agreed that the "publicity was unfortunate."

Blume said a proposal under discussion would call for the schools to assume responsibility for the child development programs for youngsters from 5 to 21, while LOMR might retain the administration of the programs for those under 5 and over 21.

Prasch said he and Blume have been checking names and numbers of students being served in the various programs now to assess the situation.

"We have a public school responsibility for all children of public school age," said Prasch, but he cautioned that "that's different from saying the public schools can take over existing programs."

A major concern immediately, he suggested, is identifying each child in the community who could benefit from child development services.

Blume and John Luebs, director of LOMR, agreed.

Luebs said his agency is "looking for the schools to take the teaching responsibility for the programs," but only as a means of expanding and improving services, rather than "dumping" programs on the schools.

Luebs has come under fire recently from parents upset over the demotion of two supervisors in LOMR programs.

Frazier Convicted Of Murdering 5 Persons

Redwood City, Calif. (AP) — John Linley Frazier, 25, was convicted Monday of first-degree murder in the slayings of an eye surgeon and four others.

The same Superior Court jury, which began deliberations last Friday in the trial, must now determine if Frazier is sane.

Frazier, a former automobile mechnic, was convicted of five counts of murder in the 1970 killings of Dr. Victor Ohta, three members of Ohta's family and a secretary.

He pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity.

Firemen seeking water to fight a blaze at Ohta's $250,000 hilltop mansion near Santa Cruz Oct. 18, 1970, discovered the five bodies in the family swimming pool.

All five were blindfolded and bound at the wrists with silk scarves.

Ohta, 45, a wealthy eye surgeon of Japanese decent, was shot three times with a .38-caliber pistol.

The others — Ohta's wife, Virginia, 43, their sons, Derrick, 12, and Taggart, 11, and Ohta's secretary Dorothy Cadwallader, 38 — were each shot with a .22-caliber pistol, authorities said.

Under the windshield of Ohta's Rolls-Royce, authorities found a typewritten note which said: "Hallowe'n, 1970. Today, World War 3 will begin as brought to you by the people of the Free Universe.

"From this day forward anyone and-or company of persons who misueses the natural environment or destroys same will suffer the penalty of death by the people of the Free Universe."

The note, typed on Ohta's typewriter, was signed "Knight of Wands, Knight of Cups, Knights of Pentacles, Knight of Swords" — symbols of key cards in the Tarot fortune-telling deck.

On Oct. 23, Frazier, unarmed, was arrested in the shack where he lived, about half a mile from the murder scene. He offered no resistance.

Joseph Cole, 23, testified that he was one of the three youths who went to authorities after the murders, saying they thought Frazier might have been involved. He said Frazier had talked of "ripping off rednecks."

U.N. Observers Sought

. . . Pakistani Air Force Reserves Called Up

By United Press International

The Pakistani government, conceding that Indian troops had captured territory in East Pakistan, called up the air force reserves Monday and urged the United Nations to send observers to the frontier.

Fighting between Indian and Pakistani troops in East Pakistan continued to rage for the third day with Pakistan reporting renewed major Indian attacks on three border sectors of East Pakistan.

An Indian government official said outside attempts to get Pakistani President Agha Mohammed Yahya Kahn to agree to "a political solution have failed."

There was no reaction from Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to a message from President Nixon delivered Monday reportedly concerning withdrawal of both Indian and Pakistani troops from border positions and for the disengagement of forces.

Chinese Vice Premier Li Hsien-nien said in Peking that China continues to support Pakistan and "we maintain that disputes between states should be settled by the two parties concerned through peaceful consultations and absolutely not by resorting to force."

In Islamabad, officials admitted Pakistani forces had suffered military setbacks and ordered all air force reserves under 55 years old who were released or discharged after Jan. 1, 1968, to report immediately for service.

Earlier, a Pakistani spokesman in Rawalpindi told newsmen that Jibannager, five miles inside Pakistani territory in the Jessore sector of East Pakistan's western border had been captured. It is 60 miles north of Calcutta. He also said Indian forces had taken territory in Chittagong in the southeast and the Sylhet region in the northeast.

He said the loss of "a few thousand yards" meant nothing. "We have not only halted, but given a bloody nose to the Indians."

East Pakistani rebels want India to capture territory in East Pakistan so that the rebels can establish an independent Bangla Desh (Bengal Land) government.

Sylhet is a hilly, tea-producing area and Chittagong sector contains the nation's major port which is linked to the interior by railroad.

Yahya Cables Thant

Radio Pakistan reported Yahya sent U.N. Secretary General Thant a message Sunday proposing that U.N observers be stationed in East Pakistan. Spokesman for the Pakistani U.N. delegation confirmed that the message had been sent.

Radio Pakistan, reporting from Dacca said Indian forces shelled Jessore town Monday, killing one person and injuring several. Jessore, the capital of Jessore district, is about 20 miles by road from East Pakistan's western border.

But an Indian government spokesman in New Delhi denied the Radio Pakistan report of Indian attacks in the Jessore and Sylhet sectors, saying it was East Pakistani rebels who were active in those areas.

Coins Recovered

London (AP) — Treasure hunter Rex Cowan, a onetime London lawyer, said his organization recovered 3,000 silver coins and three bronze cannon from the wreck of the Hollandia, a Dutch merchant ship that sank off Britain's Scilly Isles in the 18th century.

Ahmed Lozi

Jordan King Names Lozi New Premier

By The Associated Press

Jordan's King Hussein appointed a prime minister Monday to succeed assassinated Wafi Tell and indicated the new man's job would include keeping up pressure on the Palestinian guerrillas.

Ahmad Lozi, 46, was minister of finance before taking the prime minister post. To friends, Lozi is a "nice, polite, quiet fellow who should do a a good job." To critics, he is colorless and likely to operate in the king's shadow.

In Beirut, a guerrilla source said the "Black September Organization" that claimed responsibility for the assassination of Tell is a secret branch of Al Fatah, the largest Palestinian guerrilla group.

Nixon To Veto Tax Bill If It Doesn't Suit Him

Washington (AP) — President Nixon declared Monday he will veto the pending tax-cut bill unless it is stripped of both a check-off plan to finance presidential campaigns and a set of "budget-busting Senate amendments."

Nixon's warning was relayed by his chief Capitol Hill lobbyist, Clark MacGregor, as a conference committee met to settle differences between House and Senate versions of the bill.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., discounted the threat, telling reporters: "It's not the first time a statement like that has been made. It's a polite way to put pressure on the conference."

Mills, who heads the House conferees as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, refused again to state his position on the Senate-approved provision to finance presidential campaigns. It would permit taxpayers to allot a dollar of their income tax to a special fund. But he is believed to favor the basic idea

This One Or None

Mills has said that if Nixon vetoes this bill it will be impossible to pass this year a tax-cut measure which is a major part of the presidential program for stimulating the economy

MacGregor and other aides met with Nixon for three hours Monday. Afterward, White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon "concluded that should Congress fail to remove from the tax bill . . . the budget-busting Senate amendments and the political check-off rider, he will be unable to give his approval to this particular legislation."

Both MacGregor and Ziegler said they are optimistic Congress will pass a bill acceptable to the White House before its Christmas recess. They would not say whether Nixon would call Congress back into special session if it quits without doing so.

Nixon proposed the $26-billion tax-cut bill on Aug. 15 when he announced Phase 1 of his new economic program. The legislation cleared the House in a form reportedly acceptable to the White House — but it underwent major revisions on the Senate floor.

One change sought by the deficit-ridden Democratic party would allow individuals to earmark $1 of their taxes to finance presidential campaigns.

Over $40 Billion

MacGregor said Senate amendments had "ballooned to greater than $40 billion over three years" the tax-cut provisions in the legislation The additional cuts, he told newsmen, would increase the federal deficit by "many billions annually and thus are highly inflationary."

MacGregor specifically mentioned three major provisions added by the Senate: tax relief for parents of college students, an increase to $800 in the personal income tax exemption and tax credits for firms that locate in ghettos or rural areas.

These and other Senate amendments, he said, would result in an additional deficit of $4 3 billion in fiscal 1972 and $5 5 billion in 1973

Hunt Hampered For Copter Carrying 33

Saigon (AP) — High winds and heavy rains hampered the search Tuesday for a U.S. Army helicopter which went down north of Da Nang with 33 Americans aboard.

Air and sea search by planes, helicopters and U.S. Navy ships had found no trace of the twin-rotor CH47 Chinook by Tuesday morning.

The helicopter was en route from Da Nang to Phu Bai, 50 miles to the north, when it crashed Sunday with a crew of five and 28 members of an infantry battalion. All were from the 101st Airborne Division, headquartered at Camp Eagle, near Phu Bai

Military sources said the pilot radioed that he had a minor mechanical problem and was returning to Da Nang. Minutes later he reported an "emergency," then lost contact with air controllers.

The normal flight pattern for helicopters en route from Da Nang to Phu Bai is along the coastline, and there was no indication whether the chopper had crashed inland or in the South China Sea.

There were thunderstorms and low visibility in the area at the time, but military spokesmen at Da Nang said the flight was considered "normal."

If all 33 Americans aboard perished it would be the worst U.S. helicopter disaster in nearly four years. A CH53 Jolly Green Giant crashed into a mountain near Dong Ha on Jan 8, 1968, killing all 41 Americans aboard.

The U.S. Command reported the loss of three other helicopters and an F4 Phantom jet fighter-bomber with three crewmen killed, three missing and six wounded.

The losses raised to 8,033 the number of aircraft reported lost to all causes in the Indochina war since Jan. 1 1961.

President To Begin Trip To Red China Feb. 21

Washington (AP) — President Nixon will begin on Feb. 21 a historic visit to Peking, the White House announced Monday. The chief exelutive has described the broad aim of the unprecedented mission as the "normalization of relations" with China.

As this news was released simultaneously here and in the Chinese capital, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said American officials will provide additional information on the trip within the next 24 hours.

He said he would be able to disclose Tuesday the length of the President's stay in China and other details such as the route he will take on his unprecedented flight to become the first American president ever to go to China.

There had been published and broadcast reports in the United States that hitches had developed in planning for the Nixon trip, but Ziegler said, "Preparations continue to go well and the general framework has been established."

The joint Washington-Peking announcement of the February date was unusually brief:

"The government of the People's Republic of China and the government of the United States of America have agreed that President Nixon's visit to China shall begin on Feb. 21, 1972."

That will be some three months before Nixon is scheduled to visit Moscow for another first-ever summit conference with Soviet leaders in their capital city.

In advance of the Peking and Moscow trips, as the White House has announced within the past week, Nixon plans a series of face-to-face consultations with the leaders of such major allies as Japan, Britain, France, West Germany and Canada.

STORY AT RIGHT

MRS. BANUELOS . . . sits with Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., during hearing.

Head Of Immigration Claims Banuelos Raid 'Put-Up Job'

Washington (AP) — The head of the Immigration Service agreed with a senator Monday that the immigration agents' raid on Mrs. Romana Banuelos' California plant last month was "a put-up job."

Raymond F. Farrell, commissioner of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, made the statement during a Senate Finance Commitee hearing on President Nixon's nomination of Mrs. Banuelos for U.S. treasurer.

Agents found 36 illegal aliens among about 300 employes at her Ramona Food products plant in Gardena, Calif., in the Oct. 5 raid.

Sen. Wallace Bennett, R-Utah, charged that the raid was "a put-up job," initiated by federal employes sympathetic to jobless Americans.

Bennett said the Banuelos company was chosen because of its maximum publicity value.

"Senator, I agree with you," said Farrell.

The Immigration Service's Los Angeles district director, George K. Rosenberg, has said the raid was called partly because of an informer's tip and because the company was on his "active file" of firms where illegal aliens were likely to be found.

Farrell said six raids had been made at the plant since 1967 with no more than a dozen aliens being found at any time until last October.

Mrs. Banuelos faced almost exclusive questioning on Mexican alien employment at her plant.

Knowledge Denied

She denied she knew illegal aliens worked at her company until the Immigration Service informed her.

Committee Chairman Russell Long, D-La., askel how she would know if an employe was an illegal alien.

"That's one thing we don't know," she said.

Some said it was easy to obtain, forge or lie about the necessary "green card" showing that a person is legally in this country, as well as the Social Security card, two requirements for employment.

The Immigration Service last year rounded up 412,000 illegal aliens. There are an estimated 250,000 in the Los Angeles area.

Ribicoff Queries

Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., asked if Mrs. Banuelos was aware that illegal immigration boosts unemployment for Americans.

"I don't know," she said.

Ribicoff charged, "You don't seem to be aware of problems of Mexican-Americans on the lower economic scale."

Under questioning of Republican senators, it was established that Mrs. Banuelos had a profit-sharing plan, a contract with a Teamsters local for a closed shop, and paid the same wages to all employes, regardless of background: $1.65 to $3.12 an hour, depending on length of employment.

"To say there is something wrong with Mrs. Banuelos because illegal aliens compete with Mexican-Americans for jobs seems to me to go beyond the measure of fairness," said Sen. Clifford Hanson, R-Wyo.

Curb On Health-Care Costs Hinted

Washington (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, hinted Monday at possible congressional action if the administration's Phase 2 economic controls do not curb rising health-care costs.

Present controls are "little more than paper tigers," the Louisiana Democrat told the White House Conference on Aging.

If they do not work, he said, "then perhaps it will be up to the Congress to seek a way to stabilize the health-care costs so that the aged will no longer be the unwilling victims of economic circumstances over which they have no control."

Long predicted that the 92nd Congress will "legislate to guarantee a national minimum income standard for the aged" and provide new tax breaks for the elderly and Social Security benefit increases. But he said he remains strongly opposed to the administration's welfare-reform bill tied to Social Security legislation.

Long Among 8

Long was among eight congressional leaders addressing the conference at four hotels. He followed Sen. Wallace F. Bennett, R-Utah, who became ill in the middle of his speech.

Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., said the conference will be "a colossal bomb . . . a flop . . . a failure" if it only makes recommendations.

"To be effective, he said, "you must prepare yourselves for the day-by-day, often tedious job of implementing your report through the political system."

Eagleton, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on aging, suggested there is "the basis for a political alliance" between the elderly and school officials.

Bond issues and school-tax boosts, he said, are often defeated by the elderly, two-thirds of whom are property owners, because of their fear of higher taxes.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., told another luncheon that private pension plans, "cast in the role of providing a supplement to the retirement income delivered by Social Security," are not doing the job.

"The average employe covered by a private pension plan . . . cannot count on getting anything from that plan," said Javits. He has introduced a bill which would protect a worker's pension rights when he lost or changed jobs or the employer went out of business.

Winnie Ruth Judd Set Free

Florence, Ariz. (AP) — Winnie Ruth Judd, Arizona's trunk murderess of the 1930s, was granted her freedom by the State Parole Board Monday.

The 67-year-old onetime "Tiger Woman" promised to live "as quietly as I can" but stopped short of saying she would not tell the story of her 40-year-old crime. She and her attorney said any profits would go to charity.

Arizona corrections officials said it would take several weeks to arrange her release to the Dr. John Blemer family of Danville, Calif., who sheltered her during her seventh escape.

The conditions almost certainly will include a provision that Mrs. Judd not profit financially from any story of the 1931 deaths of her two friends and the shipment of their bodies to Los Angeles in trunks, or her seven subsequent escapes.

Mrs. Judd was convicted of the 1931 murder of Agnes Anne LeRoi, 27. The bodies of Miss LeRoi and Hedvig Samuelson, 25, were dismembered and shipped to Los Angeles in two trunks. However, Mrs. Judd was never tried in the Samuelson slaying.

Holiday Traffic Costs 607 Lives In Road Crashes

By The Associated Press

Heavy highway traffic during the four-day Thanksgiving Day holiday weekend cost 607 lives.

This was below the low end of a National Safety Council advance estimate that between 620 and 720 persons might be killed in crashes between 6 p.m. Wednesday, the eve of the holiday, and midnight Sunday.

The council calculates that fatalities over a holiday period run as high as 25% above the toll of a similar period without a holiday involved.

The 1971 Thanksgiving day weekend compared with 646 fatalities counted by The Associated Press in the corresponding weekend last year. The Thanksgiving toll of 764 in 1968 was the highest of any holiday period on record.

Villa Uncovered

Fordham, England (AP) — An ancient Roman villa with hand-painted plasterwork was uncovered in this eastern English town.

Ford Given 2.9% Increase In Prices

Washington (UPI) — The Price Commission Monday granted a price increase to Ford Motor Co. giving it authority to charge an average of 2.9% more on 1972 model cars, trucks, and optional equipment.

Ford originally asked for a 4.4% increase, but the commission cut that back, as it did with Chrysler's inititai request for 5.3% on 1972 production.

The commission approved increases of 4.5% for Chrysler and 2.5% for American Motors.

A General Motors request for a 2.5% increase is pending, along with a second application for a 0.5% boost on new safety and pollution control devices.

While the Chrysler increase was the largest granted, the company announced that it would boost prices only 3%.

Earlier Monday, the commission rejected an increase request lower than its own 2.5% economy-wide price hike target because the proposal would have boosted the firm's profit margin.

The seven-member panel turned down an application from the Oscar Mayer Co. of Madison, Wis., for a 1.3% hike on processed meat products.

The commission announced before it began operation Nov. 14 that its general policy for price increases would be to permit only those that reflected additional new costs — such as higher wages or raw material prices — minus the gains in productivity the company may be getting from new machines or other improvements.

The commission said two price increase requests from Oscar Mayer were for 27.8 and 12.7%.

Losses Reported

Lusaka, Zambia (AP) — The Dairy Produce Board, a government-subsidized agency that sells imported butter at a loss, has a deficit of about $4,200 a day, records show.

Manson Gets 3 Sentences

Los Angeles (UPI) — Charles Manson, already under eight death sentences for the Tate-Labianca murders, Monday was given three sentences of life imprisonment in his second murder trial.

The 37-year-old cult leader was sentenced to life for the slayings of movie stuntman Donald "Shorty" Shea, whose body never was found, and for the murder of and the conspiracy to murder musician Gary Hinman.

Manson's lawyer, Irving Kanarek, insisted to the end that Manson, 37, was completely innocent. "The only thing he ever did wrong was to make love to teen-age girls."

Manson was dragged out of the courtroom again, telling the jury, "You're all in prison. The only thing you judged is what they told you. You didn't judge nothing else."

The eight-man, four-woman Superior Court jury, which has been sequestered since the trial began July 23, reached the verdict on the penalty after only five hours and 20 minutes of deliberation.

Moves Mapped

Moscow (AP) — Soviet scientists use aircraft to map the movements of such fur bearing animals as beavers, sea lions and seals, the Tass news agency reported. It said the information was gathered for hunting as well as scientific purposes.

Boy, Girl Dorms Criticized

By ROBERT PETERSON

Question: "Are college officials nuts? My husband and I just visited our grandson at college and were shocked by the living arrangements. Boys and girls now live in the same dorms and even on the same floors—and even use the same bathrooms! We dropped by early in the morning and boys and girls alike were wandering around the corridor in various stages of undress. When I went to college we'd never dream of letting both sexes live in the same dorm."

Answer: Maybe you didn't dream about it, but I'll bet lots of boys did. College officials today take the view that residential segregation by sex, race or creed just isn't democratic. They also take a realistic view which claims that by the time you're in college you know the difference between right and wrong and will act accordingly. They also point out there's nothing young people can do in a dorm that they can't do in the back seat of a parked car. Boys can't have girls as roommates yet in college, but who knows what the next decade will bring.

Question: "You quoted someone recently who was aghast at home repair costs. Well, so am I. My house hadn't been painted for 12 years so I phoned the man who did it last time. I'm a little deaf but understood him to say it would cost $800 to give it two coats, which was about what it cost last time, so I told him to go ahead. When the bill came later it turned out to be $1,800. I screamed and protested but he said that was what he quoted me and that costs had more than doubled the past dozen years. Is this possible?"

Answer: Yes, and then some. Elders who are living on fixed incomes face a real bind when endeavoring to make home improvements. It's never wise to accept a quoted price over the phone and order major work done. To avoid misunderstandings always ask for written quotations.

Question: "I get sick and tired of all these articles on how older people should work and keep busy. I maintain all people are born different—some full of ambition and some lazy. I'm in the latter category and now that I've got my social security of $128 monthly plus some income from savings, nobody's going to push me back to the grindstone."

Answer: That's your privilege. Elders who really enjoy leisure should sit back and savor it. They've served their time at the grindstone and are entitled to take it easy. But many elders find that leisure bores them to death. These are the folks who should be prodded back to work.

Question: "I'm 74, living alone, and scared to death I may fall or become ill and unable to summon help. What's the best precaution?"

Answer: Work out an arrangement with a friend under which you exchange calls at least once a day. Or ask officials in your church or Golden Age Club to help you locate someone to call you daily. It's very important that elders who live alone have someone checking daily on their well-being.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Third parties, and fourth and fifth ones, for that matter, have come and gone on the American scene like the changing of the seasons of the year. Now and then they have been an influence of some importance upon the political scene but have seldom made a significant showing at the polls.

The unfortunate thing is that these third-party movements have seemed to have little impact upon the philosophy and actions of the two major national parties, the Democrats and Republicans. In an interview in The Lincoln Star yesterday, Robert Hirshfield discussed his efforts to get the Peace and Freedom party on the Nebraska ballot in 1972.

He spoke of the image the party has in much of this part of the country—an image stemming from the partly leader ship by militant black Eldridge Cleaver. But he reminded people that Dr. Benjamin Spock, Eugene McCarthy, Shirley Chisolm and Gore Vidal also support the party.

★

We assume that Hirshfield knows that adding those names to the support of the Peace and Freedom party still doesn't do much for the party's image in these parts. Those names may not be as feared as Cleaver's but they are held in equal disdain.

Hirshfield has no illusions about winning an election but he does hope to exert influence in the political arena. He spoke of being tired of the same offerings from both national parties.

He said: "We need men who are above politics; men who aren't owned by some corporation. We've got to change this rich man's election business."

We are not ready to support the Peace and Freedom party but we can agree with a lot of what Hirshfield says. Our political process was not operating at its finest, certainly, when it gave us four years ago Hubert Humphrey and Richard M. Nixon And the system is not operating very well today.

★

The election of 1972 probably will not offer us much of a change from recent years. The GOP nominee, of course, will be President Nixon. The Democrats have a host of hopefuls at the moment but there is none who offers anything really different.

It was noted in the news last week that AFL-CIO President George Meany and the labor movement offered the only real alternative and challenge to President Nixon at this time. But Meany is not considered even a possible candidate.

Where do all the candidates come from? They come from the House and Senate and now and then from the ranks of the governors. Our political system is a system of inbreeding. You get in the system and then you conform to it. You perform all its duties, meet all its demands and slowly work yourself up in it.

But are there not outstanding men and women in the nation outside of the party? Of course there are, but they cannot crack the party disciplines that dictate a man from the system as the presidential candidate.

Thus, we will have in 1972, not a new face, but old faces talking about the same old problems and the same old ways of solving them. They will be talking about methods that have left the problems unsolved now for at least 25 years, since the end of World War II.

Nixon has tried, with governmental reform, welfare reform, revenue-sharing or block grants; etc., but he has gotten nowhere. He has failed, not just because of partisan politics, but because he is not strong enough at leadership and because his approaches have no special appeal.

The Democrats have opposed him partly for political reasons and partly because they don't have a lot of faith in many elements of his approach. Their alternatives, however, have really been no better and we see nothing on the horizon of real promise, nothing of imagination, nothing very creative or innovative.

What the two national parties need is a realization that there is considerable discontent in the land, seen among other ways in the coming and going of third parties. The major parties need new blood, new thinking and a broader base from which to choose their leadership.

'We Feel We've Maintained Balance In The Middle East'

Nixon Handles Foreign Affairs

The announcements weren't startling, at all, only an indication of the thoroughness with which President Nixon operates. Over the past week and through the Thanksgiving holiday weekend, the Western White House at San Clemente disclosed a series of presidential visits with allied leaders.

In mid-December Nixon will talk with French President Pompidou in the Azores. He will travel to Bermuda to meet British Prime Minister Heath Dec. 20-21. West Germany Chancellor Willy Brandt and the President will talk at the Florida White House at Key Biscayne Dec. 28th and 29th. Japanese Prime Minister Sato has been invtied for consultations at San Clemente in early January. Sandwiched in amongst the above will be meetings in the U.S. with Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Israeli Premier Golda Meir.

The various consultations will precede the big summit meetings in Peking and Moscow later into the new year. Several items of mutual concern will be discussed but Nixon has two major objectives in mind: one, to try to cure international trade and monetary ills and, two, to assure America's allies that they are not on the outside looking in because of the U.S. overtures to China and the Soviet Union.

Nixon continues to play the foreign affairs game skillfully. With so much wrong in the world, the President is at least doing a number of things right. at least as far as a majority of Americans are concerned.

The latest Harris survey shows that Nixon's overall standing with the public has now reached 53% positive and 46% negative. This is up two points since late September. Although there are some specific foreign policy areas where the public by and large feels that Nixon is not doing as good a job as possible, the Harris poll says that the public is prepared to believe that Nixon is making progress in "working for peace in the world."

Foreign affairs continues to be the President's forte.

Looking To Adjournment

"Don't pack your bags yet," Senate Majority Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia might be indulging in some wishful thinking over the proposed Saturday target date for adjournment.

Back Monday from a Thanksgiving break, the Senate and the House still face a fairly full agenda before the first session of the 92nd Congress calls it quits.

The Senate will begin to debate President Nixon's nomination of Dr. Earl Butz to be secretary of Agriculture. No one really expects Butz to be rejected, but opponents could make the going rough for awhile. Then the upper house is scheduled to consider the nominations of Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William Rehnquist to the U.S. Supreme Court, with Powell an acknowledged shoo-in but Rehnquist expected to field some last minute sniping from the liberal element that successfully sidetracked the nominations of Haynsworth and Carswell.

The Senate has already passed a foreign aid bill, some $800 million less than the House approved but temporary foreign aid spending authority has been extended only until Dec. 8 and final agreement has to be reached on the issue this session

The tax cut bill, which includes the controversial amendment providing for taxpayer-financing of presidential election campaigns, might be the issue that really forces Congress into over-time. President Nixon said Monday he will veto the measure if "budget-busting Senate amendments" or the campaign-reform provision — which has not as yet been voted on by the House — are included in the final package.

Many congressional leaders feel that tax cut arguments can be worked out in conference, but if the final compromise version contains the campaign financing plan, Congress could not re-write a new tax bill in light of a Nixon veto this session.

Thus Congress comes to the end of another session with a backlog of work piled up. It's to be expected. If the calander were clear the U.S. would have reached Utopia or Congress would have been dissolved. We aren't likely to see either.

Different Person

Lincoln, Neb.

The "Kathryn M. Gross" whose name appeared in the October 5 Star Daily Record for petit larceny is not the same person as my wife, Katherine.

Even though this appeared in the paper more than seven weeks ago, we still hear comments about my wife's shoplifting. I want to make a public statement that this was someone else.

Obscene Language

Lincoln, Star

The Star's comic strip "Laff-A-Day," Saturday, Nov. 27, showing a middle-eaged gentleman watching television and telling his wife, "I must have eaten a pound of soap for using those words as a boy," certainly hits the nail squarely on the head and also touches on a sore spot of mine.

I own and operate a set of short-range two-way radios for personal use. One in each car and one in our home. We can communicate between the cars, or between either car and the house, with a normal range of 10 to 15 miles.

Our equipment comes under the jurisdiction of the Federal Communications Commission and we must have license and call letters, etc. Just as does a commercial broadcasting station or television station.

Under the rules set forth by the FCC for our equipment, Volume VI, Part 95, Subpart D, Paragraph 95:83: "Prohibited Uses, (a) A citizen's radio station shall not be used: (3) for the transmission of communications containing obscene, indecent or profane words, language or meanings."

FCC bulletin 1001 (a) goes a little further. "You should remember you are sharing the airwaves with others. Although you do not broadcast to the general public, still the channels are shared with other users, and other people may be listening and find it offensive. If you use obscene, indecent or profane langage on CB, you are not only breaking FCC rules but also violating the federal law. Those who break this law may be punished by a fine up to $10,000, by imprisonment, or both. Also, such violation may result in revocation of your station license."

I often wonder if this could be the same Federal Communications Commission that has jurisdiction over nationwide coast-to-coast televsion?

WONDERING

Appreciation

Lincoln, Neb.

The family of Paul E. Gibson wishes to express sincere appreciation to all his many friends and ours who sent cards and messages of condolence, following his accidental death. God bless each of them.

Nixon And Labor

Burwell, Neb.

In regard to the behavior of AFL-CIO members showing disrespect for Nixon, I hasten to remind the Nixon clique that Nixon has shown disrespect for labor. And as for LBJ and JFK, there is a difference between presidents. I see Nixon as an enemy of labor and I have no confidence in him. I have "followed" him through several years and yet have no confidence in him. It seems that he is going all-out to grab dictatorial power. If he had enough power, I'm sure he would demand a throne.

The White House insinuated that the AFL-CIO insulted the office of the presidency. It seems to me that this sort of jargon is just the reverse—that is, Nixon is insulting the office of the presidency.

I admired Nixon when he announced the freeze, but when I see the gist of it—favoring big money—I could see that he was the same old Nixon—all for the big money element.

New Voters

Lincoln, Neb.

The Star printed a letter on Nov. 24 that I feel should not go unchallenged.

Mr. C. V. Keller was alarmed that the voter registration at U.N.L. showed a more than two-to-one registration of Democrats over Republicans. He tried to suggest the Presidents Kennedy and Johnson got us into the Vietnam war and that President Nixon is getting us out. He should be reminded that President Eisenhower committed us to the defense of South Vietnam 17 years ago. Further, Mr. Nixon may have plans for getting us out, but when—in 10 years? In 20 years.?

I don't believe that today's young people, Democrat or Republican would blindly vote a straight ticket.

All Mr. Keller talked of was war. These new voters have a vast social conscience that hasn't been appeased by the present administration.

I hope the new voters get the change so desperately needed in this country. It makes no difference who brings it about, be he Democrat or Republican.

GEORGE C. THOSTESON, M.D.
To Your Good Health

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My daughter, 13, has diabetes and is under monthly supervision by a specialist in the disease. It is well controlled, but as usual there are families and friends who think they know more about it than the doctor. Would you discuss: A girl who has not menstruated, yet is often difficult to control in diabetes until after she has. Why is it that grandparents refuse to discuss the disease, or even whether there is any in the family? We are still at a loss to find any relative on either side who ever had it. One of my children was told in school that my daughter had to inherit it from some other female in the family, and could not inherit it from a male. Mrs. Y. Y. Y.

Why people refuse to accept fact is not easy to explain. All I can say is that it happens with diseases other than diabetes: epilepsy, cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy Among older people, some refuse to admit that there's such a thing as cancer. It's a superstitious hangover, I suspect, from the days when people were inclined to blame anything bad on something a person "must have done to be punished." Nonsense, of course, but there it is.

Diabetes is often difficult to control during puberty because the glandular system is in a turmoil with the approach of menstruation and other aspects of maturity. Once you've weathered that growing-up time and the body's functions have stabilized, the diabetes usually is much easier to control.

The young diabetic, however, has to learn how to meet other problems. How, for example, to cope with the question of NOT having a hamburger when the rest of the crowd decides to. After all, there is no outward, visible sign of diabetes. You can't tell a person has it by looking at him. How does the youngster explain being "different" without a long explanation? It takes some doing! Your dietitian can explain what snacks are permissible on such occasions so that your daughter does not have to appear different.

As to heredity, somebody once said that a diabetic plum could be found in most family trees. Some ancestor could have had mild diabetes that never was recognized. Maybe several. It's nobody's "fault."

Diabetes can be inherited from either parent, and is far more likely when the trait exists on both sides. It is not, like some characteristics, a sex-linked one.

So stick to your guns. Try gradually to educate your friends and relatives.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please let me add just one more to your list of causes of hot burning feet. Nylon stockings! Since I started wearing cotton-soled nylons, no more hot feet—E.L.N.

Thank you. It won't solve all cases, but it's something worth trying.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What is wrong when one cannot get an X-ray picture of the gall bladder? I had four, and none of them took. I have belching and sickish feelings sometimes. Does it appear to you that I should have my gall bladder out? I feel well generally, and cannot see the need of it myself.—M.G.H.

X-rays of the gall bladder are achieved by giving the patient a substance which, under normal circumstances, will be carried to the gall bladder to make it visible.

When films do not show the gall bladder, it is because the gall bladder is not functioning; that is, for one reason or another, the stustance given does not flow into the gall bladder. It is blocked in some manner.

A non-functioning gall bladder is a potential cause of future trouble—and obviously you have had sufficient symptons to send you to the doctor already.

It's up to you to decide whether you want the operation or don't. (Evidently your doctor has recommended it.) If you don't have it, you MAY get along all right. But you may not. If you don't have the operation, and the gall bladder causes serious trouble later on, then you'll have lost the gamble.

I think the percentages are in your favor to follow your doctor's advice.

☆ ☆ ☆

Dear Dr. Thosteson: When my year-old daughter cries hard, she holds her breath until she passes out. My husband and I have an argument every time she does this He says it won't harm her. I have always heard that lack of oxygen would hurt her brain and maybe her heart. Would you clear this up for us?—S.T.

Where this breath-holding trick comes from, nobody exactly knows, but it is a reliable way of scaring parents half to death.

However, there is no significant lack of oxygen to ether the brain or the heart. The reason: as soon as the child loses consciousness, he automatically begins breathing again, so the interruption in oxygen actually is very brief.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: What are the symptoms of breast cancer I am 16 and would like to know at what age women acquire breast cancer.—C.Q.

Breast cancer, if at all, usually occurs after 40, so I wouldn't do much worrying about it at your age. For future reference, however, you should know what to look for.

The important thing is to be alert for any painless lump in the breast. Such a lump isn't necessarily cancer, of course. But any such lump should be investigated by your physician.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please explain what my doctor called carpal tunnel syndrome. What is the treatment? Is it cancerous?—M.M.

The carpal tunnel is a passageway in the wrist through which nerves pass. If because of injury, infection, etc., there is insufficient space, you can encounter the pain or lameness that you are having. It is NOT cancerous. If it is troublesome enough to warrant it, surgery is the treatment.

Dr. Thosteson is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses them in his column, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Transplanting Of Hearts Not Overly Successful

WASHINGTON — Skepticism has replaced the excitement that greeted the world's first human heart transplant operation four years ago. That first flush of enthusiasm ushered in the so-called "transplant year" of 1968, during which 101 such operations were performed. In contrast, there have been only 15 so far in 1971.

Heart transplants have lost their appeal because of the low rate of survival among transplant patients. According to the National Heart and Lung Institute, 178 persons have received new hearts through surgery to date. Of these, only 29 are still alive. The longest-lived survivor is Louis B. Russell Jr., an industrial arts teacher from Indianapolis, who had his operation Aug. 24, 1968.

From a purely surgical standpoint. the transfer of one person's heart into another's body is described as relatively uncomplicated. The principal reason why so many transplant patients die soon after surgery is that their new hearts are rejected as alien tissue by their bodies. Dr. Norman E. Shumway of Stanford University predicts that "even 10 years from now when we work out the key problems facing us like immune reaction (that is, rejection), I suspect the operation will still be only about two-thirds successful.

Surgery less drastic and hazardous than a transplant can save the lives of many persons with severe heart disease. One operation that has proved effective in many such cases is called a saphenous vein bypass. The surgeon Meanwhile, medical the patient's leg and implants it in his coronary arteries to carry blood around an obstruction. Dr. Michael E. DeBakey says that one-third of all transplant patients to date could have had bypass operations instead.

Meanwhile, medical technology is providing ever more sophisticated mechanical devices to aid those with chronic heart trouble. The battery-operated pacemaker, which regulates the beat of a diseased heart, lasts only about 18 months before it must be replaced. But now an atomic-powered pacemaker has been developed. Operating on a power supply of 150 milligrams of plutonium 238, it is capable of functioning for 10 years.

Work on development of an artificial heart continues also. A significant step in this direction was taken last Aug. 11, when a plastic, air-driven pump was inplanted in 63-year-old Haskell Shanks in Detroit.

Progress in salvaging and repairing hearts comes at a time when heart disease appears to be increasing and to be affecting more young people than formerly. An Army study of soldiers killed in Vietnam found that as many as 30% of those between 18 and 22 years of age "showed significant signs of hardening of the arteries." Although the men seemed healthy when alive, the condition of their arteries would have made them prone to heart attacks later in life.

More than half of all deaths in America each year are caused by cardiovascular diseases—ailments of the heart and its blood vessels. The rate of cardiovascular disease deaths in the United States far exceeds that of any other country. Americans would be less susceptible if they would eat more sensibly, give up smoking, and exercise regularly.

Tunnel Under English Channel Long Discussed; Prime Minister, Engineers Have Varying Views

LONDON—The oldest symbol of a link between Britain and continental Europe is that of a tunnel under the English Channel. Strangely enough, although this was already discussed more than a century and a half ago, it may prove one of the last Pan-European projects realized—despite the fact that the United Kingdom is well on its way to Common Market membership.

The English, still tending to be insular in their traditions, even today remain less enthusiastic about a tunnel than the French. President Pompidou and Foreign Minister Schumann are in the van of those who would like to ratify the growth of the European Community by building a direct road between the continent and the British Isles.

Prime Minister Heath is also happy about the idea; but none of the specific engineering designs so far adduced suit his highly pragmatic hopes. The prime minister, when not living in his official residences of 10 Downing Street or Chequers, has a home so near the geographic area of a tunnel that he has his own very special views.

His house is only about 12 miles from where the entrance would be on the British side. Therefore he has the understandable belief that what should be constructed is the sort of subchannel tube that would allow him on the spur of the moment to get into his car and drive to France for dinner.

But that, unfortunately for him, is not the kind of scheme being presented by the experts. They favor a complicated system that would require transport of cars between Britain and France on trains. This would mean making travel arrangements days if not weeks ahead. He would like a big wide tunnel through which cars could easily drive in both directions with a minimum of complication.

If Heath can't have that—which is a pity because he has been the foremost champion of British admission to political and economic Europe—he would settle for a bridge above the channel. Yet here again the experts have been warning that this is exceedingly difficult as well as risky because of storms and crowded shipping lanes.

Therefore, the prime minister seems ready to settle for a combination, recognizing that the channel is relatively shallow along both the British and French shores but contains a trough in the middle, he would like to study the possibility of a short tunnel linked by two bridges, one on each side.

Unfortunately the engineers don't seem in a mood to produce this kind of project. So, despite his gustatorial eagerness to pave a road to French restaurants and also despite the enthusiasm of his good friend, Pompidou, the scheme seems far from imminent.

It is odd that the ancient idea of a channel tunnel hasn't received a more evident fillip since Parliament voted to join the Common Market. The thought of a tunnel has been kicking around since the 18th century. Indeed, in Napoleon's time the London press was publishing drawings of how such a tunnel, if constructed, could help French armies overrun England.

☆ ☆ ☆

Prime Minister Gladstone's government investigated the prospect in 1883 and a joint parliamentary committee reviewed its "expediency."

The proposal was rejected after the Duke of Cambridge, commander in chief of the army, testified that there was risk of invasion if a tunnel were constructed "and therefore I think you ought to run no risk."

Although the scheme was dropped, the chairman of the channel tunnel company prophecized 88 years ago: "I am nearly certain that this tunnel will be made sooner or later." The probability is that he will in the end be proven right but the time elapsed is longer than anyone would have foreseen.

It seems obvious in these days of wholly different strategic concepts and growing unity among Common Market members—now about to include Britain—that some kind of road between the United Kingdom and the continent must be built.

Whether this will run under or over the channel or combine the features of both routes cannot be foreseen. Nor is it likely that the prime minister will soon be described by his French admirers as the man who came to dinner—at least in the informal sense he fancies.

AEC Okays Continued Work On State N-Plants

Washington (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission said Monday it will permit construction to continue at two nuclear power plants in Nebraska pending completion of an environmental impact study.

The AEC said construltion may continue on the Cooper Nuclear Sation near Brownville and United No. 1 of the Ft. Calhoun Nuclear Power Station northwest of Omaha.

Similar permission was granted last week for continued work on nuclear plants in Connecticut and Arkansas. The AEC said similar orders are expected to permit continued operations at another 20 to 25 plants around the country.

The AEC said permitting the projects to continue would not preclude it from issuing modification or termination orders later, if environmental studies show excessive potential damage.

The commission said any damage resulting from continued operations would be more than offset by economic harm if a temporary halt were called.

Persons opposed to continuing the projects may request an AEC hearing.

Debbie Treated For Hypertension

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Debbie Reynolds was treated at a hospital for hypertension Sunday, but was back on the stage that night, it was reported Monday.

Meet Set Wednesday On Missouri Bank Erosion

Washington (UPI) — Congressman Charles Thone reported Monday a meeting between Nebraska and South Dakota state government officials has been scheduled in Omaha Wednesday seeking agreement over a project to prevent bank erosion on the Missouri River.

Thone said Maj. Gen. J. W. Morris of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers arranged a meeting held Nov. 19 involving representatives of the governors offices from both states.

Thone said the Wednesday meeting would be a followup to the earlier one. He also said a representative of his office would attend the session.

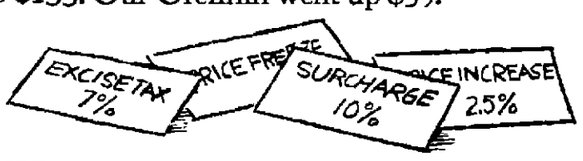
PRICE

Since the Price Freeze ended, you've been hearing all kinds of talk about car prices going up.

A lot of them already have.

Because of surcharges, the price of the VW Beetle has gone up $210; the 2-door Toyota Corolla 1600, $253; the 2-door Datsun 510, $253, and the 2-door Chrysler Colt, $240.*

And it's not just imports. Ford's Pinto has gone up $133. Our Gremlin went up $59.*



What's more, every company that makes cars in America has asked permission to raise prices on all their cars.

So, it won't be long before any car you buy will cost more.

But American Motors dealers still have plenty of 1972 models they bought at "Freeze Prices."

So, if you buy a car from us now, you can save yourself a lot of money.

SELECTION

Because of the price situation, a lot of car dealers don't have many cars on hand. So you may not be able to get the car you want.

The chances are, this won't happen at your American Motors dealer.

Since he's been keeping his stocks up, he'll probably have the make and model you want.

Even if he doesn't, we have a good supply of cars on hand. So we'll probably be able to deliver exactly the car you want faster than any of our competitors.

BUYER PROTECTION PLAN

There's more to buying a car than just price and style. When you buy a '72 from us, you get American Motors Buyer Protection Plan.

When you buy a new 1972 car from an American Motors dealer, American Motors Corporation guarantees to you that, except for tires, it will pay for the repair or replacement of any part it supplies that is defective in material or workmanship.

This guarantee is good for 12 months from the date the car is first used or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

All we require is that the car be properly maintained and cared for under normal use and service in the fifty United States or Canada and that guaranteed repairs or replacements be made by an American Motors dealer.

You get a car that's been road-tested and checked over so thoroughly that we make this promise: If anything goes wrong, and it's our fault, we'll fix it. Free.

And, if we have to keep it overnight to fix it, over 1900 dealers will loan you a car. Free.

You also get a name and toll-free number to call in Detroit if you have a problem.

Nobody else in the business does all this for you after you buy a car.

See your American Motors dealer now.

All things considered, there never was a better time to buy a car from him.

American Motors

*These price increases are based on a comparison of manufacturer's suggested retail prices for the models described. Federal Taxes included, state and local taxes, destination charges and options extra. Import prices are P.O.E. Information based on the Wall Street Journal, Oct. 14, 1971; Automotive News, Nov. 1, 1971 and manufacturer's announcements.

Omaha Bar Operator's Suit Challenges Age Check Law

An Omaha lounge operator filed a suit in Lancaster District Court Monday challenging the constitutionality of state law which requires liquor license holders to check the ages of persons to whom they sell or serve liquor.

Frank Paladino, who operates the Hideaway Lounge in Omaha, also asks the court to reverse a 14-day suspension the Nebraska Liquor Control Commission issued against his operation for alleged violation of the law.

According to the petition, the plaintiff contends that the Nov. 2 Lquior Commission order was issued on evidence which was inadequate to sustain a finding and the penalty is arbitrary and capricious.

In challenging the constitutionality of the law, Paladino contends that the law makes the licensee an insurer of the age of any person to whom he sells or gives a drink of alcoholic liquor on the premises without regard to the licensee's intent and precautions he may have taken to ascertain the age of minors.

He alleges that the evidence presented to the commission showed his operation used due diligence to determine the age of minors in that three pieces of identification including a birth certificate were checked on each minor.

Paladino claims that the law does not take into consideration the documents and proof of age submitted by minors which include such generally-relied upon identification as birth certificates, draft cards, driver's licenses and school identification.

Four Receive 75-Day Sentences In Marijuana Case

Four persons charged with felony offenses of being in possession of the controlled substance, marijuana, have been sentenced to 75 days each in jail.

The four, all of Mexico, were among several arrested in connection with the Aug. 30 discovery of an alleged marijuana processing operation on a farm southeast of Lincoln.

Sentenced were Juan Gonzales Cobian, 28, of Zacatecos, Mexico; Refugio Vega Zapata, 18, Mexicali, Mexico; Daniel Rubalcava Sanchez, 24, of Mexico City, and Bidal Verdegco Virruietta, 57, of Mexicali, Mexico.

According to officials at the time of the incident, some $50,000 worth of marijuana was confiscated.

Murphy And Stull Complete Filing For Unicam In 17th, 49th Districts

John Murphy of South Sioux City Monday completed filing with the secretary of state as a candidate for the 17th District seat in the Legislature.

Sen. Elmer Wallwey of Emerson, who represents the district, has indicated that he will not seek re-election next year.

Also completing filing procedures was Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, who is seeking re-election to the 49th District seat in the Unicameral.

Murphy, 53, is a South Sioux City native and president of the Dakota County State Bank. He is the second announced candidate for the 17th District seat which represents Dakota, Dixon and Wayne counties.

Murphy joins Mrs. Harley Scmadeke of Dakota City in seeking the seat.

Murphy, who goes by the nickname of "Bob," had announced plans to seek the office on Saturday.

Suit To Halt Trip To Hawaii Is Postponed Until Dec. 22

Plattsmouth (AP) — A hearing on a taxpayer's suit seeking to prevent Plattsmouth Mayor James McMillian from using public funds to attend the convention of the National League of Cities in Hawaii has been postponed until 1:30 p.m. Dec 22, a Cass County District Court spokesman said Monday.

The hearing originally had been set for 1:30 p.m. Monday.

The District Court spokesman said the delay was "by agreement of counsel representing both parties." The suit had been filed by Dale Bowman, former Plattsmouth mayor. It attacked a City Council motion which, it said, permitted Mr. and Mrs. McMillian to attend the convention at city expense.

The suit asked the court to find the trip "outside the scope of city functions."

McMillian's attorney, Paul Fauquet, said the delay was agreed upon because "it would have been impossible for the mayor to be present in court Monday."

Mayor McMillian said when the suit was filed that he and his wife planned to go to Hawaii regardless of the outcome of the suit. He said then that he did not plan to attend the University of Nebraska-Hawaii football game scheduled Saturday.

The convention, now in progress in Honolulu, continues through Wednesday.

Challenge Grant To Be Discussed

The executive committee of the Lincoln Foundation will meet Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. to discuss a proposal from Lincoln Community Services for use of a $12,000 "challenge" grant offered by the foundation.

Also on the agenda of the meeting, set for the Lincoln Center Building, is a discussion of proposed alterations in the building.

Walls Is Named Deputy Auditor

Francis Walls was named Monday as deputy state auditor and uniform budget director by state Auditor Ray A. C. Johnson.

Walls replaces P. Merle Humphries, who died last week.

Walls has worked for the auditor's office since 1957.

Environmentalists Planning Attack On Interstate System

Washington (AP) — Environmental Defense Fund, a citizens' group whose lawsuits stalled the Alaska pipeline and jeopardized DDT, is going after Interstate highway construction next.

EDF has asked Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe to prepare a wide-ranging environmental-impact statement before he sends Congress, as required by next Jan. 1, his recommendation for apportioning the federal $5-billion-a-year highway-aid program.

Interviewed Monday, EDF lawyer John Hellegers said the absence or inadequacy of such a statement would make a lawsuit against the Transportation Department by EDF a distinct possibility.

Such a suit, Hellegers said, could test for the first time the extent to which the legislative process is covered by the requirement of environmental-impact statements under the 1969 national environmental policy act (NEPA).

A Transportation Department spokesman said Monday Volpe had not yet received the EDF letter and had no immediate comment.

Hellegers said EDF lawyers are considering whether a court could enjoin the executive branch from implementing legislation which was adpoted in the absence of an adequate impact statement; that is, whether a court could block the highway funds.

In a letter to Volpe on Nov. 24, Hellegers said the environmental statements prepared on individual highway projects do not meet the need for a broad consideration of what the federal highway program is doing to the nation.

"Few, if any, federal programs have had as significant an environmental impact as the Interstate highway system," he wrote. "Some observers also view the system as the classic example of a program whose environmental costs went uncalculated before the decision was made to build it, and became evident only after the fact."

"The pattern of leaping first and looking later, of course, was exactly what NEPA was intended to put a stop to," he added.

The letter urged Volpe to assess:

—"The downtown decay and suburban sprawl which result from building highways in and around cities . . . the tendency of highways to draw commerce, jobs, population and tax base away from central cities . . . the erosion of municipal services and amenities that companies this shift.

—"The demands which continued highway building, and continued massive reliance on the private automobile, will place on our oil supply" and the results in increased drilling, oil spills, and strip-mining of coal as oil reserves dwindle.

—"The air pollution that can be expected to result from more highways and more cars . . . Whether further highway building . . . is consistent with meeting air quality standards."

"—The massive toll that reliance on the private automobile takes in terms of death and severe injury," compared with "alternative forms of transportation, such as rail trasit."

Supreme Court Decision Said Not Retroactive

By United Press International

The Nebraska Supreme Court has been told that a U.S. Supreme Court decision which declared void the state's uninsured motorist law was not retroactive.

The statement was made by the State Justice Dept. in a brief filed with the high court on an appeal from a Richardson County district court decision.

The district court upheld the State Motor Vehicle Dept.'s decision to suspend a driver's license belonging to Melvin L. Campbell of Falls City.

"The Supreme Court . . . did not say the decision was retroactive and it is submitted that if that court intended it to be it would have done so," the justice department said.

Star Staff Writer

The City Council Monday in a brief session heard opposition from area residents for a proposed sanitary sewer in their neighborhood

An eight-inch sewer is proposed in Wilber St. (also known as Gladstone) from 150 feet west of Harrison to Herbert.

One resident, Jack Standley, of 3600 Gladstone, said, "We don't have any city improvements out there at this time — such as lighting and fire hydrants."

Public hearing on the matter will be continued at next Monday's meeting.

In other action, the council stalled on a 3-1 vote two applications for a change of zone. Henry Hendrickson asked for a change of zone from B Two Family to C Multiple on property located on the east side of 23rd St. south of Holdrege. In addition, Richard Reine has applied for a change of zone from B Two Family to C Multiple Dwelling on property located at the northwest corner of 53rd and Cooper Sts

Strike At Hastings Telephone Office Called Off After Only Three Hours

Hastings (AP) — A walkout by 10 women telephone operators at the Hastings office of the Lincoln Telephone and Telegraph Co. was short-lived

The women notified company officials about 1:40 p.m. Sunday they were walking out and did so about 2 p.m. After a meeting, they returned to work about 5 p m

The women claimed the company engaged in "unfair working practices" and the union to which they belong, the Communications Workers of America, was "unfair in scheduling girls"

Darrell Joynt, chief test man at Hastings, said union and company representatives met to iron out the difficulties. Supervisory personnel and a few operators who didn't walk out maintained service

A couple of men joined the women in picketing the office.

Joynt said at one time Sunday there were about 15 persons picketing in front of the building

Joynt had called it a wildcat strike

A telephone union representative who declined to be named said the operators had filed four written grievances with the company which had not been acted upon Three dealt with scheduling and a fourth with the complaint that the company would not recognize the operators' elected spokesman.

Favoritism and violation of contract provisions were cited as part of the reason for the walkout.

Company spokesmen had no further comment.

A blue sky morning at Acapulco. The milk run jet to Mexico City, on climbing power, swings over the long sand beach. (The saddle horses for rent hardly raise their heads. As sophisticated about jets as the riders from the posh hotels.)

Breakfast comes up to the balcony: Huevos rancheros—eggs ranch style. Sunny side up on a tortilla. Sprinkled with hot sauce and lime juice. It's an eye opener.

In the breezy bar, last night's Life of the Party is opening his eyes with a coco loco. A big splash of Mexican rum in a fresh coconut half. Buenos dias, Senor!

The new Acapulco Princess has opened—777 plush room built into a replica of a Mayan pyramid temple. (Looks like the big one at Tikal.; If the ancient Mayans could see us now, they'd turn in their basketball suits.

(The Mayans played basketball. Winners got to kill the losers. You can't beat that for sportsmanship.)

Behind us are the green Guerrero hills. Not so peaceful as they look.

"There's always some shooting in Guerrero," says the American who lives here. "The people from Guerrero are much like the old Wild West Cowboys of America.

"There are towns back there that are practically ruled by gunmen—you have to be handy with a pistol just to run for mayor.

"A Supreme Court judge was shot in a hotel a little while ago. A Mexico City bus was held up by men on horseback! Just rode out of the hills and held it up."

At Chilpancingo on the road to Mexico City, the rector of the state university has been kidnapped.

None of this affects the jet set fringe of beach. And few people get off the beach farther than the Costera. The long beach road follows the curve of the blue bay. Flowery. Divided by a strip of trees. Lined with high-rise hotels. Elegant shops. Expensive restaurants.

The American said: "Get off the Costera a few miles. and you'll see a different Mexico."

☆ ☆ ☆

I did that a few years ago. Drove back on a gravel road on the side of the green mountains. So high we were in clouds and pine trees. The road dropped off sharply. You could look down and see sugar cane at the bottom.

The town is Ixcateopan. And in the old, old church from Spanish days they had the bones of Cuauhtemoc. The last Aztec emperor.

Or so they say. Cortez captured him and tortured him, looking for lost Axtec gold.

At last on a hot and angry day, he hanged him.

The legend is that Indians brought the body back to Ixcateopan. His birthplace.

They are Indian towns. The people speak an Indian dialect. (The government puts in schools. The children learn Spanish.)

They are short and squat, wearing rough, white cotton pajama-like coats and pants. Leather sandals. The tire tread soles print "Goodyear" in the dust.

These are the people Zapata raised for the revolution. Tough, enduring guerrilla cavalrymen. On ruined, deserted hacienda walls, you can see the fire scars they left behind.

Owners Of New Shop Not Strangers In Lincoln

Not too long ago, Jim Levitt of Kansas City, Mo., was a stockbroker and his wife, Jo, was designing appliques in their home for sale to large department and fabric stores — Now they are designing and manufacturing "children's clothes for children," for their own shops.

The couple's first shop outside of Kansas City was opened in Lincoln a mere three weeks ago—under the name of The Chocolate Soup.

"Jo takes care of everything aesthetic," said Mr. Levitt. "She insists on designing all of the clothes — and it was she who chose the unusual name of 'Chocolate Soup' for the unusual children's boutique."

They chose Lincoln for the experimental location because Mrs. Levitt's family is from here — she is the former Jo Hilgert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clive Hilgert of Kansas City. Mr. Hilgert was graduated from the University of Nebraska and although he resides in Kansas City his business interest takes him all over the country. She still has relatives here — Mrs. Levitt's grandmother is Mrs. Jo Hilgert and her aunt is Mrs. Howard Cather — So naturally they visit here often, and besides — she likes Lincoln. Mr. Levitt had additional, and money-oriented, reasons for locating the shop in Lincoln, including that Lincoln is centrally located, word spreads fast from the Capitol City where there are more than the normal number of out-of-town visitors, and also they had a good manager in mind. Mrs. Mac McCune is the manager of Lincoln's Chocolate Soup.

The whole idea for their own company originated when childswear manufacturers were beating down the Levitt door asking Mrs. Levitt, who never liked sewing as much as creating, to design for them.

When the couple agreed that they did not want to work for someone else, they decided to try it on their own.

Despite discouragement from everyone they set up a cutting table in the family garage and started out with a single child's jumper pattern. The idea snowballed — reorders from large city department stores were placed as soon as the first garments were delivered — It seems that everyone liked the creative ideas. The children's clothes were made of quality material, unique appliques were added, and the linings coordinated with the appliques.

Lincoln's first store in the prospective chain of Chocolate Soups is all the Levitts hoped it would be. It projects the fashion image for children.

Jim and Jo Levitt, both 28, set out to make clothes for children, not for 'little men or little women' — and also to prove, according to Mrs. Levitt, that people — will buy quality clothing for children at a good price. And they have succeeded on both counts.

Abby: your attitude is shortsighted

DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Norm) has taken an interest in a co-worker. (A buddy-type friendship he says.) She's divorced and has a child and lots of problems. For some reason, I don't trust her.

Norm says she's a good girl who dates occasionally, but if she has nothing to do on weekends, she gets bored and lonely. Anyway, Norm told her she was welcome to drop in at our house when she wanted company. (So far she hasn't taken him up on it.) He even offered to tune up her car and change her oil.

Last Saturday he suggested that instead of just the two of us spending the evening alone, we invite this girl over to play cards with us. When I told him I enjoyed being alone with him, and didn't particularly want her, he became upset.

Abby, I am sorry this girl has problems, but we didn't cause them, and I don't think it's our place to entertain her. Also, Norm is not a garage mechanic, and I don't see why he should be tuning up her car.

Do you think I am being unreasonable?

NORM'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Unreasonable? No. Shortsighted? Yes. Since your husband has a buddy-type friendship going with this girl, make her your buddy, too. Why not invite her over, and ask a single man? (They may like each other.)

If you don't trust her, it's better to have her in your home where you can watch her. You may discover that she's a good girl who's had a lot of bad luck. Give her a chance.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

A Soon-To-Be Bride Is An Honoree

Irving, Tex., is quite a distance from Lincoln, Neb., but not too far away for Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Stilwell and their daughters, Miss Ginger Stilwell, Miss Kandy Stilwell and Miss Polly Kay Stilwell.

The heroine in this story is Miss Ginger Stilwell, who has chosen Saturday, Dec. 18 as the date of her marriage to Wayne Peterson, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Robert Peterson of Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Stilwell and their daughters came to Lincoln to spend a long Thanksgiving weekend with the Re[illegible] and Mrs. Peterson, and during their stay the bride-elect in the family was honored at a party.

The courtesy was last Saturday evening when Mrs. Kenneth Peterson and Mrs. Peter Schroeder were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Peterson.

Standing are Miss Kandy Stilwell, Mrs. Schroeder and Miss Sharon Peterson—and the young lady in the foreground is Polly Kay Stilwell.

Attendants, Parties For Bride-Elect

Naming the members of her bridal party this morning is Miss Catherine E. Crose, whose marriage to Michael J. Nannen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond V. Nannen of Hallam, will be an event of Saturday evening, Dec. 4.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darrel D. Crose, the bride-elect has named Miss Vicki Frickel of St. Paul as her maid of honor for the 7 o'clock service to be solemnized at St. Andrew's Lutheran Church. Attending Miss Crose as bridesmaids will be Mrs. Larry Lincoln of Pacific Junction, Iowa, and Miss Jan Dorrance of Fairfield will be the bridesmaid. The flower girl will be Miss Debbie Crose, cousin of the bride-to-be.

Lighting the chancel candles will be Mr. Nannen's nephew and niece, Jeff and Marcia Nannen of Syracuse. Holding the candles during the ceremony will be Randy and Linda Wenz of Hallam, niece and nephew of the future bridegroom.

Serving Mr. Nannen as best man will be Steven Gage, and the groomsmen will be Steve Duermeyer and Miss Crose's brother, John Crose. Seating the guests will be Jim VanHousen, Jim Fisher of Syracuse, Dennis Watts of Hastings, and the future bride's brother, Darrel Crose, Jr., of Washington, D.C. Jeff Slagle of Council Bluffs, Iowa, will be the ring bearer.

Miss Crose will share honors with her fiance on Friday evening, Dec. 3, at a prenuptial dinner for which her parents will be host and hostess at their home before the wedding rehearsal at the church.

suburbia

In today's weight-conscious world, the old adage of 'feast or famine' is applicable in a different sense. It might very well be used to mean feast at the Thanksgiving table and starve yourself for a week or so after.

As we talked to people in suburbia we found that the holiday was everything that it is supposed to be — a day to spend time together in peace and joy, and thanksgiving. Some of the families stayed right in Lincoln, while others travelled to distant points for a get together with relatives.

Mrs. David Sanderson of Country Club Manor went to Omaha on Wednesday to be the Thanksgiving dinner guest of her nephew and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Fisher and their three children.

New Trendwood residents, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Collura enjoyed a holiday feast at the home of Mrs. Collura's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kimball. Joining in the festivities were the Mr. and Mrs. Collura's two sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Collura of Omaha, and Mr. and Mrs. James Collura — plus the three young Colluras—Sam, Joe and Mary—who are still at home.

That, however, was not the only festivity for the Collura family this weekend. On Friday, Nov. 26, Mr. and Mrs. Collura celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. In honor of the occasion, their five children served as hosts and hostesses for a dinner at a restaurant in Omaha. Following the dinner the Colluras returned to their home in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibson of Eastborough did some travelling around on the Thanksgiving holiday. Their holiday began with a short drive to Omaha where they dropped in at the home of Mrs. Gibson's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Denney and their two children, Shirley and Denise. It was at the Denney home that the two families watched the exciting if not nerve-racking Nebraska-Oklahoma game.

Satisfied with the Nebraska victory, the two families then headed toward Council Bluffs, Iowa, and the home of Mrs. Gibson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCoy, for a full-course turkey dinner. Also on hand to partake in the feast were Mrs. Gibson's sister and her family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thomasson and their son, Lee of Des Moines, Iowa, and a brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roger McCoy of Council Bluffs.

Thanksgiving Day went absolutely great, at least for a while, for Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dennis, Park Manor. They arrived in Kalamazoo, Mich., just in time for their daughter and hostess, Miss Terry Ann Dennis, to warm up the set for The Game. Then the Huskers came out victorious. And the turkey was done just in time.

Then, the luck ended. While the menfolk—including Mr. Dennis and the couple's son, Bob, of Dayton, Ohio—were discussing the key plays of the game, the women were preparing to put the vegetables on the stove, bingo, the stove was out.

Well, the family gathered the food and took the Thanksgiving dinner to the neighbor's and finished cooking the meal!

All turned out well, and the Dennis couple has returned home—through the snowstorm—and the two parents are now anxiously awaiting the Christmas holidays when their children, Terry Ann and Bob, will join them for at least a few days.

The Sunday snowstorm made the trip home a bit more difficult for another suburban family — the Robert Watts of Park Manor.

The family, including children Carroll Ann, Karen, Stephen, Julie, and Mary, motored to Troy, Mo., where they enjoyed not one, but two Thanksgiving dinners with relatives.

The host and hostesses for the dinners were Mr. Watts' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Watts, and Mrs. Watts' mother, Mrs. Frank Kohl, all of Troy. The travelers, however, stayed at their own farm home near Troy.

Girl Scout Tea

The Girl Scout Homestead Council will be kicking off the holiday season on Saturday, Dec. 4 with a Christmas Tea at the Van Dorn Park Shelter House at 9th and Van Dorn Streets.

The tea will be held from 1 o'clock to 4 o'clock for children from different neighborhoods who will attend in shifts. Brownies through seniors have been invited to attend as a troop, with a friend, or with their parents.

The theme of the tea is 'a traditional old-fashioned holiday celebration,' and the Girl Scouts will be entertained by fellow members who will perform. There will also be snow games and caroling.

Each member was asked to bring a home-made ornament for the holiday tree in the shelter house. Refreshments will include home-made cookies.

Some of the Cadets will be arriving at the tea later, for they will be competing in the Cadet Archery Tournament at the Easterday Recreation Center at 6130 Adams on Saturday from noon to 1:30 o'clock. Twenty Cadets from all over Lincoln have entered, and mothers and fathers are invited to attend.

Farm Labor Dilemma Discussed

The farm employment situation drew a good deal of attention Monday at the first meeting of the newly-created State Manpower Planning Council.

Gov. J. James Exon and five agency heads attended the meeting of the council which is headed by Jerry Kromberg.

State Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher told those attending that the average age of the farm laborer in Nebraska is 58, and it is constantly rising. Kreuscher pointed out that this should be one of the targets the council should direct its efforts towards.

State Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley agreed with Kreuscher's analysis of the severity of the dilemma.

"Vocational Agriculture enrollment is at the highest level ever," Stanley said; "but even this enrollment would only fill 75% of the expected vacancies."

Kromberg said the council's goal will be to reduce underand unemployment statewide.

"Hopefully, they will see that proper consideration will be given to all of Nebraska's needs — rural and urban, east and west," Kromberg said.

"Our job," he continued, "is to provide the governor with a comprehensive manpower plan for his consideration. A plan that will eventually be his recommendation to the funding authorities for adoption."

Simply stated the elements of the plan are identifing needs and resources, matching needs to resources and evaluating the results.

One-third of the members of the council represent state agencies, one-third private citizens and one-third manpower program participants.

In addition to those in attendance already mentioned were Economic Development Director Stan Matzke, Labor Commissioner Gerald Chizek and Stae Institutions Director Michael LaMontia.

Chicago (AP) — International Harvester Co. announced Monday immediate price increases amounting to 3.93% on its products.

The company said the prices have been approved by the Price Commission and reflect increased costs of labor, materials and services.

Pair Told Not To Sell Real Estate

Omaha (AP) — The owner of a real estate firm and one of his salesmen were ordered Monday to refrain from selling real estate pending a Dec. 8 hearing on a request for an injunction.

District Court Judge Samuel P. Caniglia issued the temporary restraining order against Louis Weiner, head of Louis Weiner Real Estate, and Robert L. Solomon, a salesman.

The suit against the two was filed by Robert H. Petersen, an attorney for the Nebraska Real Estate Commission.

Petersen said that the commission revoked Weiner's brokerage license and Solomon's sales license Sept. 1, 1967. Since then, Petersen contends, the two have "sold or attempted to sell real estate in Nebraska in violation of state law."

The suit alleges six instances of sales since the licenses were revoked.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	Dble	1 ♠	Pass
4 ♥	5 ♣	Dble

Opening lead — four of hearts.

It is not terribly difficult to make five clubs if you see all four hands. All you have to do is time your plays properly so as to avoid losing two spade tricks.

However, to make the contract without seeing the concealed hands is quite a chore, since it requires visualizing the East-West cards extremely accurately and then taking advantage of this knowledge.

Nevertheless, this is by no means an impossible task. The bidding speaks for itself and the missing cards are apt to be exactly where the bidding indicates they are.

East is practically sure to have seven hearts for his stratospheric leap to four, and West's treasures, considering his bidding, probably consist of a spade suit headed by the A-J. If so, the play becomes merely an exercise in good technique.

East wins the heart lead with the jack and continues with a heart which you ruff with the ten. Taking a long-distance view of the situation, you cash the A-K of diamonds before playing a club to the eight.

Next you ruff a diamond high, play a club to the nine, and ruff dummy's last diamond in order to run West out of diamonds.

Having attended to these preliminaries, you draw West's last trump, reducing his hand to the A-J-9-7 of spades. By this time you have the Q-10-5 of spades and a trump, while dummy has the K-4-2 of spades and a heart.

Now you lead the queen of spades and West has had it. If he takes the queen he must return a spade and your ten and king become tricks. If he ducks the queen you simply play another spade to the king.

Questions And Answers About Beauty

Josephine Lowman

Q. I would like you to give me advice about a problem that to me seems very serious. I am a senior in high school. I am five-five, medium build, and weigh 120 pounds. Everyone says I am about the right weight but my main problem is a pot belly. You may think this is a joke, but believe me, it's very serious. I have never seen anything in your column about this. Would you please give me some information about it? Can it be corrected with exercise? If so, will you please print several in your column? This is very urgent so please give me your answer in the paper.

A. I knew what you mean! I have even seen very thin women with a little watermelon for a tummy. This is due to an accumulation of fat at this area. The abdominal muscles are usually lax too. Exercise will help. Also knead the fat with your fingers and the heels of your hands. Just pick the fat up and roll it. Remember also to pull your abdomen in when sitting and standing. This is a good corrective exercise.

If you cannot do this, tuck your toes under a chair or divan. If any of you would like to ave my tested abdominal exercises send an eight-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to me in care of The Lincoln Star.

BRANDEIS IS CHRISTMAS COUNTRY

Caribbean Becoming A Heroin Springboard

(c) Washington Star

Washington — Latin America countries have emerged as the major artery for heroin flowing into the United States, and the entire Caribbean has become a springboard for transshipment of narcotics, according to agents of the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs and the Bureau of Customs.

Latin Americans who used to smuggle cocaine or marijuana are now deeply involved in the heroin traffic. Narcotics agents said that the Latins now take cocaine production in Latin America to France and Spain and return with heroin.

As John E Ingersoll, director of the Narcotics Bureau, put it, "Latin America is now up to its ears in heroin."

Ex-Pickpockets

Today's big Latin American traffickers, according to narcotics agents, used to be pickpockets, who have now switched to the more lucrative drug smuggling.

Another threat, agents said, are the smugglers who load up with free port whiskey and cigarettes in Panama and fly to Latin American cities to deliver it secretly to others.

Until recently, the agents said, they would return to Panama empty-handed, but now they return with heroin from France and cocaine to be sold to narcotics traffickers with ties in the United States.

Panama is reportedly the key transshipment point for the intercontinental as well as international drug traffic.

The Caribbean islands also are getting increasingly into the act.

One reason for use of the islands is that some area European possessions and goods from home pass freely onto these islands without customs inspection. That is how heroin from Marseilles reaches the French islands of Martinique and Guadaloupe and heroin from Amsterdam gets to the Dutch islands of Aruba and Curacao.

From the islands with their heavy American tourist trade, couriers fly to Miami and on to New York. The islands are also used for refueling small private planes before they try to slip into the U.S.

15 Groups Open Lobbying Against Senate Confirmation Of Earl Butz

Washington (AP) — Fifteen environmental, consumer and poverty groups opened a lobbying campaign Monday to block Senate confirmation of Earl L. Butz as secretary of Agriculture.

Sources in the Senate, meanwhile, said they have counted 41 votes against the nomination of the 62-year-old Purdue University dean.

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said a preliminary head count taken by the White House shows Butz with a majority.

Scott acknowledged that leading Republicans were told of the President's nomination of Butz to replace Clifford Hardin only two hours before it became public.

Minimal Talk

He said there is only minimal talk in the Senate to force the President to withdraw the nomination.

Sen. James B. Pearson, R-Kan., a vigorous opponent of the nomination, has urged President Nixon to name someone else.

Several major farm groups also have opposed Butz's nomination, accusing him of prejudice in favor of corporate farming.

Opposition of 15 non-farm groups was announced at a news conference called by Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla.

The groups are the United Auto Workers, the Sierra Club, Friends of the Earth, the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, the National Sharecroppers Fund, Environmental Action, the National Rural Electrical Cooperative Association, Americans For Democratic Action and the AFL-CIO.

Others are the National Welfare Rights Organization, the Washington Research Action Council, the National Association of Social Workers, National Council on Hunger and Malnutrition, the National Council of Churches' Crusade Against Hunger, and Americans for Indian Opportunity.

All of the various spokesmen referred to a speech in Minneapolis last April 26, in which Butz spoke deprecatingly of environmentalists, antipoverty and hunger programs and consumer interests.

Some of the groups declared that "a vote for Earl Butz is a vote against poor and hungry people."

Harris said sentors opposing the nomintion probably will not agree to a time limit to allow a vote Wednesday.

He said it is his own judgment that there are 35 senators prepared to vote against Butz now.

Moon Is Warmer Than Thought

©The New York Times

By WALTER SULLIVAN

New York — Data relayed to Earth by radio from a hole drilled into the lunar surface last summer by the Apollo 15 astronauts indicate that the moon is a far richer source of heat than had generally been supposed.

The finding of unexpectedly high heat flow from beneath the lunar surface, one of the most surprising of the Apollo program, has persuaded a number of scientists that current theories on how the moon and planets formed have to be revised.

It is now proposed that during the Moon's birth a series of layers was laid down, producing a surface region rich in radioactive elements.

Heat generated by this radioactivity, it is thought, melted much of the top layer when the moon was young and accounts for the newly observed heat flow.

The equipment for measuring the flo of heat from within the Moon was installed four months ago in two holes drilled at the Apollo 15 landing site, near Hadley Rille. The drilling proved frustratingly difficult because the lunar surface material was very dense.

The astronauts, Col. David R. Scott and Lt. Col. James B. Irwin, were impatient to go rock hunting but were persuaded by Ground Control in Houston, Tex. in drilling until one hole was five feet deep.

Data from sensors in that hole have indicated a flow of heat from the interior measuring 0.8 millionths of a calorie per square centiimeter per second.

According to Dr. Marcus E. Langseth of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory, the average figure for the Earth is roughly twice that, but it varies from region to region. Langseth is responsible for analysis of the lunar heat-flow measurements.

He said Monday that based on existing concepts as to the Moon's nature, he had expected the flow of heat from the lunar interior to be about one-sixth that on Earth. However, Langseth noted that the abundance of radioactive elements found in the returned lunar samples by Dr. Gerald J. Wasserburg, profesor of geology at the California Institute of Technology, has made the observed heat flow seem plausible.

If one asks: "What's crazy about the Moon?" Wasserburg said, the answer is the very high level of radioactivity in this surface soil brought back from all four Apollo landing sites. If the moon were made throughout of such material, he added, "it would be just a molten puddle."

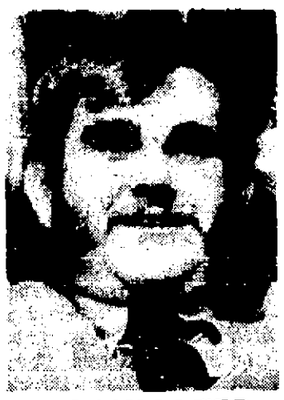
This is because the radioactivity of such elements — chiefly uraium, thorium and a radioactive form of potassium — generates heat. It is this process on Earth that produces the heat released in volcanoes and earthquakes. But it is believed that the Earth's history has been very different from that of the Moon.

Early in its history the Earth became hot enough internally for heavy material (chiefly iron) to sink, forming its core. The lighter material roe to the surface, forming a crust relatively rich in radioactive elements. For a variety of reasons it is believed that the Moon never went through such a process.

How than could its orlginal surface have become so rich in radioactive elements? Wasserburg believes this came about as gravity slowly pulled together, into a spherical solid object, the dust, gas and other material that formed the Moon. The heat-flow measurement, he says, has now indicated the amount of radioactive material in the resulting surface layer.

The implication is that such layering as a by-product of accretion may have occurred in the formation of other bodies, including the smaller planets, such as Mars.

The lava-like rock forming lunar seas is not very radioactive and presumably erupted from well below the original surface layer. It is in rocks and dust presumably derived from the original crust that abundant radioactive elements have been found.



NOMINATED

Michael A. Simmons, 18, will be one of the youngest men ever appointed to a local draft board in the nation. He relaxes in his Marysville, Pa., home near Harrisburg after his nomination by Gov. Milton Shapp was approved by President Nixon.

Gillis Named To Barbers' Board

Gov. J. J. Exon announced Monday the appointment of Roy Gillis of North Bend to the State Board of Barber Examiners.

Gillis replaces Donald Ditson of North Platte, who served a three-year term on the board.

In making the announcement, Exon said it is "deserving" that a small city barber be represented on the state board. The other two members, he said, are from Lincoln and Omaha.

Possibility Of Nebraska Population Policy Statement Will Be Proposed

Political action chairman Nancy Lanning will propose the possibility of a Nebraska population policy statement at a monthly meeting of the Zero Population Group to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Lincoln Center.

Mrs. Lanning says that she believes Nebraska should limit the number of people immigrating into the state in order to "prevent subdivision of the land" and to "preserve the state's natural resources."

Oregon and Colorado have already issued such policy statements, according to Mrs. Lanning. She added that these statements "do not call for any direct action in limiting the population."

Adoption agency reform will also be a topic of discussion at the group's meeting.

The meeting will be open to the public and will also focus on a general membership drive.

Col. Henderson Denies Intention To Hide Killings

Ft. Meade, Md. (AP) — Cross-examination of Col. Oran K. Henderson ended Monday with an assertion by the colonel that he did not intentionally cover up the massacre of Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

Asked point blank for the first time in the courtroom whether he tried to suppress details of the 1968 slaughter, he said:

"I certainly did not. I made no effort to cover it up. I made every effort to look into it as any commander would have."

The defense said it was undecided whether to conduct direct examination of Henderson on Tuesday. There has been no indication when the case might be sent to the jury of seven officers.

Court Is Told Junk Vehicle Law Is Constitutional

Lincoln City Attorney Richard Wood in a brief Monday told the State Supreme Court that the 1965 ordinance covering the disposal of junk vehicles is constitutional.

Dennis Radcliff had taken the city to court over tre constitutionality of the law. Radcliff had been convicted under the law and charged that among other things the term "non-operating" is ambigious to the extent that the law is unconstitutional.

Wood said that the definition of "non-operating" is spelled out by the ordinance and said the court should consider intent when interpreting the law.

Oral arguments in the case will soon be held before the State Supreme Court.

Computerized Criminal Histories Available From FBI Data Bank

©The New York Times

Washington — The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) began operation Monday of a Computerized Criminal History data bank that will eventually give police almost instantaneous access to an individual's criminal arrest record from all of the 50 states and federal investigative agencies and courts.

The new system, which has created controversy among some law enforcement officials, and civil libertarians, will, by 1975, make available on a nationwide computer network most of the information that is now handled through the FBI's vast criminal record and fingerprint file.

It replaces a pilot project, called Project Search, in which only a computerized index was maintained, capable of telling police if a suspect had a criminal record and prison record available by computers.

The system went into operation Monday with only a handful of states providing information.

An FBI spokesman said that as of Monday "less than ten" states had placed their arrest records on computers and linked them to the computerized criminal history, or CCH file. The spokesman refused to identify these states, but he said that a total of about 20 states will be fully linked to the system within the next few weeks and that all 20 will be identified later.

There were indications that the FBI was withholding the names of the participating states because some had suffered embarrassing technical difficulties that prevented them from being prepared on the starting day.

By 1975, all 50 states are expected to have received grants from the Justice Department's Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, permitting them to place their arrest records on computers and plug them into the CCH system.

FBI officials say concern over the system is unwarranted, because it merely makes available by computers information that qualified agencies can now obtain from the FBI by mail.

Critics have asserted that errors will travel farther and faster [illegible] that CCH could lead to a data bank containing police intelligence on individuals, and that the new system should not be controlled by the FBI.

The FBI announcement said that "in addition to personal identification information such as name, age, sex, physical description, and identifying numbers, the file will show, for each individual, arrest charges, the disposition of each case, sentencing details, and custody and supervision status."

Only "serious or significant violations" will be recorded. A spokesman said this would include some, but not all felonies, and a few types of misdemeanors. Examples of arrests that will not be recorded were said to be a juvenile offenses, drunkeness and disturbing the peace.

Huskers Not Like Machine

When an athletic team operates as efficiently and as methodically as does the top-ranked Nebraska football team, there is always the inclination on the part of writers to compare them with a machine.

But that would be giving machines too much credit, particularly the ones we've dealt with in the past few days. If the Huskers were a machine, they'd be lucky to have a two-game unbeaten string, let along one that now stands at 30.

And if the Oklahoma defense had been as tough to get through as were the Norman, Okla., telephone operators following the game Thursday, the Huskers never would have been able to march 74 yards against them.

Don't Let It Out

It was almost as if neither our Xerox transmitting machinery nor the gals manning the Norman switchboards wanted the word out to the world on the fact that the Sooners had been beaten.

The family tree of the Xerox machine is now being checked to see if it has any Oklahoma ancestry and while that check is being made, we might also check to see if there is an Alabaman in that family tree.

Few things can be more frustrating than a malfunctioning machine that you can do nothing about or trying to work with an uncooperative utility company that knows it has a monopoly and that you can't go across the street to a competitor to use his phone services

The first to be rebuffed in his effort to get the word out of Norman that Nebraska had proven its claim to No 1 was a Washington Post writer, who with a one-hour time differential, was fighting a deadline

"I'm sorry, but unless you want to make the call person-to-person, you're going to have to dial it direct," the operator told him as he tried to reach his newspaper.

The Washington Post scribe did not show the same poise that the Huskers had shown on their winning touchdown drive

There She Was Again

After going through various operators while trying to get that machine to stop editing my copy by just leaving our pages at a time and come up with a better percentage than sending about one out of every four pages we tried. we apparently got that same operator, who had handled the Washington Post effort.

Apparently under the impression that she was being employed by the telephone company only to watch the lights flash, she informed us, "Unless you dial direct, we only let it ring once."

Well, you can't fight a monopoly. So you direct dial. Finally after several direct dialing efforts fail to get a ring, another operator comes on and says, "What number were you dialing?"

Area code 402, number 473-7296 " you tell her.

"I'm sorry, but you can't dial that number direct because that number won't work on our equipment," she explained.

It's a good thing the phone hook-up between the coaches' booth in the pressbox and the bench didn't have to go through the Norman switchboard

Pruitt Top Big 8 Back

Kansas City (AP) — Greg Pruitt, running sensation of Oklahoma's explosive offense, was selected today as the Big Eight Conference offensive player of 1971.

Pruitt won the honor in a vote of sports writers and sports casters. He just did edge out teammate Jack Mildren first Big Eight quarterback ever to run for 1,000 yards in a season.

Pruitt a junior, carried the ball 160 times in Oklahoma's first 10 games of which the Sooners, second ranked in the nation, won nine and lost 35-31 to top-ranked Nebraska, the conference champion.

The sizzling Sooner, known as the "Wicked Midget," has collected 1,476 yards or 9.2 yards per carry He has averaged 147 6 yards a game. He leads the Big Eight rushing race by a wide margin.

Pruitt, as his nickname implies, is a little guy by college football standards. He stands only 5-foot-9 and weights just 176 pounds.

He doesn't think his lack of size is a handicap

"The secret is to keep moving," Pruitt claims. "It's harder to hit a moving target That's why I keep dancing and faking "

Pruitt's trademark is his zigzag running and his blazing speed. He also has fantastic moves.

"I have a habit of looking over my shoulder when I run," Pruitt says "I want to see the defensive players. It's just a habit I'm not teasing anyone.

"When I look back, if a guy is close, I have to turn it on. If he's not, there's no need in running that hard "

The All-Big Eight back ran hard enough against Kansas State to gather 294 yards for a conference record in rushing, a mark that has since been broken by Colorado's Charlie Davis.

Pruitt has broken 200 yards in three games and was named national back of the week two successive weeks for his performances against Southern California and Texas.

Oklahoma backfield coach Barry Switzer says Pruitt is "the best blocker on the team. Greg is solid. He's strong and has the great body control There are other guys who can run 40 yards in 4.4 but they can't stop and go like Greg."

Sooner Coach Chuck Fairbanks says Pruitt must be regarded as "one of the great backs in this era of football

Bears Fall Victim To Miami, 34-3

Miami (AP) — Bob Griese, the leading touchdown tosser in the National Football League passed for two scores and directed an awesome Miami offense that brought the Dolphins an easy 34-3 victory over the Chicago Bears Monday night for their eighth consecutive triumph

The humiliating defeat of the Bears lifted the Dolphins' record to 9-1-1 — best in the NFL — and increased their lead to 1½ games over the defending Super Bowl champion Baltimore Colts in the battle for the American Conference East title.

It also all but destroyed whatever chance the Bears had retained of qualifying for a spot in the post-season playoffs, leaving the Chicagoans with a 6-5 record in the National Conference Central

Billed as a struggle between division powers in which the Chicago defense would test the Miami offense, the game quickly became a rout as Griese directed the Dolphins to scores the first four times they had the ball in the first half

At the same time, the Miami defense allowed the Bears to penetrate only as deep as the Dolphin 45 — and once the Chicagoans had managed to move that far, they were immediately thrown back to their own territory on the next play.

Griese wound up with 12 completions in 17 attempts for 214 yards and touchdown passes of six yards to Marv Fleming and 10 yards to Larry Csonka before he was relieved early in the fourth quarter. That brought Griese's touchdown total to 19.

But there were other Dolphin heros

—Csonka, the burly running back who gained 104 yards in 16 carries and brought his AFC leading total to 878 yards while scoring on the pass from Griese and on a two-yard run.

—Garo Yepremian, the little field goal kicker who booted three-pointers from 43 and 35 yards out while raising his NFL-leading point total to 98

—And safety Jake Scott, who intercepted two passes by Bobby Douglass, one setting up a touchdown.

Griese got the Dolphins started with the opening kickoff, hitting Paul Warfield with a 24-yard pass that initiated a drive capped by Yepremain's 43-yarder. Then, after the Bears were unable to move the ball, Griese steered the Dolphins on a 76-yard TD drive.

Csonka was the key man in the march, grabbing a pass for 18 yards and gaining 30 on the ground in three tries, including the last two for the touchdown.

Douglass seemed to have righted the Chicagoans when he got them moving after the kickoff, but he fumbled a handoff to Cyril Pinder on the Bears 40 and Bill recovered for the Dolphins.

Sooners Land 7 On List

Kansas City, Mo. (UPI) — The two greatest teams in Big Eight Conference history, Nebraska and Oklahoma, landed 18 players on United Press International's all-Big Eight football team Monday.

The No. 1-ranked Cornhuskers placed 11 players on the first team, while the Sooners had seven Colorado and Iowa State, also bowl-bound, took up the other spots.

UPI named a 23-man first team in order to find a place for a kicker, won by Iowa State's Reggie Shoemake.

Only three players were unanimous choices in the select poll of 20 Big Eight sportswriters and sportscasters. They were Oklahoma halfback Greg Pruitt and Nebraska wide receiver Johnny Rodgers and defensive end Willie Harper

Three other players — Nebraska middle guard Rich Glover and defensive tackler Larry Jacobson and Oklahoma center Tom Brahaney — missed being unanimous by a lone vote.

Two quarterbacks, Oklahoma's Jack Mildren and Nebraska's Jerry Tagge, made the first team backfield along with Pruitt and Nebraska's Jeff Kinney

Colorado's blazing sophomore tailback, Charlie Davis, missed making the first team by only four votes.

Closest voting was at tight end, where Oklahoma's Albert Chandler decisioned Kansas' John Schroll by one vote.

There was also a heated contest on the defensive team, where voters chose a six-man line, with Colorado guard Bud Magrum edging Kansas linebacker Kenny Iage. Magrum is the only sophomore on the first unit

Only non-Nebraska-Oklahoma members of the all-conference team were Colorado's Magrum, defensive tackle Herb Orvis and offensive tackle Jake Zumbach and Iowa State linebacker Keith Schroeder and Shoemake.

Eleven of the top 23 players are underclassmen, including 10 juniors and one sophomore.

Other members of the first offensive unit are Nebraska tackle Carl Johnson and guard Dick Rupert and Oklahoma guard Ken Jones.

Other defensive first teamers are Oklahoma end Raymond Hamilton and linebacker Steve Aycock and Nebraska backs Jim Anderson, Joe Blahak and Bill Kosch.

Interestingly enough, 16 defensive backs received first team votes, but the Nebraska trio won out. The Cornhuskers' defensive backfield, so impressive in the 35-31 victory over Oklahoma, was considered the best in the history of the Big Eight.

Only three players — Orvis, Aycock and Kosch — repeated from last year's all-conference team

Bob Remembers OU, Prepares For Hawaii

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska head football coach Bob Devaney isn't completely overlooking Hawaii, the Huskers' Saturday night foe on a trip to the Islands, but the thought of being 0 2 against Alabama and Crimson Tide coach Bear Bryant keeps popping up in his mind

"Both our coaching staff and our team would like to beat that fellow before we get done with this foolish game," Devaney told the weekly Extra Point Club luncheon audience in a reference to the Huskers' Orange Bowl foe.

That was the only mention of the Orange Bowl at Monday's luncheon as Devaney spent most of the noon hour recapping the Huskers' 35-31 victory over Oklahoma

Calling Oklahoma 'a great football team," Devaney pointed out, "We've never worked harder in preparing for a game than we did that one

"As it turned out, it was a combination of our offense keeping the football and our defense keeping Oklahoma from doing what it does best.

"The first thing we had to do was stop their running. We had to stop Greg Pruitt from getting outside. And in doing that, we put one kid in a very bad position.

"That forced us to use a safety (Bill Kosch), who is used to playing zone pass defense and who hasn't played man-to man. to play man-to-man against a split end from a cornerback position

"I was so happy for Bill Kosch when we won that game so that he wouldn't have to live with the trouble he had. And it wasn't that he wasn't trying. We just put him in a tough position."

The Husker leader lauded his defensive coaches for what he called "a tremendous job of planning

"Every player had to read the keys and to do his job without error for us to stop Oklahoma and they all did a great job."

Devaney said the defensive game plan was particularly tough on the Husker ends, Willie Harper and John Adkins, because "we knew when we went into the game that they might not make a tackle, but they had to contain the pitchouts and keep the plays inside.

Our defensive backs did a tremendous job of coming up inside to make the tackles "

Of the play of Rich Glover, the NU middle guard who was in on 22 tackles despite going against all-Big Eight Oklahoma center Tom Brahaney, Daveny said, "He played the greatest game of any defensive lineman I've ever seen.

"And the rest of our defensive line wasn't far behind him in that regard."

Turning to the Husker offense, Devaney noted, "In looking at the films, Jerry Tagge did a great job of quarterbacking our team.

In the second half, we decided to just line up and run at Oklahoma. Jeff Kinney did a great job of securing the run and he got some great blocking from the offensive line and from our fullbacks."

Devaney called the Huskers' winning touchdown drive the equal of the drive the Huskers made last Jan. 1 to win the Orange Bowl.

"It was a pressure drive," he said. "We knew we had to score. Our linemen knew they couldn't make a mistake, such as jumping offside or missing an assignment and they performed perfectly "

Of the upcoming Saturday night game with Hawaii, Devaney observed, 'Hawaii is very difficult to defeat in the Islands.

"I don't know of a team that has beaten them on the Islands. We've not only got to win, but we've got to look good doing it, and we can't look good if we have a letdown."

The Husker coach also observed that the fact that the game will be played at midnight Lincoln time could cause some problems, but jokingly added, "Some of our players may be at their best at that time "

In an effort to acclimate his Huskers to the time differential, Devaney said a workout would be staged at night Wednesday after the Huskers arrive Wednesday afternoon.

NU offensive line coach Carl Selmer, who gave the scouting report on Hawaii, noted, "They are the best offensive team and the best defensive team we will have faced — outside the continental United States."

Paterno Has Chance To Show 'Em

University Park, Pa. (UPI) — Coach Joe Paterno of undefeated Penn State said Monday he believes Saturday's nationally televised game against Tennessee may give his team a chance to "show people we have a football team here in the East."

"It'll be a real good test for our offense just to see how good we are," Paterno said. "We're looking forward to it. It's a real challenge for us to go down and play them "

The game, the season finale for both teams, is the first regular-season meeting ever between the Nittany Lions and a Southeastern Conference team.

Penn State, winners of 15 in a row including 10 this season, leads the nation in scoring, averaging 44 3 points a game. The Volunteers, 8-2, have lost only to Alabama and Auburn and feature a defense that has allowed only 97 points.

"They are awfully alert and well-coached," Paterno said. "It's tough to put together a sustained drive against them. This is by far the best team we've played all year."

The Lions will be at full strength for the game, fullback Franco Harris having recovered from bruised ribs that slowed him earlier in the season.

Rainbows Chasing 'Impossible Dream'

Honolulu (AP) — The University of Hawaii Rainbows are after The Impossible Dream.

The lightly regarded independent school will test its pretensions as a national football powerhouse Saturday when they host No. 1-ranked Nebraska.

Hawaii's series record against Nebraska is even, 1-1.

They hope for a repeat of the surprising 6-0 Rainbow victory in 1955.

Hawaii has compiled a 7-3 record, lost both of its road games and dropped a 46-21 free-for-all to Long Beach State at home.

Local sportswriters, in their idle moments, have figured out score comparisons which show Nebraska anywhere from 75 to 175 points better than Hawaii.

The Rainbows enter the Nebraska game after a victory over New Mexico, which Hawaii Coach Dave Holmes calls "the best team we've ever beaten."

Hawaii rose to top freewheeling New Mexico 28-21 here last weekend. The defense held the hard-running Lobos scoreless in the second half, while allowing star running back Fred Henry only three yards in the last half.

"I would think that's got to give us a real shot in the arm," Holmes said

Holmes doesn't lavish any superlatives on Nebraska but says simply: "They are a great football team.

"I don't think they are foolish enough to come out for a Hawaiian vacation and let someone knock them off. I think they will be ready for a football game.

Holmes feels that his offensive unit is just now reaching its peak. But the defense is enough to give him nightmares He has four defensive backs healthy enough to fill four positions. At linebacker he is starting a freshman, a sophomore and a player with a broken arm.

"That's pretty ridiculous," Holmes said. As for the offense, he said, "It's anyone's guess where we will be able to run Nebraska has one of the best defenses in the country "

The Nebraska clash will be the first time ever that a capacity crowd has turned out for Rainbow football. The school has been averaging about 15,500 a game in the 23,500-seat Honolulu Stadium.

For good measure, Hawaii raised ticket prices a dollar for Nebraska tickets. And the school will glean some extra money from statewide television coverage of the game.

AFT Claims Regents Violating Open Meeting Law

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln chapter of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has charged the university's Board of Regents with violation of the state's "open meetings" law.

In a letter to NU President D. B. Varner, the AFT executive committee said it believes "the spirit, the intention, of the State Legislature in passing Nebraska Revised Statutes 84-1401 through 84-1405 (requiring the policy boards of public bodies to hold meetings in public) are being, and have been, violated" by the regents.

"Testimony at Professor Stephen L. Rozman's trial and other available information raise serious questions concerning the regents' use of 'public' meetings to 'arrive' at decisions alreay made in private," the letter, dated Nov. 16, said.

The letter asked for Varner's "public affirmation of the spirit and the letter" of the law, which the AFT said requires "public bodies to discuss openly and publicly all matters of public concern involving public institutions."

"It is, of course, especially important to the improvement of the University of Nebraska that it abide by the spirit of the law and that matters having to do with the employment, salaries, tenure etc. of faculty members be publicly discussed if they are discussed at all by the regents.

"We trust you will give serious consideration to this request from the AFT members of the faculty," the letter concluded.

The letter apparently was sparked by the board's practice of regularly holding informal, private meetings prior to scheduled public meetings.

Concession Stand Funds Suit May Be Settled

Omaha (AP) — Asst. County Atty. Harold Zabin said Monday he will recommend to the Douglas County Board Tuesday that a suit against former County Sheriff Patrick E. Corrigan be settled out of court.

Zabin said Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, the company which posted a $10,000 bond for Corrigan while he was sheriff from 1955 to 1967, has offered to pay the county $7,500 as compensation for funds the county sought to recover.

Zabin said the county filed a District Court suit to recover funds Corrigan had received from operating a concession stand in the Courthouse.

Corrigan never had given an accounting of how much he had received and, consequently, the suit did not name a specific amount to be recovered, Zabin said.

The concession had been operated by Corrigan and previous sheriffs "for about 50 years" and was not a part of the sheriff's compensation provided by law.

After Corrigan was defeated for sheriff by Ted Janing, Janing ordered that the concession funds go into the county general fund.

Searcy To Wait For Decision On Political Plans

Kearney (AP) — Don Searcy, a geography professor at Kearney State College and unsuccessful 1970 candidate for the 3rd District Congressional seat held by Republican Dave Martin, said Monday he will make a decision on whether to run again in 1972 during the last week in February.

Searcy said that if he does decide to seek the Democratic nomination he will not file until March at the last possible moment because of a State College Board of Trustees policy requiring candidates to take leaves of absence while seeking office.

He said in the past week he has examined questionnaires he sent to persons who worked in his last campaign and found that 80% of the respondents would prefer that he run against Martin rather than seek the nomination to oppose incumbent Sen. Carl T. Curtis.

Technique Pays

Johannesburg, South Africa (AP) — Jacobus Dicks said he earned about $3,500 a month with his high-speed bricklaying technique, employing four helpers at about $16.80 a week each.

Republican Party Committee Plans Issue Meeting

The State Republican Party Central Committee will meet Saturday to consider positions on issues likely to come up during the 1972 session of the Nebraska Legislature.

The committee will meet at the Lincoln Hotel, beginning at 10 a.m., according to Richard Nelson of Lincoln, chairman of the party's legislative committee.

Nelson said the objective of current party officials is to take a more active role in state matters.

Proposal Made

San Juan, P.R. (AP) — Former Gov. Roberto Sanjhez Vilella proposed that the Puerto Rican government reimburse electricity users for spoilage and other losses caused by blackouts, which have plagued the island in recent years.

Jurgensen Suffers Contusion

Washington (AP) — Quarterback Sonny Jurgensen of the Washington Redskins suffered a contusion of his left shoulder in Sunday's victory Over the Philadelphia Eagles, Skins Coach George Allen said Monday.

It was first feared Jurgensen, making his first start of the National Footbal League season, had rebroken his shoulder. The veteran quarterback missed the first eight weeks of the regular season after fracturing his left shoulder in an exhibition game Sept. 4.

"It's an encouraging report," Allen said.

"We will just have to evaluate Jurgensen as the week progresses and make a decision on whether to activate Sam Wyche later this week. I would like to keep Jurgensen on the active roster."

Jurgensen had completed three of six passes for 51 yards before he was injured while running early in the second period. He was in obvious pain while sitting on the bench and later said his shoulder hurt considerably.

The team physician, Dr. P. M. Palumbo, said the injury was not related to the earlier fracture.

Terrio, Glover Eye 100 Season Tackles

Two members of Nebraska's Black Shirt defensive gang are within range of reaching the 100 mark in tackles for the season in Saturday night's game at Hawaii.

Linebacker Bob Terrio with 87 and middle guard Rich Glover with 85 both could reach the 100-mark against the Rainbows in the Huskers' final regular season game.

Cipriano Hopes Jura Improves Rebounding

(Last of a Series)
By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

The Joe Cipriano basketball era has been the most successful in Nebraska's history, but winning in the rugged Big Eight Conference will again present problems.

Although the Huskers are basing their attack around eight lettermen, NU must replace two key cogs. Marvin Stewart, NU's all-time leading scorer, and Leroy Chalk, the school's top rebounder, are both gone.

Cipriano is counting on 6-10 senior center Chuck Jura to take up the slack caused by Chalk's departure. The Schuyler product, in averaging 17.5 points per match last season, connected on almost 60 per cent of his floor attempts to rank among national leaders.

"Jura should be one of the finest basketball players that Nebraska has ever produced," Cipriano says. "But he will have to improve his rebounding since Chalk is gone."

Senior starters Mike Peterson and Al Nissen also return giving the Huskers three starters from last year's squad which earned an 18-8 overall mark and a fourth place Big Eight finish with an 8-6 record.

Junior lettermen include Cal Christline and Curt LeRossignol in the frontline and backcourt men Randy Watts, Tony Riehl and Tom Gregory.

Coming off a fine freshman year, Brendy Lee, a 6-8 forward from Brush, Colo., could give the Huskers some rebounding and scoring power. Lee paced the 9-3 frosh with 158 rebounds and a 16.1 scoring mark.

Last season's Husker crew hit a record .505 in field goal shooting to rank fourth nationally and placed among the country's top 15 teams in defense. With experience returning, NU should be able to combine its usual fast-breaking offense and pressing defense.

In assessing the Huskers, Cipriano turns to his lettermen for strength.

"Nissen and Peterson have improved tremendously and should be a strong factor in our challenge for the Big Eight championship," Cipriano points out. "Gregory, Riehl and Christline will enable us to run more and play more of a pressing defense."

Like the other Big Eight coaches, Cipriano feels no team will dominate the conference such as Kansas did last season by zipping through 14 conference tests in roaring to a 27-3 mark.

"I would have to say off returning lettermen, Kansas State, Missouri, Oklahoma and Kansas all look very good," he says, "I'm sure that almost any team will have a chance to win the championship because of this balance that was lacking last year."

In eight previous seasons, NU squads have compiled a 114-88 record making Cipriano the winningest coach in the Lincoln school's history. He'd like to continue that upswing in Cornhusker fortunes this year.

Starr Magic Gone

Green Bay, Wis. (AP) — Bart Starr, the man Vince Lombardi made a great quarterback, returned to action Sunday after a nearly year-long layoff, but much of his magic was missing.

His right arm, laid open twice this year by surgical scalpels, showed some of the brilliance that helped make the Green Bay Packers of the 1960s one of the most devastating teams ever on a gridiron.

But neither Starr or the rest of the Packers showed the smooth precision that made them champion as they lost to New Orleans 29-21.

"You can't blame Starr," Coach Dan Devine said of the 16-year veteran who underwent surgery in July to correct a painful tendon problem in his right arm and shoulder and then again when an artery severed in the original repair job was found to be leaking.

"I thought he played quite well," said Devine. "But we didn't have good field position, we had to punt into the wind and we always semed to be second and 25."

That came from mistakes, penalties that hurt more than the yards measured off, and six turnovers, mistakes that weren't there when the Packers won three consecutive world championships under the late Lombardi.

Starr, a bench-rider until Lombardi made him a starter in 1959, completed eight of 17 passes Sunday, including his first two, which netted 41 yards in an early touchdown drive. In that drive they looked like winning Packer teams, not the current 3-7-1 version.

But Starr fumbled later and a pass was intercepted. The Saints turned those miscues into 10 points.

"I don't think Starr was intercepted as a result of not having enough on the ball," Devone said. "He, the Saints' Hugo Hollas, just came across and picked it off."

McDowell, Perry, And Duffy Involved In Baseball Swap

. . . HOLTZMAN TRADED FOR MONDAY

Scottsdale, Ariz. (AP) — Baseball's annual winter meetings exploded with three major trades Monday involving a wealth of big names that included pitchers Sam McDowell, Gaylord Perry and Ken Holtzman, and slugger Lee May.

Cleveland swapped pitching ace McDowell to San Fancisco for Perry and infielder Frank Duffy. Holtzman moved from the Chicago Cubs to Oakland in exchange for outfielder Rick Monday, and May went from Cincinnati to Houston in an eight-man deal.

With 13 players changing teams, it was one of the most active trading days in the history of these meetings.

The McDowell-Perry swap was a trade of pitching superstars. Sudden Sam, 29, who had a falling out with the Indians' management and quit the team for a week midway through the 1971 season, finished with a 13-17 record and 192 strikeouts. He has been one of the most prolific strikeout artists in the majors with 2,159 for eight seasons — 17th on the all-time list.

The 33-year-old Perry, 16-12 for the Giants last season, has been a workhourse throughout his career, pitching 250 or more innings in each of the last six seasons.

"We've been talking to several clubs in general areas regarding McDowell," said Gabe Paul, general manager of the Indians. "This was the first concrete proposal we had. We wanted a pitcher of Perry's stature and an infielder who could play regularly for us."

Ken Aspromonte, Cleveland's new manager, said Duffy would be his regular shortstop next season. The young infielder batted .182 in 34 games for the Giants and Reds last season

"I talked to Sam," said Charlie Fox, manager of the Giants. "He said, 'Thanks. I'll live up to what you think of me.' And I think he will."

The Cincinnati-Houston swap was the biggest of the day by numbers with five players moving from the Astros to the Reds for May, whose 39 homers last season was the third best total in baseball, second baseman Tommy Helms and utilityman Jimmy Stewart.

The Reds got second baseman Joe Morgan, infielder Denis Menke, pitcher Jack Billingham and outfielders Cesar Geronimo and Ed Armbrister.

The key man for the Astros had to be May, who batted 278 last season and has slugged 147 homers in five full seasons for the Reds. He was a heralded cog in the Big Red machine that drove Cincinnati to the National League pennant in 1970, but the Reds seemed unconcerned about surrending him.

Fairbanks Thinks OU Will Rebound

Norman, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma coach Chuck Fairbanks believes emotion is a key to winning football games. For that reason, he says his Sooners might not have an easy time of it Saturday against arch-rival Oklahoma State.

"I expect Oklahoma State to play with a great deal of emotion," Fairbanks said at his weekly press luncheon Monday. "I don't think we can go there and be very flat — there's not very much difference in teams," he added.

Fairbanks acknowledged his concern for the Sooners' mental preparation, coming on the heels of their 35-31 loss to No. 1 Nebraska.

But he predicted the Sooners, now 9-1, would rebound. "This team has a lot of pride," he said.

He noted the importance attached to the game by fans of the two state schools. "The two state universities are proud of their teams and it's important to their followers," he said.

"It's also important to us to finish the season in good shape to be able to adequately prepare for our Sugar Bowl lame with Auburn," the OU coach added.

OSU will carry a 4-5-1 record into the 62nd renewal of the Bedlam series. The Cowboys have been hit hard by injuries since getting off to a fast start.

Fairbanks said nagging injuries to defensive stalwarts Steve Aycock, Raymond Hamilton, Derland Moore and John Shelley has him worried.

"It's too early to tell their conditions, but if they are not able to play up to par we will be in bad shape," he said.

Fairbanks reiterated the praise he had for his team following the fourth-quarter loss to the Cornhuskers.

"My own personal feelings haven't changed," he said. "Our team demonstrated a lot of character . . . and Nebraska also showed the same kind of character to come back. That was the mark of a truly great football team.

"There are lots of things we would like to play over, but you don't have that opportunity

"My own disappointment hasn't changed any, nor has my own personal pride in our team's performance," he said.

Computer Aids Game Programs

Grouse wings and a computer are the ingredients being combined to help determine future game management policies, according to the Game and Parks Commission.

Commission personnel are working with the Data Processing Division of the Department of Administrative Services and the University of Nebraska Computing Center to analyze statistics gleaned from questionnaires furnished by cooperating hunters along with the wings of grouse harvested during the season.

An annual task of the Terrestrial Wildlife Division, the will be computerized for grouse study is one of 30 game management surveys made each year to help determine the effectiveness of present management procedures and suggest possible improvments. It is the first to be adapted to computer processing. At present, all such surveys are anlayzed by man rather than machine power and involve hours and hours of tedious mathematical calculations.

Questionnaires are mailed annually to a sample of about 250 hunters, most of whom are known to hunt grouse and have cooperated in the past. Forms seek information on the hunt and its results. Wings provide data on the age ratios of birds harvested. Reports on the hours required to bag a bird give meaningful information on their abundance.

This year, that information will be computerized for quicker and easier results. The computer will help make data entry more and more efficient, streamline report preparation, and allow Commission personnel to retrieve recorded facts more quickly.

Future plans include the use of computers in processing other surveys and for formulating the State Comprehensive Outdoor Recreation Plan and the Wildlife Plan, both long-range activities of the Game and Parks Commission.

—NOT A MORAL VICTORY—

Namath's Legs Hold Up Despite Bruising Game

New York (AP) — "I feel like I've been in a gang fight," Joe Namath said, rubbing a swollen right jaw.

"My right arm is so sore I think it may fall off any minute. Two toes on my left foot are black and blue. I got some pretty good bumps."

But those fabled fragile legs—held together by surgeon's stitches and adhesive tape—they're standing up like stanchions of steel.

The New York Jets' crippled quarterback surfaced Monday to find himself a resurrected national hero—roundly acclaimed for his feat in coming off the bench Sunday after 19 games of idleness and missing—by the margin of a fingertip—an upset victory over the San Francisco 49ers.

The 49ers won 24-21 but not before they had been chilled to the marrow by one of Broadway Joe's guttiest and most dramatic performances.

"Naw, I don't consider it a moral victory." Namath reacted to an observation. "The only kind of victory I know is winning. We could have won—but we didn't."

Namath, tossed into Sunday's game at Shea Stadium when starting quarterback Bob Davis went out with injuries, completed 11 of 27 passes for 258 yards and three touchdowns. An interception by Johnny Fuller on the last play of the game thwarted what could have been the winning touchdown.

"Football has so many complications," Namath said. "It's not like taking an examination. It's a game of reaction—instantaneous decision.

"Because I've been idle so long, I made two or three mistakes out there—mistakes in judgment — which ordinarily I wouldn't make.

"There were a couple of interceptions — including the last one. I was fooled by the defenses they threw up. If I had been game sharp, it wouldn't have happened."

Acknowledging that he was very nervous when he entered the game, Joe said he didn't expect to be as nervous Saturday against the Cowboys at Dallas

"I should be more relaxed mentally," he added. "Physically, well, I can't say."

Namath appeared at the NBC studios in mid-Manhattan shortly after noon Monday to tape the first of series of talk shows he will host this winter.

He changed from leather jacket and jeans into a snappy ensemble of gray flared slacks, blue jacket, white and gray striped shirt, got a face makeup and greeted his guests — bearded Richard Harris, the actor, and Paula Sperber, blonde and pretty U.S. ladies' bowling champion from Miami, in purple hot pants.

A photographer asked Joe to put his arm around Paula and her bowling ball. Joe obliged—but almost lost a guest.

"I nearly fainted," said Paula. "Tingles went from the tips of my toes to the top of my head. Sex appeal? Are you kidding? He's saturated with it."

Jockey Lovato Moves To Different Hospital

New York (AP) — Jockey Frank Lovato, injured in a three-horse spill in the Stuyvesant Handicap last Saturday at Aqueduct, was transferred from a New York hospital to one near his home at Cherry Hill, N.J., Monday.

Lovato suffered from a broken right pelvis and two broken ribs. He is expected to be hospitalized for at least six weeks.

Bordaberry Claims Victory In Uruguay President Voting

Montevideo, Uruguay (AP) — Juan M. Bordaberry of the governing Colorado Party claimed victory Monday in a tight presidential election. His claim was challenged by the National Party candidate.

The Colorados and the Nationals, Uruguay's traditional parties, swept aside the bid of a new leftist coalition named the Broad Front.

Bordaberry, currently minister of agriculture, said he would carry on the government's battle against the Tupamaro guerrillas, who had favored the Broad Front candidate.

Unofficial results indicated the Colorado lead was narrowing, and the National Party candidate, Sen. Wilson Ferreira Aldunate, said Monday night: "We are optimistic."

Election officials said final results of the Sunday election won't be known until Tuesday.

With more than one million of an estimated 1.6 million votes counted, the Interior Ministry reported that the Colorado Party had 416,340 votes, the National Party 398,348, and the Broad Front 230,000. Most of the ballots still to be counted were from the countryside where the Colorado and National Parties are strongest.

President Jorge Pacheco Areco, who failed on his bid to change the constitution so that he could serve a second term, made a rare public appeaance to receive a crowd of Colorado Party supporters who gatbered at his residence.

The constitutional amendment Pacheco Areco sought fell far short of the majority vote it needed to pass in Sunday's election. Pacheco Areco, 51, had designated Bordaberry as his "alternate candidate" if the amendment failed.

USAF, Army Move To Reform Post Exchanges

Washington (UPI) — The Army and Air Force moved Monday to reform the scandal-scarred post exchange (PX) system overseas by centralizing management in the hands of a U.S.-based director.

The Army-Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) has 933 outlets doing $2.4 billion in sales and making a gross profit of almost $500 million in fiscal year 1970.

In the continental United States these Army and Air Force stores have long been under the control of a single chief headquartered in Dallas, Tex., but overseas regional military commanders have beenin charge. Pentagon spokesman Julian Levine announced Monday that in January the overseas outlets would come under the supervision of the domestic chief.

Computer Says Man Is Dead; Man Protests

Portland, Ore. (UPI) — Herman Weeg, 70, a retired chef, hasn't received a Social Security check since Sept. 3 because the federal government's computer thought he was dead.

Very much alive, Weeg said Monday that, after continued queries to the Social Security Administration, the San Francisco office admitted the computer made a mistake.

Administration district Manager James Pizza wrote Weeg that the computer had been straightened out and money should start coming to him within 10 days.

Weeg said he received $114 from Social Security and $16 a month from the State Welfare Department.

New York (AP) — Stock market prices rallied sharply Monday for the second consecutive day as investors looked forward to a possible settlement of the international monetary situation.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks soared 13.14 to 829.73. On Friay it climbed 17.96, the biggest single-day gain since Aug. 16 after President Nixon announced his Phase 1 economic policy.

"Today's action was a follow-through of Friday's surge, and it is all based on growing optimism that the Group of 10 meeting will bring some settlement of the international monetary situation," said John Smith, analyst for Fahnestock & Co.

Analysts said the market's continuation of the rally in such active trading indicated the market might be making a turnaround. They said investors also received encouraging economic news last week, with the report the leading economic indicators had risen in October.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks rose .90 to 51.47. The Amex price change index advanced .35 to 23.98.

The Associated Press 60 stock average advanced 4.9 to 298.4, with industrials up 7.8, rails up 3.3, and utilities up 1.2. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.47 to 93.41.

A block of 470,000 shares of Sears was traded at 92, down 4. The trade worth, $43.24 million, was the seventh largest in terms of dollars in Big Board history. Another block of 70,000 shares of Sears crossed at 93½.

Medical Society President Says AMA Is Unresponsive

New Orleans, La. (AP) — Dr. Kenneth Platt, president of the Colorado State Medical Society accused the American Medical Association and its House of Delegates Monday of being unresponsive "to the socioeconomic crisis we are facing in the nation today."

Platt was among a number of doctors championing AMA president Dr. Wesley W. Hall of Reno, Nev., during an often bitter debate over Hall's proposal to the AMA convention Sunday. This called for the organization's governing and organizational structure to be overhauled to keep the AMA in step with modern health problems, as Hall put it.

"He (Dr. Hall) is just trying to bring action that the grassroots (doctors) are telling you is needed, and you are not responsive," said Dr. Platt, of Westminster, Colo.

"I beg you — change. It is no longer the time, the place or, in essence, the thrust of government, the general public or your own profession that you remain as you are . . .," Dr. Platt said.

Sharp defense of the AMA's present operations — and criticism of Hall's remarks — came from various officers of the organization and from a few nonofficer doctors.

The interchanges took place, in Hall's presence, at a special reference committee meeting called to discuss Hall's proposals. About 250 doctors attended.

A former president, Dr. Edward Annis of Miami, Fla., asserted: "I suggest that the reason our image among some doctors is so bad is that we argue about our problems in the marketplace . . . in a fishbowl . . . and that really is a mark of our strength."

Declaring he is confident the AMA has the backing of the large majority of doctors and of the public at large, Annis said:

"The doctor who criticizes the AMA is not active in his own county or state medical association. All he knows (about the AMA) is what he reads in the New York Times, the Washington Post, or Newsweek, or hears from Huntley Brinkley — and no one can be educated from that source."

In his talk Sunday, Dr. Hall had renewed his previous unanswered call for a AMA "constitutional convention" — or at least something similar to that as the best mechanism "to get our organization back on the track and restore our profession to the highly respected status it once enjoyed."

Curtis Undecided On Trying To Win Post As Delegate

Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb., says he won't decide until next year whether to file as a delegate to the Republican National Convention next summer.

Curtis, who has announced his intention to seek re-election next year, said he believes practically all the delegate spots should go to party workers who are not holding elected public office.

FIREMAN SAVES INFANT

Des Moines, Iowa, city fireman Richard Phillips, 27, is credited with saving the life of 14-month-old Charles Smith Jr. with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation after the child stopped breathing during an ice show at Veterans Memorial Auditorium. The child is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, of Birmingham, Iowa, and was reported "doing well" at a hospital. "I'm the fortunate one to have been able to save the baby's life," Phillips said. "Anybody could have done it."

Compromise Reached On War Powers Bill

©The New York Times

By JOHN W. FINNEY

Washington — Key conservative and liberal senators have reached agreement on compromise legislation to curb the warmaking powers of the presidency.

Basically, the proposed legislation would provide that the president could engage in hostilities in certain emergency situations, but could not continue a military action for more than 30 days without obtaining congressional approval.

Details of the legislation, designed to check the power of the president to commit the nation to undeclared wars, such as the Vietnam conflict, were worked out in recent days between liberal Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., and Sen. John C. Stennis, D-Miss., a conservative and chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committeee.

With the unified support of such liberal and conservative senators, it now seems likely that the legislation will be approved in the near future by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, clearing the way for its passage by the Senate early next year.

In a recent letter to Javits, the original sponsor of war powers legislation, Stennis praised the principles of the compromise bill as "clear" and "sound" and expressed hope that some version of the bill would be enacted into law "in the near future."

Such an endorsement by the chairman of the Armed Services Committee is virtually certain to result in widespread conservative support for the legislation. Javits and Eagleton, meanwhile, can be expected to rally liberal and moderate support for the legislation.

More Beef, Veal

Chicago — U.S. per capita consumption of beef and veal climbed to a record of almost 117 pounds in 1970. This was a growth of about 7 pounds in three years. The projection is that per capita consumption of beef and veal will rise to about 130 pounds by 1980.

20-Year-Old Hastings Bride Killed In Missouri Accident

Sedalia, Mo. (UPI) — A 20-year-old bride from Hastings and an eight-year-old girl were killed Monday in a headon collision 40 miles south of here on U.S. 65.

The Missouri Highway Patrol said Mrs. Beverly Ann Bruntz, Hastings, and Angela Campbell of Sedalia were killed.

Mrs. Bruntz, a passenber in a car driven by her husband of three days, Gary Bruntz, 20, Hastings, was dead on arrival at the Bothwell Hospital here. The Campbell girl died later at the hospital.

Bruntz was taken to the hospital in serious condition. Also in serious condition were the driver of the second car, Mrs. Sally Jo Campbell, her husband, Jerry, and two other Campbell children.

Authorities said Mrs. Campbell's car apparently went out of control, swerved across the center line of the highway and struck the Bruntz car headon.

U.S. May Transfer Much Of Canal Zone Area, Rights To Panama

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The United States is prepared to transfer to Panama a broad spectrum of jurisdictional rights, commercial activities, piers and areas of land and water in the Canal Zone, a House subcommittee was told Monday by a U.S. treaty negotiator.

Ambassador John Mundt, special U.S. represenative in the negotiations on a new treaty sought by Panama, told the subcommittee: "We plan only to release certain land and water areas in the Canal Zone not needed for canal operation and defense but useful in the agricultural, industrial and urban development of Panama. The areas being considered have been selected with the concurrence of the Department of Defense and the Panama Canal Company."

Mundt's testimony confirmed a previously unverified report that the U.S. government had redrawn the map of the 10-mile-wide Canal Zone, to be part of the new treaty.

Mundt's testimony before the House merchant marine subcommittee headed by Rep. John M. Murphy, D-N.Y., was revealing about the attitude of the U.S. negotiators.

"We can afford to make adjustments in our treaty relations with Panama," Mundt testified. "U.S. control and defense of a canal well into the next century is not at stake in the current negotiations. We are seeking a treaty arrangement with Panama that will ensure the continuation of the U.S. presence in tranquility. This means that this presence must not be imposed on an unwilling partner."

Mundt said that under the new treaty, commercial activities now conducted by the canal company would be phased gradually into private operation under Panamanian law.

But the United States would reserve the right to continue essential commercial services where satisfactory private operations cannot be arranged.

Since the United States now controls all deep-water port capacity in the republic, Mundt said, some piers would be turned over to Panama outright because U.S. needs for them would be reduced by termination of the Canal Company's commercial activity.
